YANK MOTORS CHASE BEATEN HUNS

NOW U. S. VOTER BOMBS TRENCH OF CONGRESS

Tuesday's Forecast: House G. O. P.; Senate Democratic.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

With issues of loyalty, of war and of peace, of preparedness against war and of support of the president, mingling with issues of partisanship, accentuated by Mr. Wilson's own presidential manifesto for the return of his party to control of congress, one of the most remarkable political campaigns in the history of the country is drawing to a close.

Seldom has there been such uncertainty of the result. The Republicans as well as the Democrats are claiming the victory next Tuesday in both the contests for control of the senate and house.

House G. O. P. by 25?

Representative Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, issued a statement in Washington last night classing 230 Republicans and 172 Democrats as certain of election and the result in thirty-three districts doubtful. If the Democrats should carry all the doubtful districts the Republicans would have a majority of twenty-five.

The Republican senatorial committee is confident of achieving a Republican majority of one in the senate. A net gain of four senate seats for the Republicans would produce a tie.

The Democratic leaders concede the loss of Illinois and Kansas to the Republicans, but claim they will make gains in other states, notably Nebraska, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire, sufficient to offset these losses and maintain their present majority in the senate. A majority of less than ten in the house appears to constitute the extent of the actual expectations of the Democrats two days before the voting.

Democrats May Hold Senate.

Telegraphic reports from nonpartisan sources in all states received by THE TRIBUNE last night indicate the probability that the Democratic majority in the senate will be reduced from 8 to 2. In the house contests these unbiased reports show 215 Republicans and 195 Democrats sure of election, with 25 seats classed as doubtful. In the majority of the doubtful districts the Republicans are reported in the lead. On the basis of these figures it would appear that the Republicans will carry the house by a majority of about 20.

Multitude of Influences.

The conflicting issues of the election, however, must be held to detract from the value of these estimates and predictions from whatever source, in a canvass that has become spirited, even bitter, at the eleventh hour. How the multitude of influences at work will affect the individual voter appears to be a matter of guessing on both sides of the party line.

The Democrats, for example, are confident that the president's appeal in behalf of his party will win Republican votes in sufficient number to assure Democratic success in close Republican states and close Republican districts. But in states like Illinois and Kansas, which are normally Republican by overwhelming odds, the Democratic leaders do not look for a defection of Republican voters sufficient in volume to carry the Democratic candidates through to victory.

Wilson Appeal May Win for G. O. P.

A Republican landslide would carry the senate as well as the house into the Republican column, and it is upon such a landslide that those Republican leaders who predict the capture of the senate are figuring. The Republican expectation of a landslide is based upon reports from various parts of the country indicating that the president's partisan appeal has reacted unfavorably to the Democratic party, stirring resentment among and solidifying the Republicans and bringing unexpected support to Republican candidates who have demonstrated by their votes in congress that they have backed up the president in the prosecution of the war with greater force and unanimity than have the Democrats.

Cotton and Pacifism.

Republican leaders have entertained fears that the president's appeal for control of congress would carry great weight in those pacifistic constituen-

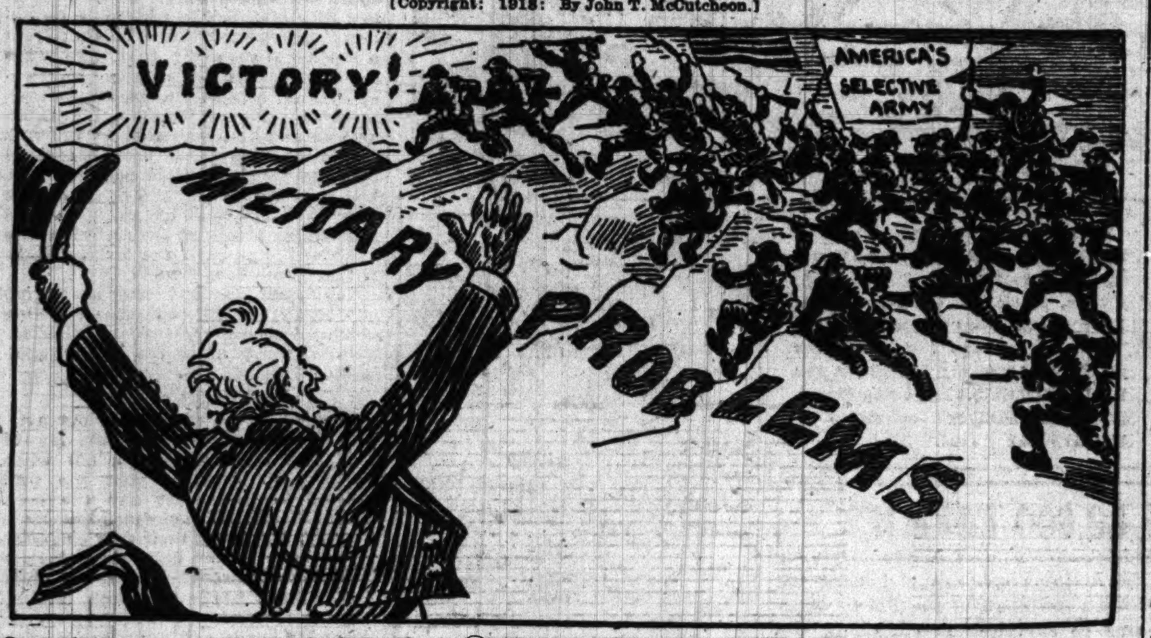
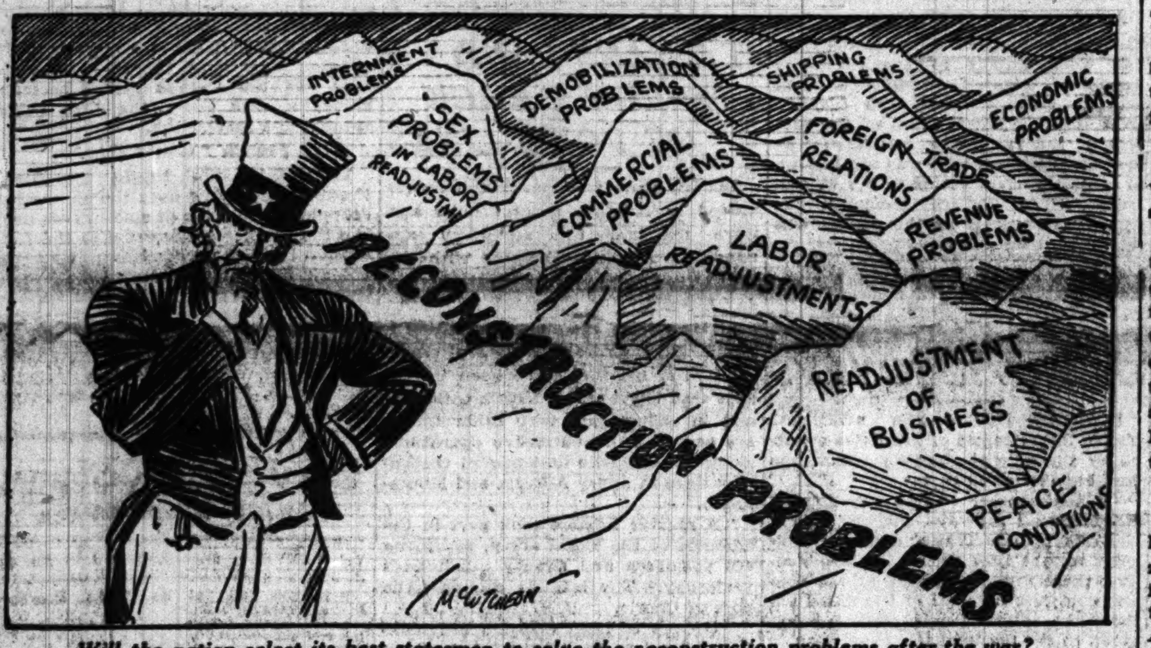
PROBLEMS OF WAR AND PEACE

[Copyright: 1918: By John T. McCutcheon.]



Our selective army, composed of the best of the nation's manhood without regard to race, creed, politics, or position, is solving the military problems now.



Will the nation select its best statesmen to solve the reconstruction problems after the war?

THE TRIBUNE'S ELECTION RETURNS TUESDAY EVENING

"THE TRIBUNE" will display election returns next Tuesday evening at Dearborn and Madison streets for the information of the public.

Fuel Administrator Garfield last night in Washington announced that while Tuesday night will be a lightless night so far as general illumination is concerned, each newspaper is authorized to display election returns. This action was taken, fuel administration officials said, to further the prompt dissemination of news of the nation's great biennial political adjustment.

AUSTRIANS SOON TO EVACUATE ALL OF SERBIA

VIENNA, via London, Nov. 2.—The evacuation of all Serbian territory by the Austrians is imminent. This announcement is made in the official statement from the war office today.

Capture Part of Belgrade.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Part of Belgrade, capital of Serbia, has been captured by the allies, according to unofficial dispatches received here tonight. Complete occupation of the city is expected momentarily.

The Serbian army has taken an oath of allegiance to the new constitution of the Great Serbian kingdom, according to a dispatch received by the Exchange Telegraph company.

Buy Their Coal Early; It Nearly Kills Them

Oliver Osborne, 306 Park avenue, Wilmette, obeyed the edict to lay in coal early for the winter. His foresight was almost the death of the whole family yesterday. The weight of the coal broke a gas pipe and Mr. and Mrs. Osborne, their son, William, 15 years old, and Mr. Osborne's father, 65, were all partly overcome by the gas. Police with artificial respirators handy broke basement windows and found the leak.

KAISER QUITS, SWISS REPORT

Paris Also Hears That William Tries to Cling to Job.

PARIS, Nov. 2, 4:30 p. m.—Abdication of the kaiser may be considered to be a fact, according to a Geneva dispatch to the Temps. The dispatch said that official publication is being delayed awaiting a favorable opportunity.

In direct contradiction to this dispatch is one to Le Journal from Zurich stating that Emperor William is persisting in his refusal to abdicate. He took refuge at German great headquarters immediately after the meeting of the war cabinet at which the question of his abdication was raised.

Immediate peace is demanded in manifestoes published by German Socialist newspapers from labor and Socialist organizations and feminist groups throughout the empire. The last named groups in their statement declare the German women will take every means of opposing the continuation of the war.

Bavaria King Claims Throne.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Bavarian premier has notified Berlin that the Bavarian royal family claims the imperial throne in the event of Emperor William's abdication, according to the Socialist Leipzig Volkszeitung, which is quoted in a Hague dispatch to the Daily Mail.

The Vossiche Zeitung of Berlin declares that it learns from a dependable source that Philipp Scheidemann, secretary of state without portfolio, some days ago sent a memorial to Prince Maximilian, the imperial chancellor, expressing the conviction that Emperor William must abdicate.

The Germania declares that reports that the war cabinet considered the question at its latest meeting are false.

Political circles, according to the Tageblatt, regret the emperor's trip to the front, saying that it is calculated at this time to inspire all sorts of conjectures.

Advises Full Submission.

COPENHAGEN, Wednesday, Oct. 30.—Complete submission to the allies was advised by Count Reventlow, the naval writer, in the Berlin Deutsche Tages Zeitung of Tuesday. The article was mild for the usual bellicose Reventlow.

The German newspapers for many weeks have not been so bare of comment on the military and political situation as they are at present. Apparently the German press is awaiting the result of the Versailles conference.

THE WEATHER.

Costa Rica Rebels Mobilize on Nicaragua Frontier

New York, Nov. 2.—A dispatch to the Associated Press from San José, Costa Rica, bearing the signature of the Costa Rican war ministry, says that revolutionists are concentrating along the northern border of Costa Rica, on Nicaraguan soil.

ITALIANS SEIZE 80,000 ENEMIES AND 1,600 GUNS

Two Armies Cut Off as Austrian Soil Is Reached.

BULLETIN.

ROME, Nov. 3, 1:40 a. m.—Two Italian patrols have crossed to the right bank of the Tagliamento river. Columns of Italian troops have reached Azzano, Decimo, Portugruaru, Concordia, and Sagittaria.

ROME, Nov. 2.—The Austrian armies have been completely defeated.

The Italians already have captured 80,000 prisoners and 1,600 guns.

The entire Austrian army in the Trentino has been cut off and another Austrian army on the southern end of the front is in the same situation.

The Italians are on Austrian soil. The northern army crossed the frontier into Austrian territory in the Sugana valley yesterday evening, cutting the Austrian forces in that region in two.

Rome Official Report.

The official report issued by the war office telling of these victories says:

"East of the Brenta the pursuit continues. On the Asiago plateau the enemy is resisting to give time for the masses in the rear to retire, but the troops of the Sixth army have crossed by force of arms the pass between Rotzo and Roana, carrying in a bitter struggle Monte Cimone and Monte Lisser, and are advancing in the valley of the Nos.

Begin Invasion of Austria.

"The Fourth Army has occupied the heights north of the hollow of Fonzaso and has pushed forward columns into the Sugana valley. The old frontier was passed yesterday evening. Alpine groups, having crossed the Piave with improvised means in the neighborhood of Busche, have spread out in the area between Feltre and San Guistina.

"Italian troops which yesterday won in heavy fighting at the Passo di Boldo the hollow of Fadalto are going up the Cordevole valley. They have passed beyond Ponte Nelle Alpi and are marching toward Longarone.

Cavalry Conquers Towns.

"On the plains an Italian cavalry division under the Count of Turin, having overcome the stubborn resistance of the enemy at Castello d'Aviano, Roveredo in Piano, San Martino, and San Quierino, occupied Pordeone and passed the Cellina-Meduna line.

"Our own and allied aviators are complete masters of the air and continue without pause their daring activities. An Italian airship bombarded the railway station in the Sugana valley at night.

Liberate Many Prisoners.

"It is not possible to calculate the number of guns abandoned on the lines of battle now distant from the fighting fronts and in the roads. More than 1,600 have been counted.

"More than 80,000 prisoners have been counted. Our soldiers have liberated several thousand prisoners from captivity."

Austrians Fleeing Udine.

The Austrians are fleeing from Udine, about fifty miles east of the Piave, according to reports received here. They have abandoned a great quantity of war material in the region of Udine, which was the Italian headquarters before the 1917 retreat.

The destruction of the Austrian armies continues apace along a front of 125 miles. On every sector the enemy is giving way before the smashing blows of the allies.

When the Fadalto pass was taken, the way was opened to Belluno and the Austrian armies were separated. Simultaneously the Fourth Italian army renewed its fierce attack in the Monte Grappa region so as to hold there the nine divisions and reserves between Feltre and Fonzaso, endangering both points. The Quero-Feltre pass was captured and the enemy is falling back, not attempting to defend himself.

Americans Help Advance.

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN VENETIA, Nov. 1.—[By the Associated Press.]—The Three Hundred and Thirty-second American regiment, which is operating with the Thirty-first Italian division of the Tenth army, tonight was crossing the Livenza river in the direction of Tiezzo. The Americans, who were commanded by Col. W. M

SMASH ACROSS GERMAN LINES NEAR VERDUN

Month of Battles Results in Defeat of the Kaiser.

ON ALLIED FRONTS

FRENCH—The French, aided by the American victory to the east, have driven the Germans out of almost the whole of the great forest of Argonne. French troops which on Friday forced their way across the Aisne, have advanced for miles through the stronghold which the Germans held for four years.

BRITISH—British troops who captured Valenciennes have made progress several miles to the east, driving the enemy back toward Brussels and Maubeuge.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY, Nov. 2, 8 p. m.—The First American army has broken through the German line north of Verdun and is pursuing the retreating Third and Fifth German armies. On our left the fourth French army is pursuing the enemy.

Crashing through the Freya line on a wide front, the Americans today captured Champigneulle and dashed to Thenorgues, and then by storm took the important German railroad center of Buzancy, captured Fosse, Barricourt, Dun, and Doulcon.

Lose Contact with Foe.

Our line has pushed beyond those places and we have at many points lost contact with the retreating Huns.

Our troops, advancing in motor trucks, have reached Briquenay, where they have stopped for the night, throwing out patrols in front of the town. They have not caught up with the boche yet.

The Germans put up a stiff fight at only two places today—Buzancy and Clery le Petit, over near the Meuse river.

Meet Feeble Resistance.

On our left, where the Germans put up such a bitter fight yesterday, the enemy had gotten out during the night, except for weak rear guards, and when we started forward along the east edge of the Forest of Rault this morning it was like child's play, compared with what our men have been through the last five weeks.

Soon these rear guards were rounded up, and by 9 o'clock there was no resistance worth speaking of up to noon.

Pursue on Trucks.

Early in the afternoon we lost contact and commanders sent a hurry call for as many big trucks as could be spared. These trucks rushed up over crowded roads and arrived about 3 o'clock. They were at once loaded with doughboys and started north after the retreating Germans.

Few stories of war are more picturesque than that of hundreds of big American trucks with four doughboys with ready rifles perched on hoods, machine

LATE BULLETINS ON CRUMBLING OF 'CENTRAL EMPIRES'

BY AUSTIN WEST.
Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.
[Copyright: 1918.]

THE ITALIAN WAR ZONE, Nov. 2.—Unless the armistice for which the stricken Austro-Hungarian army is imploring should be concluded in time to check the onward roll of the victorious Italian armies the Austrian debacle undoubtedly will speedily develop into the most gigantic military catastrophe in the annals of European wars. Terrific losses have been and are being inflicted on the fleeing legions of the middle empire. The allied aerial squadrons are especially harrassing the routed invaders. Over the whole stretch of country, in the mountains and on the plains for a distance of seventy miles, the old frontier and the narrow passes are littered with the bodies of Austrian dead tumbled in heaps everywhere.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY, Nov. 2, 8 p. m.—The Germans have withdrawn five Austrian divisions before the Second American army. These 40,000 men are reported as being entrained for Austria.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 2.—The governor of Triest has handed over the commune's affairs to the "committee of action," composed of Socialists, National Liberals, and Slovenes.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 2.—The last telegram received in Berlin from Budapest said that sanguinary street fighting was in progress between Hungarian and Bosnian troops. Since then telegraphic and telephonic communication has ceased.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 2.—The German-Austrian state council, according to a dispatch from Vienna, has issued a proclamation to the soldiers at the front, saying that the government has been taken over by the national assembly. The assembly will immediately conclude peace and begin the orderly demobilization of the army, the proclamation declares.

ROME, Nov. 2.—A wave of indescribable enthusiasm is sweeping over Italy at the success of the Italian armies. The streets are thronged day and night. Allied flags are flying everywhere.

The jubilation of the populace is increasing as the bulletins issued by the war office enhance the proportions of the victory being won by the Italians.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Budapest is beflagged, according to a German wireless message received here today, and many public demonstrations of brotherly feeling are occurring. Troops sent by the national council have liberated troops which were locked in barracks by the gendarmes.

PINWHEEL FLYER MAKES 192 LOOPS

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 2.—Lieut. William T. Campbell, attached to Love field, today established what is believed to be a world record for consecutive loops in an airplane. Using a Curtiss plane with a special motor, he accomplished 192 consecutive loops without descending.

Lowden Off Politics; Recognizes "Adjournment"

Just before Gov. Lowden began his speech at the Chicago Motor club last night he was asked whether he would talk any politics.

"No politics—I shall talk entirely about good roads," the governor replied.

The reporter started to turn away. "You know 'politics is adjourned,'" the governor added with a chuckle.

ALLIES DEMAND GERMAN NAVY AND HELGOLAN

Terms of Armistic May Be Published on Monday.

BULLETIN.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 2. (By the Associated Press.) German banking and comme cial men, after a meetin have sent the government declaration in favor of a ceptance of the entente armistice conditions, accor ing to the German paper The declaration presents a argument against those wh hope for an improvement the situation from a contin ance of the war and demand measures for facilitatin peace, even if sacrifices a required.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2. Information reaching Washin ton today through diplomat channels is that the armisti terms being perfected by t supreme war council will requi the Germans to withdraw thir miles beyond the Rhine, leavin behind munitions and rolli stock, and to surrender Helg land with the German fleet, i cluding submarines.

This would leave the bord stronghold cities in the hands Gen. Foch and return the Germa military machine home with i power gone.

Will Germany Accept?

According to this informatio the terms will be so drastic th some of the military exper doubt that the Germans will a cept them without further figh ing.

The armistice terms will published Monday or Tuesda according to an intimation fro entente quarters here today. was indicated that it will be give publicity at the same time th it is forwarded or delivered Germany.

"Allied Unity Improved."

Information obtained here do not make it clear that the alli will conclude peace wholly up the famous fourteen points President Wilson's speech of Ja 8 last and subsequent declar tions by him; but an alli spokesman declared today th "the allied unity is much i proved, and no governme should publish or suggest ter without the other allies."

While this declaration relat particularly to the armistice co ditions, it was taken to mean al that the allies together, and one of the nations at war with t German empire, will dictate eith the peace terms or the conditio of armistice.

"The object of an armistice it was declared, "is one: It is prevent Germany from renewi the war." Gen. Foch was t first authority whose ideas co cerning the terms of an armisti were asked when the sittings the supreme war council began Versailles last Tuesday.

To Control Railways.

In addiion to the major ter of the armistice the allies are e pected to demand:

Control or supervision of Ge an railroads and railroad materials and rolling stock.

Supervision of German factories engaged in the manufacture war materials.

Cessation of all activities in ermany, such as the manufacture of war materials and concenation of supplies at strategic ilitary points which would tend rehabilitate the German war achine.

Control of German munitions, ins, and war supplies.

Occupation by French troops Alsace-Lorraine.

nemy's War Stores Low.

Official information has been ceived here that during the recat the Germans have deroyed immense quantities of ar stores of all kinds, and that ring the last few weeks the als have captured nearly 500,000 rman shells. The German war res are known to be desperately w.

In connection with the subject of ace terms it was disclosed today that e feeling in France toward the prosed league of nations is sympathetic, t that there is an insistent demand in ance that such a league shall not ke it possible for Germany to reer here military power and again come a menace to the French nation threatening it with another war.

It also was learned that careful callations have been made of the deuction and devastation wrought in occupied provinces of France by Germans, and France will demand paration as the only means not only securing justice but also of insuring own well-being. These estimates close startling facts. For two years will be impossible for France to take m her mines, which have been oped by the Germans during their ocpation, and which recently have en the object of the enemy's vandaln, one pound of coal.

RESUME CONFERENCE.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The allied prime inisters now in Paris, together with E. M. House, met again informally is afternoon. There were no definite ications today when their conferces would be finished.

The Temps this afternoon says:

"The chiefs of the allied governnts, with their military and naval lleagues and counselors, are conuing this afternoon at Versailles m yesterday and the day before ir deliberations, at which there are esent, as is also known, Premier nizelos of Greece; Paul Hymans, the lgian foreign minister; M. Matsui, Japanese ambassador, and M. Vesth, the Serbian minister."

Mr. House, returning from the conence yesterday, smiled and had an sured air. When his happy appearce was commented upon Mr. House plied jocularly:

"I always have a happy appearance. u can't tell what I am thinking by smile."

MUST CONFESS DEFEAT

BY ROBERT J. BENDER.

[NITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—Germany will be asked in the forthcoming mistice terms to confess her defeat. e will be called on to make pracally an unconditional surrender. ese two positive statements came toght from French High Commissioner rdieu, who predicted also Germany uld take what she is handed.

The statements were the more signifint because they came from a man o is practically liaison official been France and the United States, d because it was the first official atement for direct quotation made in capital this week.

Should the Germans fail to accept armistice terms, Tardieu said in interview today, the allies will ke a last effort, "the outcome of ich cannot be doubtful."

Armistice Will Cover All.

"At this very moment," he added, re being examined in Versailles the ms of an armistice about which I ke bold to declare that it will inde everything it ought to include, d that all the questions will be stated th the necessary clearness.

"In order to state them in that way, better position, in the opinion of our vernment, could have been found an the one created for the allies by diplomatic correspondence of the t three weeks.

"Indeed, in the answer which the rmans will have to give to our terms armistice they must say whether ey confess that they are beaten.

Ready to Enforce Acceptance.

"Should they confess it, the war will d, and through the acceptance of our nditions.

"Should they not, we shall enforce at acceptance.

"Thus our diplomatic position has ought to completion the work of our mies by compelling our adversaries acknowledge what the president so tly called 'the military supremacy the allies.'

"The frame of mind of the allied oops may be expressed in one word. ey are ready to fight until victory complete. They want this victory to complete. They know it will be.

"They are pleased, likewise, that ery guarantee having been taken ainst the German ruse and deceit, chance has been neglected of insurg by a safe peace the victory of right. short, everything which statesmanip, crowning the success of our arms, uld have done in order to hasten the cision has been done and well done.

French Agree with U. S.

"The government of Mr. Clemenceau heartily in agreement with your govnment in this supreme phase of our mmon crusade.

"Two weeks ago I was with your arnt and gallant soldiers. By a bond perfect brotherhood they are united their French and English comrades, th whom, since March last, they ve, night and day, been fighting witht respite. One single army on one gle front—this has been the cause our victory.

"This unity is the most precious of possessions. Let us eagerly hold it, in view of the conclusion of ace.

Yanks Opened Foe's Eyes.

"You Americans, coming into the ttle at the rate of 300,000 men per nth, brought to the understanding an enemy already doomed by our sistance, the realization that their wnfall was unavoidable and would a speedy one. From the military political standpoint, our situation excellent."

BATTLE REPORTS

FRENCH FRONT

FRENCH REPORT

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The official report issued by the ministry of war tonight said:

Vigorous attacks yesterday and this morning by the Fourth army on the Aisne front, in connection with the victorious effort of the Americans between the Argonne and Meuse, have compelled the enemy to beat a retreat across the Argonne forest. Our troops, smashing the enemy rearguards, who by stubborn resistance attempted to check our advance, made important progress along the whole front of the attack.

On the left we have taken Semuy and carried our lines as far as the south bank of the Ardennes canal, which we have reached on a front of two kilometers, from Semuy to Neuville et Day.

Further south we have reached the outskirts of Les Alleux, Quatre Champs, and La Croix-aux-Bois, after having captured Bois Vandy and the village of Ballay, despite the enemy resistance, which was particularly violent on the Alleux plateau and the Croix-aux-Bois defile.

On the right Longwe and Primat fell into our hands. North of the latter place our troops, pushing beyond Chene Pate, continued, despite the serious obstacle of the Argonne forest, vigorously to pursue the enemy, who withdrew, abandoning considerable material.

German counter attacks, especially in the region of Semuy, were repulsed and enabled us to add several hundred to the number of our prisoners.

BRITISH REPORT

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The report issued by the war office tonight said:

Determined local fighting continued throughout the day on the battle front south and east of Valenciennes. We made good progress northeast of Maresches and east and north of Preseau, capturing the hamlet of St. Hubert and the farms in that vicinity.

East of Valenciennes we hold the village of Marly and our advanced detachments have entered St. Saulve. In this operation we captured two tanks, which had been used by the enemy in unsuccessful counter attacks yesterday, and took several hundred prisoners.

A successful minor operation took place this morning west of Landrecies; we advanced our line and took a number of prisoners.

The Canadian corps, under Gen. Currie, after hard fighting on the outskirts of Valenciennes, have passed their troops through that town, which is wholly in our possession.

AMERICAN REPORT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—The statement received from Gen. Pershing today said:

The First army continued its attack west of the Meuse this morning. The operation is progressing favorably.

EARLIER REPORT

The First American army continued its attack on the west bank of the Meuse in conjunction with the Fourth French army on its left.

The perfect coöperation of all arms—infantry, artillery, airplanes, and tanks—succeeded in overcoming and disorganizing the enemy's determined resistance and breaking up his counter attacks. Enemy divisions, rapidly brought up, were intermingled with units already in line in a vain attempt to stop our advance.

Our victorious troops have already taken and passed beyond St. Georges, Landers-et-St. Georges, Imecourt, Landreville, Chennery, Bayonville, Remonville, and Estanne (probably Andevanne), and Clery-le-Grand. Up to the present 3,002 prisoners have been counted, of whom 151 are officers.

GERMAN REPORT

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—The official report issued by the war office tonight said:

South of Deynze we have withdrawn ourselves from further enemy attacks by retiring behind the Scheldt. The movement was carried out unnoticed during the night.

The enemy followed and stood in the evening east of Deynze and west of the Scheldt in fighting touch with our advanced posts.

There were strong attacks by the British south of Valenciennes. Near Aulnoy the enemy forced his way into our lines thrust forward on the southern border of Valenciennes in the direction of Saultain, just beyond Preseau.

Counter attacks brought us again in possession of the heights southwest of Saultain and the village of Presneau.

Attempts by the enemy during the afternoon by an enveloping storm attack from the west over the Scheldt and from the south to take Valenciennes broke down. In the night we evacuated the town undisturbed by our adversary.

Powerful artillery preparations preceded attacks which the Franco-Americans carried out for the purpose of securing an opening on the Aisne front and between the Argonne and the Meuse.

East of Recouvrance we repulsed the enemy. On the heights northwest of Chateau Porcien we maintained our positions against severe attacks. The heights southwest of St. Fergeux changed hands several times in counter attacks. They remain in our possession.

On the heights west of the Aisne between La Selve and Herpy enemy attacks broke down. Here again we won in severe fighting a complete success over the French. East of La Selve the adversary was not able to reach our line anywhere, owing to our effective fire.

Near and west of St. Quentin-Le Petit we drove back the enemy from there.

Enemy thrusts near Nanteuil and Ambly enabled him to reach temporarily the northern bank of the Aisne. Counter thrusts drove him back to the southern bank.

The French on a broad front attacked on both sides of Vouziers, as well as to the north, between the Aisne and Grand Pre. Near Rilly we withdrew our advance posts to the northern bank of the Aisne.

Near Voncq the enemy made a thrust over the Aisne to the heights on the eastern bank of the river. Attempts by our adversary to secure a break through at Le Chesne broke down.

We brought him to a stand near Neuville-et-Day and Terron. Storming attacks, repeated at various points six times by the enemy on both sides of Vouziers, also broke down.

East of Vandy the enemy was thrown back. He got a footing in Falaise. Between the Aisne and Grand Pre the enemy was repulsed. The French on this front attained an insignificant gain of territory near Voncq and Falaise.

On the front of the attack ten kilometers in extent, between Terron and Falaise, our lines this evening were fully in our hands.

Between the Aisne and the Meuse American divisions employed in dense attacking columns succeeded in forcing their way into our positions between Champigneulle and Aincreville and gaining territory beyond our artillery lines on both sides of Bayonville.

The attempts of the enemy from Bayonville to roll up our front in the direction of Thenorgues and Stenay were frustrated. With darkness the fighting was brought to a standstill on the line of Champigneulle, Sivry, east of Buzancy, southwest of Villers-Devant-Dun, and northeast of Aincreville.

ITALIAN FRONT

BRITISH REPORT

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The official report issued by the war office today said:

Troops of the Tenth army have crossed the Livenza river between Motta and Sacile and have established a bridgehead east of that stream. The Northamptonshire yeomanry regiment has captured twelve mountain guns and fifteen machine guns.

The Forty-eighth division, operating on the Asiago plateau, is reported to have advanced its line two kilometers northward, but it is meeting with machine gun resistance in the neighborhood of Monte Interrotto.

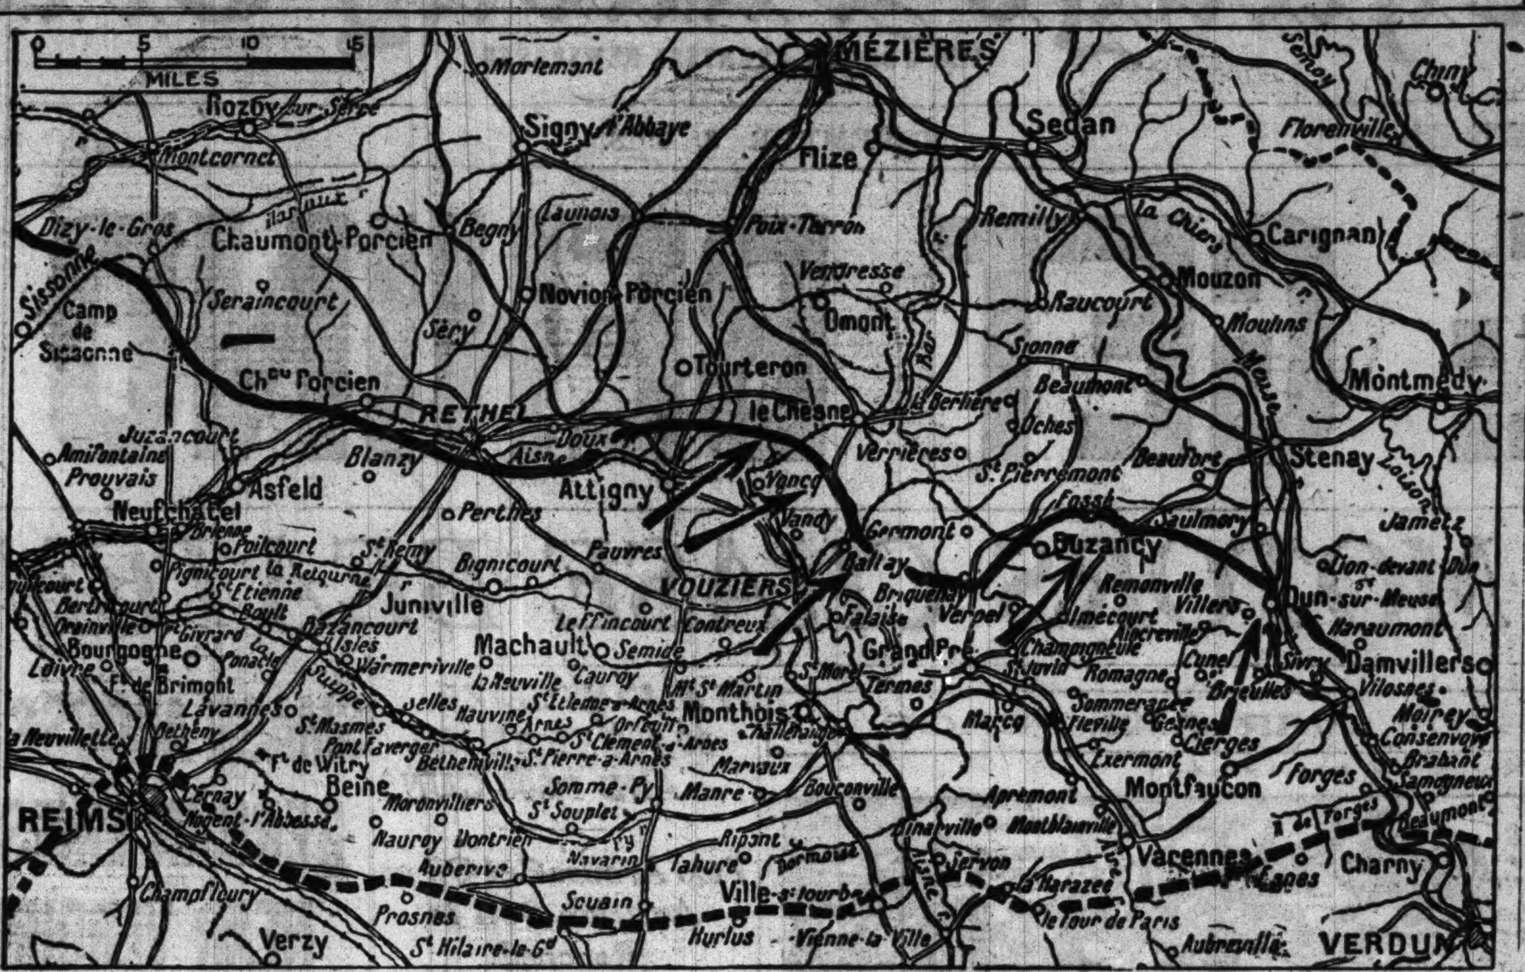
AUSTRIAN REPORT

VIENNA, via London, Nov. 2.—The official report issued by the war office tonight said:

On the Italian mountain front our troops, in carrying out our measures of evacuation according to plan, will occupy positions which they held at the beginning of the Italian war.

In the Venetian plain a movement of retreat across the Tagliamento is in progress.

AMERICANS AND FRENCH IN SMASHING ADVANCE



The joint offensive of the Americans and French on the Verdun and Champagne fronts has developed into a smashing victory.

West of the Meuse to the Argonne Gen. Pershing's forces broke through the Freya line on a wide front, capturing Buzancy, Fasse, Barricourt and Dun and pursuing the enemy far beyond this line.

The French striking east and northeast from the Aisne have advanced beyond the line Semuy, Ballay, Alex, Crois-Aux-Bois, Longwe and Chene Pate.

Caught between the Americans on the east and the French on the west the Germans are being driven from the northern extremity of the Argonne forest.

ITALIANS CAPTURE 80,000 ENEMIES

Wallace, passed through Roverbasso, southwest of Sacile, this afternoon.

During their advance the Americans had been fired upon by Austrian machine guns using dum-dum bullets. Maj. Somerville of Seattle has forwarded a number of the bullets to the headquarters of the American military mission. The bullets were manufactured two years ago, and each cartridge has a steel jacket containing four square slugs.

The Americans are in good health.

Gen. Treat, the American commander in Italy, today presented to King Victor Emmanuel a congratulatory message on the Italian victory from Ambassador Page.

Vast Territory Freed.

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Allied troops have reached the Grigno, five miles north of Monte Lisser. They have cut off the retreat of the Austrians in the Trentino, except over mule paths in the mountains.

The headlong flight of the Austrians continues on the Venetian plain.

More than a thousand square miles of Italy's invaded provinces have been reconquered in the last week's fighting but the greatest importance of the daring movement conceived by Gen. Diaz is his success in separating the Austrian army occupying the Monte Grappa and Trentino regions from that on the Venetian plain.

At the same time he is threatening the Austrian contingents holding the section southeast of the Piave, which may be enveloped or cut off by the Italians advancing toward Pordenone.

Austrians Murder Woman.

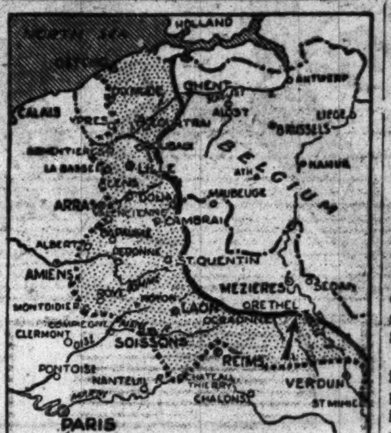
An unusual incident took place when Sacile was occupied. Because the English were unable to speak Italian, Arnondo Fraccaroli, a newspaper man, led the English across the Livenza river into the town. One of the last acts of the retreating Austrians was to shoot a woman who was attempting to cross the river to reach the British troops. The British punished the Austrians severely as the enemy was retreating from the city.

TURKEY GIVES ALLIES CONTROL OF ALL RAILWAYS

LONDON, Nov. 2.—An additional clause in the terms of armistice granted by the allie sto Turkey which has just been received says:

"Allied control officers are to be placed on all railways, including such portions of the Trans-Caucasian railways as are now under Turkish control; these must be placed at the free and complete disposal of the allied authorities; due consideration being given to the needs of the population.

"This clause is to include the allied occupation of Batum. Turkey will raise no objection to the occupation of Baku by the allies."



ITALIANS LAND MARINES BACK OF FOE'S LINES

ROME, Nov. 2.—The Italian forces landed in Albania several days ago were marines, the admiralty announces. A marine brigade with the Third Italian army in Venetia yesterday captured 400 prisoners and occupied Caorle, at the mouth of the Livenza. The admiralty statement reads:

"Italian marines have been landed near San Giovanni di Medua (Albanit), and in coöperation with other forces are carrying out extensive operations along the Adriatic and behind the enemy lines in upper Albania and Montenegro.

"A marine brigade took part in the advance of the Third army, capturing 400 prisoners and twenty quick-firers yesterday. The brigade occupied the port of Caorle.

"Groups of light cruisers are making offensive reconnaissances along the upper coast of the Adriatic."

AVIATOR SHOOTS CRANES HE FIRST THOUGHT HUNS

Thorne Taylor Takes a Little Training for Duck Hunting.

BY FREDERICK A. SMITH.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

WITH THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY, Oct. 30.—[Delayed.]—Winging back from an expedition over the German lines today, Thorne Taylor had so nearly arrived at the headquarters of his aviation pursuit group that he began to take a survey of the green fields and woods, with the idea of gliding down toward the hangars, thinking meanwhile of a hot dinner and a cheery fire.

Suddenly, from the south, appeared what seemed to be the largest group of enemy flyers Taylor had ever seen so far within our lines. There were at last fifty of them, in admirable formation. He watched them coming from a distance so great that they were but dots against the clouds. He jockeyed about meanwhile, awaiting developments. Taylor, being a huntsman as well as an airman well on the way to win the rank of ace, soon discovered that the "boches" were perfectly neutral sand hill cranes, and as they came over he let go with his machine guns and dropped one of them, but, being unable to alight, left the bird for some frugal Frenchman's table.

Taylor got his last Fokker near Doulcon on Oct. 8, and says that shooting down planes will be good training for duck hunting after the kaiser abdicates.

Lose Count of Days.

These days are so busy for our aviators that they lose count of the days of the week and the month, but when the French villagers visit the field dressed in their best and the cook serves ice cream the birdmen know it is Sunday, that being their only calendar.

Far back of the lines these days it is a common sight to see flights of planes going north and south, reminding one of the middle west in October, when the ducks and geese are migrating. Two nights ago at a certain town boche raiders dropped bombs on darkened houses and streets. I saw women and children running from their homes to take shelter in caves, while the anti-aircraft guns filled the air with missiles and the French and American planes scouted about the dark skies seeking the marauders.

French "Raid" City.

Today, in the bright sunshine French planes flew over the same city dropping thousands of small cards urging the people to subscribe to the Liberation loan, the cards being caught in the air by the street throngs. A contrast of these two raids will convey some idea of how resistless still is the spirit of the allies. In the streets good-naturedly scuffling for the fluttering papers, were Moroccans, Italians, Americans, French, English, and Australians.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs
Mrs. H. M. Patton, Waverly, Mo., writes: "I fed 2 boxes of 'More Eggs' to my hens and broke the egg record. I got 1500 eggs from 160 hens in exactly 21 days." You can do as well. In fact, any poultry raiser can easily double his profits by doubling the egg production of his hens. A scientific tonic has been discovered that revitalizes the flock and makes hens work all the time. The tonic is called "More Eggs." Give your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" and you will be amazed and delighted with results. A dollar's worth of "More Eggs" will double this year's production of eggs, so if you wish to try this great profit maker, write E. J. Reefer, poultry expert, 3410 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., who will send you a season's supply of "More Eggs" Tonic for $1.00 (prepaid). So confident is Mr. Reefer of the results that a million dollar bank guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied, your dollar will be returned on request and the "More Eggs" costs you nothing. Send a dollar today or ask Mr. Reefer for his free poultry book that tells the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.—Adv.

VICTOR'S TERMS ARE IMPOSED UPON AUSTRIA

Follow Wilson's Plan to Make Foe Powerless to Resume War.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—An intimation of the drastic nature of the armistice terms submitted by Gen. Diaz to the Austrians is given in an official dispatch from Rome today, which says:

"The Italian victory is hourly assuming such proportions that any kind of indulgence toward an enemy, which, up to the last minute of his dominion, has insulted our brethren, devastated our lands, and fought with the utmost barbarity, would be a crime."

FOLLOW WILSON PRINCIPLES.

ROME, Nov. 2.—The allies' terms to Austria in response to her application for an armistice have been handed by Gen. Diaz, the Italian commander-in-chief, to Austrian officers, who entered the line bearing a white flag. Official announcement to this effect was made today.

An official statement issued by the Italian government today concerning the armistice says:

Allies Invited to Triest.

BASEL, Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—The committee of public safety in Triest, alarmed by the sudden arrival of fleeing Austrian soldiers from Venetia, on Thursday sent a torpedo boat to Venice to ask the commander of the allies' fleet in the Adriatic to occupy Triest, a dispatch from Vienna says. The allies' commander granted the request and, the dispatch adds, an allied naval force is expected in Triest today.

Workers Rule Hungary.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Hungarian national council, according to a German wireless message picked up by the British admiralty, has issued a proclamation to the people of Hungary, saying:

"People! The soldiers, workers, and citizens have taken over the power and the council has met. Democracy is sacred. In the name of a world's peace, return to work. Soldiers! Return to your barracks!"

Soldiers Pledge Allegiance.

Amid scenes of the wildest enthusiasm regiment after regiment, each with its commander, is appearing before the National Hungarian council at Budapest to take the oath of allegiance, while high military officials are calling upon the council to offer their services, according to advices received here from the Hungarian capital.

The council has been informed of the appointment of Count Michael Karolyi, president of the Hungarian independent party, as premier.

"The conditions of the armistice are inspired by the principles of President Wilson—namely: to render impossible for the enemy to recommence war and to prevent him from profiting by an armistice to withdraw from a difficult military situation. The condition of the battle along our front demonstrates the great value of these terms.

"As it is probable the Austro-Hungarian white flag bearers would wish to confer upon the subject with their chiefs, it is supposed that the response may not be immediate."

Czechs Seize Gun Plant.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The great gun plant of Austria-Hungary at Skoda has been taken possession of by the Czech national committee, according to a Pilsen telegram forwarded by the correspondent of the Matin at Zurich. All the German workmen at the plant were discharged.

Twenty-three Austrian divisions which mutinied and deserted the Italian front are fighting each other, Vienna newspapers declare.

[Each Austrian division is composed of 12,000 men. The twenty-three divisions reported to have mutinied therefore number 276,000 men.]

Form Austrian Soviet.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Nov. 2.—A telegram from Vienna reports the formation of an Austrian provisional soldiers' central committee in the state council hall. Troops have been invited to elect soldiers' committees which in turn will elect a permanent soldiers' central committee.

Prof. Lammasch, the Austrian premier, has informed the president of the state council that he had been empowered to hand over the government so far as it related to German localities to the German-Austrian state council.

To Banish Andrassy.

The Berlin Tageblatt's Vienna correspondent says a German-Austrian cabinet has been formed with Victor Adler, Socialist, as foreign secretary; Cavalry Captain Meyer, minister of war; Dr. Mabaja, Social Democrat, minister of the interior, and Dr. Steinwender, German Nationalist, minister of finance.

Count Julius Andrassy, who became Austro-Hungarian foreign minister Oct. 25, has resigned.

A resolution will be introduced at the next sitting of the national assembly, says a telegram from Vienna, banishing Count Andrassy (Austro-Hungarian foreign minister) from the territory of German Austria on account of his note to President Wilson.

SUPER-WARSHIP SUNK BY 2 MEN IN 'NAVAL TANK'

Austria Dreadnaught Destroyed at Pola by Italians.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The Austrian superdreadnaught Viribus Unitis, the flagship of the Austro-Hungarian fleet at the naval base at Pola, was torpedoed and sunk Friday morning by an Italian "naval tank," which, manned by two officers, succeeded in penetrating the mine field at the entrance of the harbor. An official dispatch from Rome received tonight said it is believed the two officers survived, although they probably were captured by the enemy.

ROME TELLS OF EXPLOIT.

ROME, Nov. 2.—Italian naval forces succeeded in entering the harbor of Pola, the Austrian naval base, Friday morning and sank the Austrian battleship Viribus Unitis, the flagship of the Austro-Hungarian fleet, it is officially announced.

The text of the official announcement reads: "The chief of the naval staff announces that Commander Rossetti and Lieut. Paolucci succeeded in entering the inner harbor of Pola early Friday morning and sank the large battleship Viribus Unitis, flagship of the Austro-Hungarian fleet."

Sent Down by Mine.

VIENNA, Nov. 2, via Basel.—The Austrian navy department in a communication issued today says:

"On Friday morning after the fleet had been surrendered to the Jugo-Slav national committee several Italian navy officers penetrated Pola, placed a mine near the Viribus Unitis, and sank her. A majority of the officers and crew were saved."

VESSEL OF 20,000 TONS.

The destruction of the Viribus Unitis marks the wiping out of three of the four ships of that class, the most powerful in the Austrian navy at the beginning of the war. The Viribus Unitis was torpedoed in the harbor of Pola by a French submarine in December, 1914, but succeeded in reaching her dock.

In a daring raid off the Dalmatian coast last June 9 an Italian light squadron blew up two Austrian dreadnaughts of the Viribus Unitis type. Vienna officially admitted the loss of the Szent Istvan, but admitted no other loss. However, an unnamed ship of the same class was sunk in the harbor of Pola a month earlier.

The Viribus Unitis was a vessel of 20,000 tons and carried twelve twelve inch and twelve five inch guns. Her complement was 1,000 men.

Yank Tank Sinks U-Boat That Blew Up Norsk Ship

New York, Oct. 2.—The German submarine which blew up the Norwegian vessel Stifinder in mid-Atlantic and set its crew adrift in open boats was sunk Oct. 14 by a big American tank vessel. Members of the tanker's crew declared today they sent the U-boat to the bottom after a brisk battle.

GERMANY ALONE AGAINST ALLIES, MARCH ASSERTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—The debacle of Germany's allies is being pressed to completion, Gen. March said today and the events of the last week in the world war have resulted in the concentration of enemy resistance in one nation.

Regimental units identified and located by Gen. March included the One Hundred and Fourteenth engineers with the First army west of the Meuse and the Fifty-second pioneer infantry with the Fifth army corps in the same territory. These are not part of any division.

In reply to questions regarding individual units, Gen. March said the Eighty-ninth division [Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota, Colorado, New Mexico, and Arizona] was last reported in action Oct. 29 between the Argonne and the Meuse.

The Thirty-fifth division [Missouri and Kansas] has not been on the front line since September, although it is attached to the First American army. The Ninety-second is on the line east of the Moselle. Most of the Negroes of this division are from Camp Dodge, but the One Hundred and Eighty-third brigade, a part of the Ninety-second, is from Camp Grant and includes mostly Chicago Negroes. The Thirty-seventh [Ohio] had been on the line in the Vosges, but more recently its headquarters was reported in the Woevre. The Eighty-eighth [North Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, and western Illinois], commanded by Maj. Gen. William Weigel, is on the line in the Belfort sector in Alsace near the Swiss border. The Twenty-sixth [New England] has been in action east of the Meuse.

290,773 CALLED, INCLUDING MEN OF SECOND DRAFT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—Draft calls for the mobilization of 290,773 additional men at army training camps before Nov. 21 were announced tonight by Provost Marshal Gen. Crowder. Between Nov. 11 and 15, it was announced, 253,335 white men physically qualified for general military service, will entrain, making the largest single call issued under the selective service act.

With the assembling of the men provided in these calls at camp, the total number of men inducted into military service under the draft will have passed the 3,000,000 mark; and the number of men in the United States army, in the field or in training, will total more than 4,000,000.

Men who registered Sept. 12 under the act extending draft age limits will make the largest proportion of the November mobilization.

From Illinois the white registrants will be entrained as follows:

ILLINOIS—2,500 to Camp Greenleaf, Ga.; 10,000, Camp MacArthur, Tex.; 2,395, Camp Wadsworth; 1,500, Camp Forrest, Ga.

Four hundred and sixty-five colored registrants from Illinois are called to Camp Grant.

"VICTORY SING"

Entire Nation Asked to Join Celebration on Thanksgiving Day.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Plans for a national "Victory Sing" on the afternoon of Thanksgiving day, when all Americans will be asked to join in singing the same patriotic songs at 4 o'clock, eastern time, were completed here today by the National Council of Women. The council stated that 7,000,000 American women are interested in the project.

Programs will be sent to state, community, and war camp leaders so that the same songs will be sung throughout the country. All theater managers in the United States will also be asked to urge their audiences to sing the national anthem at 4 o'clock.

The demonstration is being arranged under the direction of Mrs. Philip North Moore of St. Louis, president of the council, assisted by the National Federation of Music Clubs, the National Association of Music Teachers, and the National Supervisors' association.

Holland Will Hereafter Bar German Refugees

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 2.—German authorities have been notified by the Dutch government that after today no refugees will be permitted to cross the Belgian-Netherlands frontier.

GERMANS TRY PEACE OFFERS BY AIR ROUTE

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 29.—[By the Associated Press.]—[Delayed.]—Thousands of propaganda leaflets, entitled "The German People Offer Peace," recently have been dropped on and behind the American lines. The circular, which is printed in excellent English, concludes with the following questions:

"Who is to blame if the hitherto undestroyed towns and villages of France and Belgium sink into ashes?"

"Who is to blame if hundreds of thousands of unhappy women and children are driven from their homes to hunger and to suffer from cold?"

The appeal closes with the statement in large type that "the German people offers its hand for peace." It cites the alleged new standpoint of Germany concerning Belgium, Alsace-Lorraine, and submarine warfare, which it calls "the deeds of the new German popular government."

BRITISH TAKE VALENCIENNES; PUSH EASTWARD

Press Germans Back on Brussels and Maubeuge.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Further important gains were made by the British troops east of Valenciennes, Field Marshal Haig reports from headquarters tonight. The village of Marly was captured and British detachments entered St. Saulve.

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN FLANDERS, Nov. 2.—[By the United Press.]—The allies are within thirty miles of Brussels.

The Franco-American drive from the Lys southward along the Scheldt has carried them that close to the Belgian capital, and within less than six miles of Ghent.

Heavy fighting is centering on both sides of Audenarde, which has been occupied by allied forces.

The Anglo-Canadian attack in the Valenciennes region, to the southward, which resulted in the occupation of that important French city this morning, has advanced their lines to within twelve miles of the important fortress city of Maubeuge.

Hard Fighting for Yanks.

WITH THE ALLIED FORCES IN FLANDERS, Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—The fighting which one American detachment encountered yesterday at Spitealsbosschen wood, south east of Waerghem, in Belgium, was probably the hardest it has experienced in the months it has been in France.

This unit of westerners had come from a section of the line where it had seen some bitter engagements, but the major who was leading a battalion which was outflanking the wood on the north and who was wounded, told the Associated Press that the early stages of the battle yesterday were heavier than anything his men had been through.

This forest, which covers a considerable tract, was literally a network of barbed wire entanglements, among which there were great numbers of machine gun nests dominating the American line in front of it.

The Germans evidently had been expecting an attack, for as soon as the drive began many of the little houses along the line sprang into flames set by the boche and the whole district was lighted brilliantly.

Charge Into Hot Fire.

The attack was begun in the darkest hour before dawn and by firing these homesteads the Germans threw the advancing troops out in bold relief, which enabled the machine gunners to operate freely. At the same time the German artillery put down a terrific barrage which continued for hours. Straight through this blaze of light the Yankees charged and began the work of clearing out the machine gun posts.

Into the advancing forces rapid firers poured a vicious fire from concealed positions in the woods. Every farm house and haystack along the way—and there were many—contained its machine gun, which was chattering madly. Each of these had to be surrounded and subdued in turn as the Americans moved forward.

The farmers and their families were still living in houses which the Germans had seized for machine gun posts. Every precaution was taken by the Americans to spare these unfortunate civilians. The houses were surrounded and the Germans taken prisoner or killed.

FRENCH CAPTURE GREAT FOREST OF ARGONNES

Drive German Army Far to Northeast as Yanks Aid.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The Germans are being swept out of the whole of the great forest of the Argonne. The American successes to the east between the Argonne and the Meuse and the steady pressure of the French from the west have caused the enemy to flee rapidly in order to escape being trapped in the pocket in which the great wood lies.

The French, who forced their way across the Aisne river west and south of the forest yesterday, continued their advance today on every part of the front from Attigny to the point where their line joins the left flank of the American line.

Win Nearly Whole Forest.

Tonight the French have driven so far north and east that the Germans are holding only the extreme northeastern corner of the forest of Argonne.

Near Attigny, the French have captured Semuy and have won the southern bank of the Ardennes canal from Semuy to Neuville-et-Day.

Farther south the enemy put up desperate resistance in Vandy wood, on the Alleux plateau and in the defile of Croix-aux-Bois, but they were driven out, and the French line is at Alleux, Quartre-Champs, and Croix-aux-Bois.

Push Far Beyond Longwy.

Farther to the right Longwy and Primat have been captured, and, fighting in the heart of the Argonne forest, the French have pushed beyond Chene Pate, a mile and a quarter to the southeast of Longwy.

The Germans made strong counter attacks during the latter part of the day, but the result was further victories for the French and the capture of a large number of additional prisoners.

BULGARIANS SET UP REPUBLIC AS KING ABDICATES

LONDON, Nov. 2.—King Boris of Bulgaria, who ascended the throne Oct. 3, on the abdication of his father, King Ferdinand, has abdicated and a Bulgarian republic has been established at Tirnova, according to a Central News dispatch from Vienna today.

M. Stambuliniky, who has been chief of the peasants in Bulgaria, at the head of a peasant army of 40,000, is reported to be the republican leader.

All Shayne Furs are Quality Furs, regardless of their price, because

All Shayne Furs bear this mark, by which for 43 years Chicago has known furs of marked distinction.

Shayne Furs cost no more than other good furs, but when they bear this mark you know beyond question that they are of the highest possible quality, and that the price you pay is consistent with their real value.

YANKS PURSUE BEATEN ENEMY IN MOTOR CARS

German Lines Caved on Big Front North of Verdun.

gun mounted above driver's head, filled with fighting men on tiptoes for a scrap roaring northward on a grand hunt for the Huns.

This report from their commander may be given "moving infantry in trucks after retreating enemy, but haven't overtaken him."

Take Men and Cannon.

Today we have taken a large number of prisoners and guns of all calibers. These are in addition to the more than sixty cannon taken by the Americans in their advances on Friday and Saturday. During those days the Americans captured scores of 77s, dozens of 150s, numerous howitzers of various calibers, and hundreds of machine guns.

Vast quantities of ammunition and war material of all kinds also fell into the hands of the Americans.

What has happened is that the German armies have been worn down in bitter battle during the last five weeks, in which the Americans inflicted more than 100,000 losses, including 30,000 unwounded prisoners.

After three weeks of gruelling warfare we hit it strong yesterday morning, meeting the strongest resistance the boche could put up. It was evident that when we began another intense artillery preparation this morning the Germans gave up the job of holding the line and got out of our way. Then the Americans reaped the fruits of the bitter but unsensational battle of the last month and more.

Orders Changed Swiftly.

It was our plan this morning to bring our right and especially our left to the approximate line of Bayonville. Our center corps turned to aid the left corps, only to find the left sweeping ahead. Commands were hurriedly changed and center turned about north.

Our left swept on through Champigneulle, through Bois des Loges, which had been taken and lost seven times and, with the center corps, surrounded the village of the Norgues, where we counted several hundred prisoners and seventy-two machines guns.

Meanwhile the center, starting out just as a heavy cold rain came on, captured Hill 313, finding the resistance so slight it surprised them. Over open fields they moved forward to Fosse, eleven kilometers ahead of yesterday's starting point.

Storming of Buzancy.

Our troops were then on three sides of Buzancy. At noon we stormed this place after brisk artillery preparation, and in forty minutes had taken this not inconsiderable town, capturing orders issued yesterday to the commanding garrison to hold it at all costs.

Further to the east, our troops, which started from the north of Remonville, came into a rather heavy machine gun resistance at Barricourt woods. Withdrawing a bit we gave the Hun a dose of seventy-fives and then cleared the woods. Through this barrier we swept on to Barricourt village on line with Buzancy.

Over to the right, after we had taken Villers, the Germans launched the only counter attack of the day. It gained a hundred yards when our troops on a rebound regained the lost territory and went forward two kilometers. Clery le Petit and Doulcon were taken with little trouble.

Germans Take Away Cannon.

The German artillery was practically negligible today, indicating that the guns had been pulled back a considerable distance and were being pulled back today.

Aviators reported German infantry was being used to drag back the 77s north of Buzancy. Capt. Eddie Rickenbacher, who made an observation trip in the pouring rain late this afternoon, tells of a heavy movement northward, some miles northwest of Buzancy.

Today's advance of the French and Americans means the obliteration of the strong boche salient of the Forest of Boult, where he had been able to hinder the allied advance on the Champagne-Meuse front. Probably tonight no troops will be left in this former Hun stronghold.

Open Way to Sedan.

While it cannot be said tonight where the German line is, full significance of our gain today, without other considerations, may be gathered from the fact that the Stenay-Buzancy railroad line has been taken from the boche, and the long wooded position formed by the forest of Argonne and the forest of Boult to the north/has been broken.

Between the Americans and the Sedan railroad line, the terrain is comparatively easy, there being no high hills to speak of and few woods. In a word, we have broken the German positions north of Verdun. There is a strong belief that the Germans will be driven back to the Sedan line.

However that may be, today's victory speaks for itself, and the Americans tonight are in towns which, for four years, had been in German hands. We have achieved a great victory in the pivotal sector of the whole western front. Our operation is not to be considered as completed, however.

Only One Line Remains.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—To the north of the advancing Americans who have broken through the Germans' strongest lines of resistance, including the Freya position which was shattered Saturday, lies the so-called Meuse line—the enemy's last stronghold in this part of France.

The line in general follows the military crests and railroads eastward from Hirson to Mezieres, Sedan, Mouson, Montmedy, and Longuyon, and then south to Etain. The railroad junctions in the regions of Montmedy and Longuyon are already under the fire of the American big guns.

It is not believed the Germans have an organized system of defenses between the American front and this Meuse line, as they had the greatest confidence that the Freya, Kriemhilde, and other lines could hold in spite of any attacks designed to break them. The so-called Meuse line has the advantage of important railroad junctions connecting it with the main lines direct from Germany by several routes.

The total advance averaged more than two and one-half miles on a fourteen mile front, but was considerably greater at points. Numerous prisoners and heavy guns were taken and the enemy left many ammunition dumps so hastily that they could not be destroyed.

NAVY DIRIGIBLE HUNTS U-BOATS

Blown to Sea When Motors Balk, United States Balloon Men Have a Thrilling Adventure Over the Atlantic Off Coast of France.

First of a series of three special stories by "The Tribune's" special correspondent with the U. S. navy in the European war zone on the subject "Hunting Subs from the Air."

BY FRAZIER HUNT.

HEADQUARTERS UNITED STATES NAVAL AVIATION SERVICE, FRENCH COAST Oct. 1.—The 300 foot United States navy dirigible P4, operating against subs from its base on the French coast, was having trouble with its two twelve cylinder engines that extended like wings from each side of its fifty foot hanging car.

The starboard engine spluttered, coughed, spluttered again, and then quit cold. Twenty seconds later the port engine that had been acting up for an hour repeated the performance of its sister. The altitude instrument read 1,000 feet at this instant.

Pumps Air In.

The P4 was light—light as the deuce—and the second that both 220 horse power engines stopped it rose like a toy balloon in a heavy wind. The skipper opened up his valves and let out gas, "valving gas," they call it professionally, but somehow it still went up. Then he started his small motor to pump cold heavy air into the balloon net, which is a special compartment within the big airship bag itself and used to control the weight of his ship. By valving hydrogen gas from this bag and pumping heavy air into it altitude can be controlled even when the propelling engines are not running.

But P4 had gained another 1,000 feet of altitude and was now 2,000 feet above the sea before sufficient air had been pumped into this ballasting chamber to stop its rapid ascent. So far so good, but the big fight was still to come. A twenty-five mile off shore wind was blowing, and here was the P4 seventy-five miles out to sea, ninety miles from home, with its engines dead and a spanking fine breeze blowing it farther and farther out to sea at the rather startling rate of twenty-five miles an hour.

Wireless Gone.

It was the second time this day that things had gone badly amiss with the P4. Hours before and shortly after it had left its hangar its radio wires, that were dropped from beneath the hanging car, had stuck some way or other and couldn't be lowered. Without these wires hanging down from the car the radio outfit was useless, and this would mean that shore messages as well as those to and from the convoying ships would be all cut off and the value of the P4 decreased 50 per cent.

"The weight that pulls down the wires has been broken off," the skipper argued with his altitude pilot. "I'm going underneath and see if I can fix it."

Works His Way Down.

The altitude pilot, former college boy but now ensign in the United States navy, suggested that one of the mechanics be sent, but the skipper, a lieutenant of the junior grade, United States navy, insisted that he would go himself. So, armed with a monkey wrench and some pliers, he crawled over the side of the hanging car and worked his way down some wires and ropes until he was underneath the car. Tying a monkey wrench to the end of the wires, he straightened out the reel, and in half a minute the radio wires sunk down like a lead at sea. Then he crawled on back to his post forward in the hanging car.

The P-4 had left its hangar at 8:30 o'clock that morning with orders to pick up a north bound coastal convoy, stay with it approximately sixty miles, and then meet a southward bound convoy and bring it down the French coast.

Roughly, if you take a map of France and mark an X every —— miles on the shore line from Brest south to Bordeaux, you will hit approximately either a French or American navy air station of some kind or other.

Cover Much Ground.

P4 and its sister dirigibles, however, must cover much more ground and patrol and convoy along the coast in front of their stations for some hundred miles, going out to sea roughly the same distance. All convoys operating along the coast and all troop ships coming from America are under their watchful eyes, and it is only in bad weather that the destroyers are not aided by these great ships of the air.

It is a real service they are giving in the wonderful game of sub hunting, too. (Confidential British admiralty reports, it is said, show that of the known U-boat sinkings almost 25 per cent are accredited officially to the aircraft.) But to get back to P4.

It had taken 150 bluejackets this morning to take it out of its great stall, and once outside it strained at its ropes like some young colt anxious to break away and prance around a bit.

Half way up the sides of these gas bags were two wings called altitude planes that could be pointed to send it up or down as its pilot chose. In its stern, in exactly the same position as a ship's rudder, was the rudder that gave it direction. And suspended beneath the center of the ship, hanging like a hammock, was its car, some fifty feet long, six feet high, and five feet wide. It was covered with black cloth and had portholes like a sea ship.

In this fifty foot car ten men worked. Forward in the bow was a heavy caliber, rapid fire cannon. Directly behind was the ship's bridge, raised and open. Here the skipper gave his orders and ran his ship.

Leaving the bridge and stepping down into the inclosed part of the car one passed from one tiny compartment to another. First was a chart and navigating room where the maps were kept. Then came an engine room, where a small gas engine that ran the radio dynamo and a pump that froced air into the ballonnet bag was installed. Next came the storage room, where tanks of gasoline and two water ballast tanks were stored. Then the section where six great bombs were balanced ready to be dropped on the tail of a U-boat by the simple pull of a lever from the bridge. Next was the dinkiest little radio room imaginable. Then one crawled from the inclosed part out into a little after-deck where a machine gun was mounted—all crowded nicely into a car that was fifty feet long and less than 5x6 feet square.

Leaves the Ground.

Stretching out from the center of the car and a little above the top were two arms and in the palm of each iron hand was a 220 horse power twelve cylinder engine with great four blade propellers that could drive P4 through the air at fifty miles and more an hour.

In half an hour P4 had crossed out to sea, pointed fifteen miles down the coast, and sighted the long line of ships that she was to help convoy. Far below they looked like toy boats such as children might play with in city ponds. They seemed unreal, almost as if they had come out of some dream of childhood.

Circles the Convoy.

Gracefully P4 pointed down until she had gained her regulation altitude. Then she took up her long and tiresome trail of eternally circling the convoy. Every man on the bridge and the lookout in the stern kept his eyes glued on the sea, searching for some sign of a sub. Had one showed itself—under ordinary water conditions they cannot be seen from above when they are submerged more than ten feet—instantly the ship would have gotten over it and dropped bombs.

But this day the P4 did not sight a sub and, excepting the skipper's expedition under his car to fix the radio wires, there was nothing but the humdrum circling up and down and around the convoy. Six hours this had gone on and then P4 swung away and pointed farther out to sea to pick up her south bound convoy. Now it was that her engines had begun working badly.

Repair the Motors.

Without even waiting for an order the two machinist mates crawled up to the bridge and then on top the car. A runway plank stretched down the center and then right angles ran out to the engines. In ten seconds they had made their way out, one on each side, and started repairing their motors. They didn't have anything special to stand on or hang on to, so they wrapped their legs in wires and hung on by their toes, leaning far out over the outside of their engines with nothing but 2,000 feet of air between themselves and the ocean.

Ten, twenty, thirty minutes they worked, and then the starboard engines started up. The skipper could at least control her now and turned her in the direction of his rendezvous with the convoy. It was hard going against the wind, but he got along. All the time the second mechanic was working bravely away on his engine.

Engines Start.

Half an hour later, with spark plugs changed and a dozen things gone over, this engine started. Both were humming loudly now and the great ship answered to the slightest touch of the altitude or direction levers. A few minutes later they sighted the southbound convoy and resumed the work of circling the fleet.

It was dusk when the skipper left them and pointed the nose of his ship toward home. He had been gone almost twelve hours, and he and his crew were tired and worn from the constant strain. They had eaten a cold lunch on board, but they had been denied the soothing relaxation from a smoke.

Turn Off Power.

Away off in the distance a thousand feet below them they picked up the lights of the landing field. Nearing it they "weighed off," stopping their engines and testing the buoyancy of the ship. In order to make the landing she must be almost the exact weight of the air, so that she could be pulled to the earth gently and slowly.

A bugle sounded below and bluejackets came tumbling from their warm quarters to the landing field. Now the great ship, with her green and red starboard and port lights blinking far up in the sky, circles once over the field, a white arrow pointing the direction that she is to take when coming down.

Again she passes over the landing field, now only three or four hundred feet above the earth, and then suddenly the great anchor rope is dropped. A half hundred sailors grab it, run the end through a pulley anchored deep in the earth, and then slowly the big ship is pulled down.

The second article of this series will be published in the near future.

CHICAGO FLYER MISSING AFTER FIGHT WITH HUN

Last Seen Chasing Foe Plane Down Behind Lines.

Lieut. William Hugh Shearman of the Seventeenth United States aero squadron was on a mission thirty miles behind the German lines when attacked by a group of Hun chasse planes. In the fight that ensued he engaged one of the enemy, and it fled. He gave chase, and the last his comrades saw of him he was pursuing it downward.

That was on Aug. 14 last. Nothing was heard from him until yesterday, when his mother, Mrs. C. P. Shearman of 5489 Cornell avenue, was notified by the American Red Cross that he was in a German prison hospital badly wounded. He was with Montgomery Ward & Co. before joining the service.

Blue Star Turns to Gold.

One of the five service stars in the home of Albert James Ward, 513 Fullerton parkway, is to be changed to gold for Sergt. Oliver G. Ward, headquarters company, One Hundred and Eighth ammunition train, killed in action Oct. 8. Details of his death were obtained in a letter to the father from Maj. Clyde C. Miner of the train.

Jacob Hellmann of 4032 North Greenview avenue, secretary of The Hub, announced last night that he had received notification from the war department that his son, Private Fred W. Hellmann, battery A, One Hundred and Twenty-second field artillery, had been killed in action. He was graduated from the Lane Technical High school with the class of 1915.

Former Reporter Dies.

Lieut. Gordon R. Hall, Three Hundred and Eighth field artillery, died of wounds received in action, the war department yesterday notified his parents, Lewis T. and Harriett Hall of 11 West Walton place. He was formerly a reporter on the Daily News.

Three other Chicagoans reported by relatives as killed in action are Private George W. Toon, One Hundred and Sixtieth Canadian infantry, 1415 East Sixty-first place; Private William Urban, company B, One Hundred and Eighth field signal battalion, of 2057 Evergreen avenue; Private Henry S. Bockman, company K, One Hundred and Twenty-ninth infantry, 2812 East Seventy-sixth street.

A week after Mrs. Florence A. Sherlock of 112 North Kedzie avenue had received a card from her husband, Private Matthew J. Sherlock, First company, ordnance detachment, announcing his safe arrival overseas, she received a telegram notifying her he had died en route of pneumonia.

Dies in London Hospital.

Private Arthur E. Penberthy of the Three Hundred and Forty-third infantry medical detachment died at a London hospital, relatives were notified yesterday. He lived at 1927 Estes avenue.

"I got a couple of Dutchmen before they got me," writes Private Joseph David, Company H, Eighteenth infantry, in a letter notifying his mother, Mrs. Josephine David of 5516 West Twenty-fourth place, Cicero, that he had been wounded slightly by machine gun fire.

Other Chicagoans reported unofficially as wounded or gassed are Private C. M. Hynek, Fifty-fifth company, Fifth United States marines, 74[illegible] North Latrobe avenue; Private Harry Bedlick, Company B, One Hundred and Twenty-third machine gun battalion, 1709 North Parkside avenue; Lieut. John Lovell, infantry, 3249 North Racine avenue, and Lieut. Samuel R. Willey, One Hundred and Ninth field artillery, 1721 East Sixty-seventh street.

Sanborn Men Wounded.

Several of Col. Joseph B. Sanborn's One Hundred and Thirty-first infantry are listed in the official casualties, as wounded, degree undetermined. They are: Sergt. Frank J. Miller, Company F, who has been wounded now four times 6127 Evans avenue; Privates Hugh Keable, Company M, 5518 Throop street; Walter E. Grimes, Company D, 6226 North Paulina street; Clarence O. Pratt Company M, 2129 Belle Plaine avenue; Edward I. Schater, Company K 1327 South Homan avenue, and Archie Campbell, Company D, 1754 Park avenue.

Private William J. Butler, listed as died of disease, was with the headquarters company, Three Hundred and Sixteenth field artillery. He lived at 3625 Lexington avenue.

Other Chicagoans in the official list wounded, degree undetermined, are: Private Albert O. Abraham, Company K, One Hundred and Third infantry, 2265 West Fifty-first street Private Tony Spiras, Company C, Three Hundred and Forty-fourth infantry, 2100 South Halsted street, and Corporal Emil Friedman, Company M, One Hundred and Thirty-second infantry, 1639 West Twenty-first street.

Son Killed in Action.

Mrs. Philomena Collins of 1831 Eddy street was notified that her son, Private William V. Collins, company A, One Hundred and Tenth engineers, was killed in action. She has another son in the service, Private Edward Collins, pioneer regiment, at Camp Sevier, South Carolina.

Other deaths reported to THE TRIBUNE were:

Private Lawrence Stone, company A, Three Hundred and Forty-seventh infantry, 4931 Vincennes avenue; George J. Goodwin battery F, Three Hundred and Thirty-third field artillery; Sergt. Bernhard Wolff U. S. engineer corps, 3635 North Albany avenue; Corporal Irvin S. Civis, battery B Thirty-ninth field artillery, 3303 Grenshaw avenue, and Private Martin Fennelly, Forty-fourth Canadian battalion.

GIRL RUNS DOWN ROBBER; FAINTS AS HE'S CAUGHT

Fifth Attempt to Rob Cafeteria Cashier Brings Arrest.

Four times in the last few months a well dressed young man has entered a cafeteria on Wabash avenue, each time in the evening just before the closing hour, grabbed the money box, and fled. Last night Charles Horvath, alias Charles Horwett, was captured and almost beaten to death by a crowd.

Miss Madeline Roche, cashier, was just closing up her work and counting her money last night in the Ontra cafeteria at 231 South Wabash avenue when Horvath entered and asked for a phone slug. He stood around a minute or two and then offered the girl a $5 bill in payment for a cigar.

She opened the "money box" to get out the change and as she did so he bounded over the counter and seized it. With the box in his hands he jumped back, dashed out of the door and ran south to the Adams street elevated station.

Suddenly he doubled back, Miss Roche in pursuit, screaming, and a crowd quickly gathered. Almost in front of the cafeteria he was tripped up by a man. Money box and money flew from his grasp. Men began to beat and kick him.

Miss Roche fainted and the police arrived. The girl cashier and the $550 the man had grabbed were carried into the cafeteria. The robber was taken to the central station and then to the Iroquois Memorial hospital, where seven stitches were taken in his head and he was otherwise repaired.

The police said last night that they believed he is the same man who has been committing all of the Wabash avenue cafetearia robberies.

Horvath gave his address as 6343 North Elizabeth avenue and said he had a wife and two children. He did not have a registration card.

The prisoner pleaded he was a musician, whom the influenza epidemic had deprived of occupation and that he turned to robbery to feed a wife and two children.

'YELLOW KID' AT LAST IS FOUND GUILTY OF FRAUD

Immune for Years, Is Sentenced to Joliet and Fined.

The impossible has happened. Joseph Weil, the "Yellow Kid," so-called ace of con men, was convicted by a jury in Judge Guerin's court late yesterday, sentenced to three years in the penitentiary, and fined $2,000. He was charged with securing $3,600 from George Larson, a saloonkeeper, by means of a fake prize fight.

John D. Snarley, on trial with Weil as a co-conspirator, was also found guilty, but was let off with a fine of $100. Mrs. Weil, bedecked in furs and diamonds, arrived shortly after the conviction was announced, coming to court in her electric car, and signed a $25,000 bond for her husband.

Wife Goes on Bond.

Mrs. Weil scheduled for the bond an eighteen apartment building at Columbia and Lakewood avenues, which she said she bought a year ago. Mrs. Weil gave its value at $125,000, adding that there was a $45,000 mortgage on it.

"What is the monthly rental?" asked the court.

"Twelve hundred dollars," she replied.

"How much rent do you get for an apartment?"

"From $47.50 to $75 a month," she said.

Wouldn't Run Away.

Everett Jennings, attorney for Weil, told the court that there was no danger of his client trying to run away. Jennings added:

"He is already out on other bonds totaling $350,000."

When Weil was recently arrested on charge of swindling a Wyoming banker for $6,000 Mrs. Weil scheduled for bond her home at 1133 Pratt avenue, valued at $45,000.

Weil's conviction is the third in a long career as a confidence man. In 1911 he went to Joliet and spent eleven months there before he was paroled. His conviction yesterday was based on a framed up prize fight executed near Logansport, Ind. in 1915.

Move a New Trial.

Motion for a new trial was made at once last night, and Judge Guerin set Nov. 23 as the date for the hearing. Weil was prosecuted by Assistant State's Attorneys John Higgins and Justin McCarthy. They had prepared an entirely different case against Weil, and it was thought that he had executed a clever coup when he forced them to try him on the old charge, an unprepared case, on the ground that it was filed first and so must be disposed of first.

FINED FOR FOOLISH TALK.

Rudolph Otto, 10810 Green Bay avenue, was fined in South Chicago yesterday for saying that all reports about Germany's collapse are newspaper lies.

NOW U. S. VOTER BOMBS TRENCH OF CONGRESS

Tuesday's Forecast Is for G. O. P. House, Democratic Senate.

cies, particularly in the far west, which supported Mr. Wilson in 1916, "because he kept us out of war."

Evidence is not wanting, however, that the president's partisan plea has fallen upon deaf ears in many of these agricultural constituencies which have observed the results of the south in the saddle, with the price of wheat held down by governmental control while the price of cotton has gone soaring, with the southern Democrats in control of congress successfully defeating every move toward the regulation of the price of the great southern staple.

IN THE MIDDLE WEST

Four loyalty contests in as many districts feature the congressional campaign in Iowa. Representative Hull, who voted against preparedness, against war, and against the draft; Representative Haugen, who voted against war; Representative Sweet, who voted against preparedness, and Representative Ramseyer, who voted against preparedness and against the draft, all Republicans, are fighting for their political lives. Hull is opposed by Col. Ely of Davenport, Sweet by Capt. Clark of Waterloo, and Ramseyer by Sergt. McCash of Bloomfield, all these Democratic candidates being officers in the army. Haugen is opposed by Joseph Campbell of Charles City, Democrat.

Fight in Eleventh Iowa.

There is a bitter fight in the Eleventh district, which is usually disputed territory, between W. D. Boies, Republican, and former Congressman Steele, Democrat, who voted against preparedness legislation. While the Democrats are supremely confident of winning these contests because of the issues involved, there is no gainsaying the fact that Mr. Wilson's action in reconvening politics has injured Democratic chances of success and solidified the Republicans in this normally Republican state. The reëlection of Senator Kenyon, Republican, is a foregone conclusion.

Newberry by 40,000.

Unbiased estimates from Michigan indicate the election of Commander Newberry, Republican, to the senate over Henry Ford, Democrat, by at least 40,000 majority. There is every evidence that the president's selection of Mr. Ford and partisan appeal for a Democratic majority in congress have failed to budge this banner Republican state and birthplace of the Republican party from its moorings.

While the Third, Fifth, and Thirteenth congressional districts, now represented by Republicans, furnish close contests, the Republican leaders say they have reason to expect the return of a solid Republican delegation from Michigan to congress. Representative Doremus, Democrat, who has represented the First district several years, but who voted against preparedness, is in danger, and in the Second district Earl Michiner, Republican, is regarded as practically certain to defeat Representative Beakes, Democrat, who also voted against preparedness.

Odd Situation in Minnesota.

Although the reëlection of Senator Nelson, Republican, in Minnesota, is regarded generally as a foregone conclusion, the campaign suddenly has assumed a new aspect, involving charges of breach of faith against the Democrats. In view of the loyalty and efficient public service of Senator Nelson the Democrats perceived no chance to beat him and several months ago started out to make political capital out of indorsement of a Republican as a display of war time nonpartisanship. With the approval of the Wilson administration Democratic National Committeeman Lynch and his associates caused the Minnesota Democrats to refrain from nominating a candidate against Senator Nelson.

W. G. Calderhead was nominated, however, as a Nationalist, and is now reputed to be the candidate of Townley's Nonpartisan league. Calderhead is now circulating an appeal for his election over Nelson addressed to John Lind by the Democratic national committee.

Democratic Treachery.

The circular, which is headed, "Wilson administration supports Calderhead for U. S. Senator," reads:

"Hon. John Lind, New York Life Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.: The Democratic national committee strongly indorses the candidacy of Hon. W. G. Calderhead for the United States senate and regards his election as of the utmost importance, not only in the matter of supporting President Wilson's conduct of the war, but also for the purpose of coöperating in the reconstruction which will follow cessation of hostilities.

"Democratic National Committee."

Supporters of Senator Nelson now charge that the Democrats withheld opposition when politics was adjourned by the president, but violated the armistice and renewed hostilities as soon as the president reconvened politics and called for the return of his party majority to congress.

Even James Hamilton Lewis, who claims confidential relations with the White House and his party leaders generally, does not seem to have been advised of this reversal of attitude toward Nelson, for Senator Lewis recently has been attempting to soften the public impression of the president's partisanship by claiming that the administration had indorsed a number of Republicans, including Nelson.

Kansas Has Some Close Fights.

Democratic leaders concede the election of Gov. Capper of Kansas to the senate. The Republicans expect to gain four house seats in this state, but the contests in all these districts are close. Representatives Anthony and Campbell, Republicans, appear to be assured of reëlection, while the Democratic incumbents, Shouse and Doolittle, seem to have the advantage of their Republican opponents despite the votes of these Democrats against preparedness in the last congress. Both have hard fights on their hands. Congressman Little, Republican, who voted against preparedness, against war, and against the draft, is up against a hard contest. The result is doubtful in three other districts, the Democratic representatives of which, Helvering, Connelly, and Ayres, voted against preparedness and Connelly voted against war.

Gov. Capper issued this statement tonight:

"President Wilson's partisan appeal will increase the Republican majority in Kansas at least 25,000 and makes certain the election of a solid Republican delegation to congress. I have never seen conditions in this state more favorable for Republican success."

Close in Ohio and Indiana.

Ohio is one of the most doubtful states. The prohibition issue has confused the campaign, but the Republicans expect gains. Ex-Senator Dick, Republican, is expected to be elected in a district formerly Democratic, while Representative Brumbaugh, Democrat, probably will be defeated in the Columbus district. Representative Key, Democrat, and Representative McCulloch, Republican, are in districts classed as doubtful. The Democrats are claiming a chance to defeat Representative Longworth, Republican.

Indiana presents one of the most complicated situations. There are no less than six districts in the state that will be lost or won on a small margin. Representative Barnhart, Democrat, is almost sure of defeat in the Thirteenth, and Representative Bland, Republican, is at a disadvantage in the Second. The districts now represented by Representatives Cox, Democrat; Sanders, Vestal, and Fairfield, all Republicans, are close, with the incumbents having the better chance of victory.

IN THE FAR WEST

The only contests in California are in the Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth districts, in which Republican victories are predicted. The Republican leaders, however, are feeling a bit shaky about the return of Congressman Hayes, Republican, in the Eighth district. Hayes voted against war and against the conscription amendment and has a hard fight on his hand. In the Ninth, however, the Republicans have the better of the argument against Congressman Randall, Prohibitionist, who also voted against war and against the draft.

President Wilson's appeal for the return of a Democratic congress is the chief stock in trade of the supporters of ex-Gov. West, Democrat, for senator from Oregon. Unless, therefore, the president should influence a large number of Republicans to desert their party Senator McNary, Republican, will be reëlected. The only house contest is for the seat of Congressman McArthur, Republican, whose reëlection is expected with all the more confidence because of divided opposition.

Boomerang in South Dakota.

There is a hot battle raging in South Dakota between Senator Sterling, Republican, and O. V. Rinehart, Democrat. The Nonpartisan league has upset all calculations. The Democratic organization has attempted to lift the Nonpartisan leaguers for Rinehart by indorsing the Nonpartisan state ticket. This looked formidable for Senator Sterling, who has been too much prowar to suit many of the leaguers, but the action of the Democratic organization has developed a Democratic bolt which may prove the senator's salvation. The contest is regarded as extremely close.

Congressman Johnson, Republican, who voted against war but joined the army and is now in a hospital in France recovering from wounds received in action, will have a walkaway for reëlection. In the other two districts the result is uncertain.

Miss Rankin Against Walsh.

The reëlection of Senator Walsh of Montana is indicated by unbiased reports, but the contest is close and likely to turn on a few hundred votes. Representative Jeannette Rankin, running as an independent, is an unknown quantity in the cavass, but she has been conducting an active campaign. Whether, however, she will draw more votes from Walsh than from Landstrum, the Republican candidate, is all a matter of speculation. Congressman Evans, Democrat, is regarded a probable winner in the First district despite opposition to preparedness legislation, and in the Second district the chances favor Reddick, the Republican candidate.

Senator Borah is expected to win reëlection in Idaho, but by a greatly reduced margin, as a result of the opposition of the suffragists to his vote against the Anthony amendment and of his flirtations with the Nonpartisan league. Fred Dubois has announced that the president wants Senator Borah and Senator Nugent, Democrat, returned to the senate, but the connection of Nugent with the Nonpartisan league has cost him much popularity and the betting is 100 to 70 in favor of the election of Frank R. Gooding, Nugent's Republican opponent.

EAST AND SOUTH

Senator John W. Weeks, Republican, is expected by both parties to win reëlection in the normally Republican state of Massachusetts, although the result may be close for the reason that Thomas W. Lawson of frenzied finance fame is running as an independent and enlivening the campaign with some of his spectacular advertising stunts, while the woman suffrage organizations are doing their best to defeat Weeks because of his vote against the Susan B. Anthony constitutional amendment. The Democratic candidate is former Gov. David I. Walsh.

The Republicans expect to win two congressmen in Massachusetts, defeating Representative Phelan, Democrat, in the Seventh district, who has incurred the displeasure of union labor, and Richard Olney II., in the Fourteenth, a normally Republican district. There is also a strong possibility of a Republican gain in the Tenth district, where the Democrats are split between ex-Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston and Representative Tague, who was defeated by Fitzgerald for the Democratic nomination by fifty votes. The Democrats are not counting on any gains in the house contests in Massachusetts.

New Hampshire Senatorial Fight.

New Hampshire is reckoned a doubtful state on the senatorship, but the chances appear to favor the election of Gov. Keyes, Republican, to the long term. The Democrats have had a strong hold on this state ever since 1912, and it is chiefly their recent successes which inspire the hope that they can hold the seat in the senate now occupied by Senator Hollis, Democrat, and capture the seat made vacant by the death of Senator Gallinger, Republican. The hottest contest is between George H. Moses, Republican, and John B. Jameson, Democrat, for the short term to fill the Gallinger vacancy, and the Democrats evince the utmost confidence of winning this fight because of open declarations against Moses by progressive Republicans. The Republican congressmen will be returned.

Wilson's Home State.

President Wilson has invoked tremendous influence in the effort to carry his own state, New Jersey, for the Democratic ticket, but with prospect of indifferent success. Gov. Edge, Republican, Democratic leaders concede, will win the long term senatorship. Senator David Baird, Republican, is having a hard fight to retain his seat in the upper house the remainder of this congress, chiefly because of the organized opposition of the suffragists, whom he displeased by voting against the Anthony amendment. The most the Democrats can hope to accomplish, apparently, is the defeat of Baird, and Republicans are confident that the head of the Republican ticket will pull him through. Both Republicans and Democrats are claiming the prospective gain of one seat in the house delegation.

Outlook in Pennsylvania.

From Pennsylvania come reports that the president's partisan appeal for the continuation of his fellow Democrats in control of congress has proved a boomerang and that the net effect will be the capture by the Republicans of four or five seats now held by Democrats. The factional fight between the Palmer-McCormick and Bonniwell wings of the Democratic party in this state also will have a weakening effect on the chances of administration victory.

Rhode Island is in the doubtful list this year, with all indications favoring the election of Congressman O'Shaughnessy, Democrat, to the senate, over Senator Colt, Republican, who has incurred the bitter opposition of union labor. Cabinet officers and other high officials have stumped the state for O'Shaughnessy, who is extremely popular, and the president has aided with telegrams indorsing the Democratic candidate. No gain for either party is indicated in the contests for the house.

Factions in Delaware.

Senator Saulsbury, Democrat, is being vigorously opposed in Delaware, and factional troubles have added to his difficulties. The Republicans are claiming the state, but it is believed that Saulsbury will be returned to the senate.

West Virginia is a mystery state. Knowing that both the senatorial candidates are well-to-do, the national and congressional committees have kept out of the state and are leaving the fight more or less to local issues. Although the state is normally Republican, the Democratic senatorial candidate, Col. Clarence W. Watson, is putting up a strong fight from a long distance, being in France. The Republican candidate is Stephen B. Elkins, who was senater for a few weeks following the death of his father while in the senate.

Republican Chance in Kentucky.

Republican strength in Kentucky has increased to such an extent of late that there is deemed to be a favorable chance of electing a Republican senator despite the apparent advantage held by Gov. Stanley, the Democratic candidate.

Stanely has been attacked chiefly because he vetoed a bill to abolish the teaching of German in the public schools and the governor has submitted as a defense the arguments put forth by United States Commissioner of Education Claxton for the need of knowledge of the German language, whatever the prejudices aroused by the war.

OTHER ISSUES

In addition to the congressional election, which involves the selection of forty senators and 435 representatives, full state tickets including governor will be elected in twenty-eight states. There are hot contests over the governorship in many of these states, notably New York, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska and Wisconsin. Gov. Whitman is up against a desperate fight for reëlection in New York, his Democratic opponent being Al Smith, who though a Tammany man has received tremendous aid from the Wilson administration. Both parties claim victory.

Liquor Up in Six States.

In six states there will be voting on the liquor question, and in only one, South Dakota, will woman's suffrage be a factor.

Colorado and Washington will vote on amendments to their present liquor laws to make these states "bone dry." Wyoming will pass upon the proposition to forbid liquor except for scientific and industrial uses, and Utah seeks to make minor changes in its prohibition statute. Ohio will vote on a proposition to prohibit the sale or manufacture of intoxicants as a beverage. California will give its voters a chance to choose between a "bone dry" amendment and one prohibiting all liquors except light wines and wiping out all saloons.

California and Maryland will also vote on amendments giving soldiers and sailors the right to vote outside the state.

SHRAPNEL

Miss Ruth I. Ure, daughter of John Ure of 1750 Birchwood avenue, and Lieut. J. A. Maloney were married yesterday morning in St. Jerome's church. A nuptial high mass was the climax to a military wedding. Lieut. Maloney was here on a furlough. The young couple departed for Texas last night.

Maj. Theodore S. Proxmire of the United States army medical corps, in civilian life a physician of Lake Forest, has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel, in command of the United States army general hospital at Fort Sheridan, according to announcement made yesterday from Washington. The institution is to be a reconstruction hospital and the first quota of patients is expected to arrive this week.

THREE THOUSAND DEAD IN WISCONSIN.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 2.—The death toll in Wisconsin during October as the result of influenza is closely estimated at 3,000, according to state health authorities.

Milwaukee Stage Coach to Lead Ordinance Parade

Dug from obscurity for the occasion, the old stage coach that used to run to Milwaukee in the days before electric cars, autos, and airplanes, will lead a parade in Jefferson Park this afternoon. The parade, in favor of the traction ordinance, will start at 2 o'clock at Higgins and Milwaukee avenues. Many autos will be in line. The affair is being held by the Jefferson Improvement association.

SPLIT CONGRESS IS THE FORECAST OF N. Y. HERALD

Independent Paper Gives House to G. O. P., but Not the Senate.

New York, Nov. 2.—[Special.]—The New York Herald (independent) has conducted an extensive canvass of the country on congress and in a copyrighted article tomorrow morning will say:

"The Herald's political canvass of the country indicates that in the elections to be held next Tuesday the Democrats will retain control of the senate by a majority of four and that the Republicans will gain control of the house of representatives by a majority of twenty-three.

"The Democrats at present have a majority of eight in the senate and they now control the house by a plurality of seven.

Forecast as to Congress.

"The next congress, as foreshadowed by the Herald's reports from every state and congressional district, will stand as follows:

"Senate—Democrats, 50; Republicans, 46.

"House—Democrats, 206; Republicans, 229.

"In the eleventh hour telegrams that have reached the Herald from all over the nation, it is made clear that the appeal of President Wilson for the election of a Democratic senate and house, merely upon the ground that it will help him in carrying out his war and peace program, with the suggestion that a Republican congress would interfere with a proper settlement with Germany, and reconstruction after the war, is everywhere the chief topic of discussion.

Has Aroused Republicans.

"The principal effect of the president's appeal has been to make the Republicans 'fighting mad,' and in every section they are going to make the best showing they can. Before the appeal of Mr. Wilson was issued there was Republican apathy in many congressional districts. It is now apparent that Republicans feel that their loyalty has been unjustly impugned, and that politics 'without gloves' has been 'reconvened,' not by them but by Mr. Wilson.

"On the other hand, the Democrats think in many instances that the appeal of the president will help their candidates."

Forecasts McCormick Victory.

The Herald's report of its poll goes on to predict the election of Medill McCormick for senator from Illinois and of Commander Newberry over Henry Ford in Michigan.

People, Not President, to Decide, M'Cormick Tells His Audience

Medill McCormick's campaign was closed last night with a speech that he made to a representative Chicago audience at the Blackstone theater. Mr. McCormick said this:

"It was by the vote of the people of Illinois I was nominated and elected to congress and by their votes that I was nominated for the senate. It will be they who will elect their own senator. According to my judgment and my duty to them I will be guided in the future, as in the past, and not by the voices of Mr. Kitchin, or Mr. Wilson, or Mr. Dent."

Mr. McCormick spoke from the same platform with United States Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, who was the permanent chairman of the last Republican national convention. Charles S. Deneen, former governor of Illinois, presided over the meeting.

Says Campaign Is Unique.

Mr. McCormick in his final speech of the campaign said:

"We are come to the end of a campaign unique in our history. A few weeks ago there was little thought and less talk of politics. Men and women were intent upon the immediate issue of victory and confident that, whatever political differences divided their representatives in congress, the honor of the country was safe in their hands. The people were little disposed to listen to partisan arguments.

"Then it was that the man who, through the presidential office, is the spokesman for America, became the spokesman for the Democratic party. Mr. Wilson asks the country to defeat Republicans who have voted for suffrage and to elect Democrats who opposed it. In the same fashion Mr. Wilson seeks the defeat of men, because they are Republicans, who have supported measures like the draft bill, essential to the winning of the war, and he asks the election of Democrats who, like Mr. Kitchin and Speaker Clark, who have spoken and voted against the war and against the draft.

Fit to Die for Nation.

"A friend tells me of an acquaintance who Saturday a week ago came to his office and there told him of his son killed in France. 'My boy,' said he, 'was shot and died in France. He was as out and out a Republican as his grandfather and his father. He was fit to die for America but not fit to represent America in congress, according to Mr. Wilson.'

"We have been appropriating the public moneys at the rate of $30,000,000,000 a year! The present congress is about to levy taxes amounting to seven billion a year! The chairmen of most of the committees which appropriate public moneys are from a single southern section of the country. The chairman of the ways and means committee in the house of representatives is a charming gentleman from South Carolina, and of the finance committee in the senate a studious veteran from South Carolina. Now comes the secretary of the navy from North Carolina to say as you have read in the newspapers that we here are American junkers, that we of these great industrial states are profiteers.

South Is Responsible.

"If there be manufacturing profiteers in these states, among which Illinois is conspicuous, it is because the revenue law devised in the treasury department and reported by Mr. Kitchin of South Carolina failed to reach them.

"It is not we who have raised the sectional issue; it is not of our creation; it was brought into being by the sectional domination of congress and the sectional discrimination shown by the administration in locating a great and disproportionate number of cantonments in one part of the country, and in placing a disproportionate number of war orders in one part of the country.

Tells of Cotton.

"The amiable secretary of the navy says that we are profiteers; we, the wheat from whose fields is sold at a price fixed by presidential decree, while that of cotton has soared over 500 per cent and may yet go higher.

"We want it a national and not a sectional economic system, based on the principle of protection for American industry. Have we forgotten the depression which President Wilson called psychological and which fell upon the country like a plague in the months of 1914 before the war broke out, and so by its bloody hands raised a barrier of protection for American industry?

Hard Times Before War.

"Before the war broke out in August, 1914, the furnaces in our steel mills were cold; our spindles were quiet; our forges were silent; merchants were looking for customers, and workmen—300,000 of them idle in Chicago alone—were looking for jobs. Unhappily, peace must bring with it an economic shock. We are as unready for it as we were unready for war, although its problems are more delicate and complex than were those of raising a great army. The new congress will meet in the autumn of 1919. We shall have to make ready for peace. The war will be over before we begin our labors in the new congress. It was by the votes of the people of Illinois I was nominated and elected to congress, and by their votes that I was nominated for the senate. It will be they who will elect their own senator. According to my judgment and my duty to them I will be guided in the future as in the past rather than by the voices of Mr. Kitchin, or Mr. Wilson, or Mr. Dent."

President Doubts Confidence.

Senator Harding said:

"Like an exploding mine, tunneled beneath a surface aglow with love for country, the president's partisan letter demanding a partisan congress to serve him and his administration, not our nation and our cause, has rended our confidence, and imperiled our concord. It was the first assault on political liberty, the first indictment charging disloyalty in political devotion, in the history of the republic.

"If the president had omitted the challenge of patriotism, if he had not alleged war embarrassment, we would less complain. To say we question his plans for peace and the vitally necessary restoration which must follow is quite the truth. We want congress to control. That was the intent of the founding fathers. If congress is to be a mere rubber stamping agency, if members of house and senate are to be mere place holders, shouting in the darkness that 'the king can do no wrong'—as the startling proposal of Senator Lewis suggested—republic is a failure, and congressmen ought to be sent from Washington to work or fight. This is no time to coddle the nonessentials."

3,800 Illinois Draft Men Ordered to Entrain Nov. 11

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 2.—Orders for 3,800 selective service men from northern Illinois, including Chicago, to entrain beginning Nov. 11 were issued today.

G. O. P. WINDS UP CAMPAIGN; FOES PUT ON SPEED

The Republican county campaign is finished. The two days of campaign oratory concluded with the meetings last night. There are to be organization meetings in some wards today and in all the rest of the wards tomorrow. The Republican managers have put it up to the voters Tuesday.

Senator Lewis is not through. He will be busy campaigning today on a split-second schedule accompanied by Clarence S. Darrow, who is assisting Senator Lewis in his campaign.

"Keep on campaigning up to the moment that the polls open. The tide is turning our way rapidly. Get out every possible vote and make it a landslide, not only in Cook county but in Illinois. Show Wilson that the state of Lincoln, Douglas, Grant, and Logan is patriotic to the core."

That was the message sent from Democratic headquarters in the Hotel Sherman yesterday to the workers in the wards by James M. Dailey, chairman of the managing committee of the Democratic party of Cook county.

To make the order effective the Democrats today will hold no less than seventeen massmeetings in all parts of the city and have billed a dozen more for tomorrow night, thus breaking all precedents or former political campaigns. Of the meetings today seven will be addressed by Senator Lewis and Mr. Darrow.

These meetings will be held as follows:

2:30 p. m.—Eleventh ward, Pilsen hall, 1810 South Ashland avenue.

3 p. m.—Fourth ward, Liberty hall, Thirtieth street and Union avenue.

3 p. m.—Twelfth ward, Sokol Chicago hall, 2345 South Kedzie avenue.

3 p. m., Thirty-fourth ward—Theo. Herzl school, Douglas boulevard and Ridgeway avenue.

4 p. m., Twenty-eighth ward—St. Hedwig's hall, Lyndale and Hamilton avenues.

8 p. m., Sixteenth ward—Schoenhofen's hall, Milwaukee and Ashland avenues.

8 p. m., Seventeenth ward—Walsh's hall, Noble street and Milwaukee av.

ANAGERS SEE EASY VICTORY FOR M'CORMICK

laim Downstate Majority of 75,000 Over Lewis.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Medill McCormick will be elected nited States senator from Illinois on esday to succeed the Democratic in-mbent, James Hamilton Lewis. his is the confident prediction of the epublican state committee, made last ght after a careful analysis of all ailable indications.

The Republican managers are confint that Mr McCormick's majority er Senator Lewis in the 101 coun-s outside of Cook county will be not s than 75,000, figuring off every posble angle of depreciation. They say at they have reason to believe that e McCormick downstate majority ll reach 125,000 and may go higher. eir inner belief is that one of the ggest Republican landslides that Illiis has known is on its way.

Chicago is Different.

Chicago is a different proposition. ere are reasons why Lewis may get majority over McCormick in the city Chicago. To the politicians these asons are ample, because they are ured upon real conditions.

The main difficulty with the Republan campaign in Chicago is that Reblican voters are not registered. The ters have to be registered in order vote. The Republicans in Chicago d not get stirred to any definite deee of activity until after the letter President Wilson.

Republicans Not Registered.

The Democratic county organization, ndled adroitly by the county officers hose terms are expiring and who are ndidates for reëlection, had watched is angle. The Democratic vote that n be held in line for Democratic nomees is 70 per cent registered.

This situation means plenty of votes r the Democratic county ticket, but doesn't mean as many votes for ewis for senator.

McCormick undoubtedly will lose Reblican votes, but those particularly at will go to Lewis because of the esident's plea. The anti-McCormick te, as cast in the September priaries, either for Foss or for Thompn, will go to McCormick. There is be an attempted bolt from McCorick from a small minority of the ty hall faction. This bolt is estiated at the outside at 10,000 votes.

Predict McCormick by 50,000.

The most conservative estimate of e general situation, made by a downate man, whose judgment is excelnt and who is unprejudiced, is that cCormick's downstate lead will be tter than 60,000, and that Lewis' ok county majority, under circumances most auspicious to him, canot rise above 10,000.

The Democratic claim, made from e party headquarters, is that Lewis ll carry Cook county by 80,000, and at he will have at least 50,000 to the od downstate.

In two downstate districts there is real congressional fight. One of these the Springfield district and the her the Peoria district. All other tting Republican congressmen are nsidered absolutely safe. Landslide conditions in Chicago will have to prevail to upset the present lineup in the ten city districts, one way or the other. Election of the Republican state ticket in its entirety is considered assured, and this goes for the two Republican candidates for congressmen at large, Mason and Yates.

On County Offices.

The heavy fighting over the county offices undoubtedly will center around the offices of county judge, sheriff, and county clerk. In the office of county judge is controlled the election machinery of Chicago as well as the supervision of important matters in connection with the county's charitable institutions. The Republican nominee is Edwin A. Olson, who in the September primaries was the candidate of the Brundage faction.

The sheriff's office has many of the best appointive posts that are distributed after election. The Republican nominee is Charles W. Peters, who was on the Deneen slate in the primaries and who has been the real head of the sheriff's office during seven administrations.

Tax Board Control Issue.

There is to be a smashing finish over the places on the board of review. P. A. Nash, the Democratic nominee, is pitted against William H. Reid, the only candidate on the Thompson slate to get by with a major Republican nomination. The Sullivan organization is particularly interested in the candidacy of Mr. Nash.

For the county treasurership, the indications are that former Ald. Bernard W. Snow has an edge on Tuesday's finish, although the Democratic claim is that Harry R. Gibbons, who was once a candidate for sheriff, is a sure winner.

Charles Krutckoff, as a candidate for one of the places on the board of assessors, brought into the campaign a record of twenty years of active service in the board, most of the time as its chief clerk. He has a constructive platform that he has offered to the voters.

BOTH PARTIES CLAIM EVERYTHING

Statements Made by Committee Chairmen and Campaign Managers Breathe Optimism.

BY FRANK L. SMITH.

[Chairman Republican State Committee.]

Illinois will give an impressive majority for the Republican party next Tuesday.

We will elect a United States senator and the full state ticket; the state's representation in the house of representatives at Washington will be maintained at least, and I believe it will be enlarged by one or two members. There will be a thoroughly safe Republican majority in both branches of the Illinois general assembly.

These deductions are made from reports given to us for our information and guidance, and are not based upon mere hearsay or the hopes of candidates.

The state of mind of the country—most certainly the state of mind of Illinois—is a promise of Republican victory. The president's political and partisan appeal Republicans regard as an insult to their intelligence and a reflection upon their loyalty to their country. That appeal will result in an increased Republican majority in this state.

BY ERNEST HOOVER.

[Chairman Democratic State Central Committee.]

Election of Senator James Hamilton Lewis and at least one of our two candidates for congressman-at-large is assured. Five and probably six of the fifteen downstate districts will certainly elect Democratic congressmen. There are good chances for the Democratic candidates in other districts in the state. Cook county Democrats expect to elect seven of their ten candidates for congress, so that if they are successful Illinois will have a Democratic delegation in the next congress.

From all reports that I have received Senator Lewis will certainly carry both central and southern Illinois. Northern Illinois, of course, is strongly Republican. Much depends upon the size of the vote in this part of the state, but I doubt that it will be large enough to wipe out the Democratic majorities in southern and central Illinois.

BY HOMER K. GALPIN,

[Chairman Republican County Committee.]

With the popular belief that the Republican party is the dominant force for loyalty, and possesses the highest degree of intelligence during reconstruction days, the general view seems to favor the Republican party.

Proud of the party's great war record, members of the party are now stronger than ever in its support. They believe that when Democratic congressional leaders declined to support the selective service law, the Republican party once more saved the nation by taking hold of this bill and by Republican votes passing it. No great army was possible until this was done.

This sentiment is everywhere. It is present in Cook county. It has been shown in Maine and other communities. Basing my judgment on these conditions as I know them, I predict the entire Republican county ticket will win by a majority of 50,000 votes.

BY JAMES M. DAILEY.

[Chairman of the Managing Committee of the Democratic Party of Cook County.]

The Democrats carried Cook county nearly a month ago on Oct. 5 and 15, when they registered from 80 to 90 per cent of their vote.

The average vote cast four years ago for the Democratic candidates for whom men only could vote was 230,000, six of the Democratic county candidates receiving a larger number of votes and two of them being elected. With a registration of from 80 to 90 per cent of the Democratic vote this means that at least 184,000 votes will be cast for the Democratic county candidates. The total number of registered men's votes is 388,000. It is safe to say that at least 38,000 will remain away from the polls for one reason or another, and that 25,000 others willl divide their votes between the Socialist, Prohibitionist, Socialist Labor, and independent candidates, or spoil their ballots, or lose them altogether. This would leave a total vote of 325,000, of which, as I have said, the Democrats would receive 184,000, leaving only 141,000 for their opponents. This means that the Democrats would have an average plurality of 43,000 for their county candidates.

Senator Lewis, I believe, will run several thousand votes ahead of the Democratic county ticket.

BY WILLIAM L. O'CONNELL.

[Chairman Lewis Campaign Committee.]

I predict that the splendid achievements of the present administration will be approved by the citizens of Illinois at the polls on next Tuesday by the reëlection of Senator James Hamilton Lewis, all of the present Democratic congressmen, and by the election of the entire Democratic Cook county ticket.

Senator Lewis will carry Cook county by more than 65,000 votes; and he will make a remarkable showing in the state outside of Cook county.

Senator Lewis will be reëlected by from 30,000 to 50,000 votes.

City Hall Candidate Attacks Mayor's Organ

Edgar A. Jonas, who was the candidate of the city hall faction for the Republican nomination for judge of the Probate court, is out in a statement, repudiating the course of the city hall organ, the Republican, in suggesting a threatened bolt of the city hall forces from the Republican ticket.

2 to 1 Odds on Whitman as Governor of N. Y.

New York, Nov. 2.—Gov. Whitman remained the favorite in lively gubernatorial election betting here today. Thousands were wagered at irregular odds. One bet at 2 to 1 was recorded, while others were placed at 8 to 5 and one at 9 to 5.

HARRY R. GIBBONS

Democratic Candidate for COUNTY TREASURER

—pledges himself, if elected, to accept only the compensation provided by the new statute governing the office of County Treasurer. But his entire record is, in itself, a pledge of honesty and efficiency.

Mr. Gibbons has built up a very successful business of his own, with satisfied labor. His 30 years of business experience peculiarly fit him for the duties of this administrative office.

If Mr. Gibbons is elected, he will maintain the present conveniently-located sub-stations for payment of taxes. He will return to the public treasury all of the interest on public moneys. He will permit no tax-sale on property without giving the owners full opportunity to protect their rights. And he will guarantee courteous treatment to all tax-payers, with an efficient force of employees.

HE DESERVES YOUR SUPPORT.

Vote for him Tuesday!

Buy No Fur

Until Nov. 11th

On this date HERMAN REEL will begin to retail furs in Chicago, opening the REEL QUALITY SHOP at 602-606 So. Michigan Boulevard, Cor. Harrison.

The Herman Reel Co. has been in the fur business for 30 years and is one of the largest receivers in the U. S. of raw fur shipments direct from trappers.

Their warehouse is at 21 West Kinzie Street. It is a most interesting sight during the winter months to see hundreds of parcels arriving daily direct from trappers from all parts of the country, from Maine to Alaska.

We manufacture in our own workrooms and sell direct to you. We eliminate half a dozen middlemen and the saving is enormous. FROM TRAPPER TO WEARER.

Not another manufacturer in the entire country has such an opportunity to select the choice skins.

Every garment is sold with our printed guarantee.

Just a word about styles. Mr. Edward Ucko, who will have charge of the store, has been associated with the world's greatest creators of fashion. You must see these creations. They cannot be described.

We challenge comparison for price, quality and style.

LEWIS ATTEMPTS EXPLANATION OF WILSON LETTER

Senator Says Republicans Wrongly Construed Its Import.

Senator Lewis reached the climax of his speaking campaign in Chicago last night with the charge that the statement of President Wilson asking for the election of a Democratic congress had been in the hands of Republican committees three days before it was printed, and that deliberate partisan capital had been made out of it with the intention of deluding patriotic voters. Senator Lewis appealed to patriotic voters that they be not misled by such partisanship.

In his speeches Senator Lewis said:

"I ask my fellow citizens to read the appeal of the president and for themselves see its meaning. I ask them to drop taking the construction of the partisan leaders and for a moment remember how the false construction was born.

Picked Issue in Letter.

"This letter of the president was in the hands of the newspaper press for three days before it was released. It was in the hands of the managing committees of political parties in every state of the union. The head managers calling themselves Republican leaders conceived that there could be an issue made out of the letter and promptly gave it an accusation that it reflected upon Republicans by asking that only Democrats be elected. In this way suddenly it was borne in upon the Republicans that there was a reflection upon them by the note. In this way their patriotism to their party could be appealed to to take place over their patriotism to their country. In this way the leaders could delude the followers for the mere purpose of political issue.

"I now ask the citizens to look at the letter and notice that the president gives you his reason for making the appeal, showing you that the reflections upon you, made by so-called Republican leaders, were wholly absent from his mind.

Would Indicate Sentiment.

"The president tells you that in the foreign countries they only understand that an election is transpiring, and those of a different name or opposite party have been chosen. That because of this he will be weakened in his efforts at the peace table and the soldier would be weakened at the battle fronts by the presumption that the country had returned a majority against the policy of the president, which is the policy of the people and which is the policy for which your country is fighting.

"I appeal to the fellow citizens to reflect in calmness and behold the injustice certain of our citizens called Republicans, but who are patriots, were about to do, caused by being misguided and deceived by those whose object it was to use them for the mere purpose of office."

ENGAGED

Miss Doris Russell to Become Bride of Regular Army Man.

Miss Doris Russell

MOFFETT PHOTO

Lieut. Col. Richard B. Barnitz

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Doris Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Russell of 19 East Goethe street, to Lieut. Col. Richard B. Barnitz of the United States air service comes as a bit of interesting news to Miss Russell's many friends. Miss Russell and her sister, Mary Louise, who is now Mrs. Arthur Reed Christie, have been among Chicago's most popular girls ever since their debuts several years ago.

Miss Russell is noted as a dancer and has taken part in numerous amateur entertainments, including the annual Junior league shows and "Cousin Jim," the society movie melodráma which was filmed about two years ago.

Miss Russell is also active in war work and is one of the most industrious workers in the French shop on Washington avenue, which is conducted by the American Fund for French Wounded.

Lieut. Col. Barnitz, a regular army man, who is in command of Post field, Fort Sill, Okla., formerly lived in San Antonio, Tex. He is spending a few days in Chicago. No date has been set for the wedding.

STRAIGHT TICKET URGED AS G. O. P. REPLY TO WILSON

McCormick and Lowden Tell Party to Refute Dictation.

Defiance of President Wilson's claim that Democrats should be given all the fruits of American victories in Europe was voiced by Gov. Lowden, Medill McCormick, and Congressman Patrick Henry Kelley of Michigan, who addressed members of the Hamilton club at their luncheon yesterday to candidates on the Republican ticket.

"I came to Chicago because I was challenged to take the risk of being denounced as a traitor if I attended a Republican meeting in the city of Chicago, in the state of Illinois," said Gov. Lowden, "and, coming for that purpose, I began at sunrise this morning in Evanston and have been at it steadily ever since.

"I want to say that I don't believe that any man who has the temerity to vote the Republican ticket next Tuesday is going to be either indicted or court martialed. I think he will be perfectly safe.

Democrats' Only Chance.

"So far as the soldiers on the other side are concerned—and they are in our thoughts more than anything else—you have been told that you vote against them if you vote the Republican ticket. Why, bless your hearts, the only possible hope the Democrats had at any time of success in this election was based on the fact that there were so many Republicans away in the field fighting their country's battles.

"But I want to talk specially to you about the little ballot, which is, in my opinion, the biggest little ballot that ever came before the people of the state. I hope the people of Chicago, who need the new constitution even more than the people downstate, are going to show their appreciation of that need.

Prepare for Soldiers.

"We have a lot of men in Europe. They have been pretty busy during the last few weeks, but it looks as though they would be out of a job shortly, because they will have done the greatest job in the world. What are we going to do for these young men when they come back? Now is the time to prepare for their return.

"The door of opportunity for the second century in the history of Illinois is swinging wide ajar. Let us prepare to inaugurate this next century and make it as brilliant as the one which has just closed in the life of our state."

Reviews G. O. P. Record.

Mr. McCormick reviewed what the Republicans in congress had done to help win the war and then called attention to the action of President Wilson in asking that the Democrats be given support at the polls.

"The Republican members of both houses of congress have been united in their loyalty to America," said Mr. McCormick. "We have often voted for measures reluctantly, because we have been asked to do so by the leader of the nation.

"We have submitted to limitations on free speech, we have levied great armies, without distinction of race, or creed, or partisan politics.

"Our boys in France can die for their country, but if they were here and were Republicans they could not represent their country in the halls of congress, if we are to accept the policy of President Wilson.

"Since our principles have been challenged, we purpose to discharge our obligations as Americans by voting the Republican ticket. The majority of the voters of this state have given me a vote of their confidence and I have done my best, as my judgment and conscience dictate, to guard the interests of those of smaller affairs."

BRITIGANWOOD

The Largest Subdivision on the North Side

The first public announcement of BRITIGANWOOD made last Sunday opened the sale of BRITIGANWOOD property to the public at the low war prices. When peace comes the price of the property as well as the price of Chicago Real Estate in general will show a marked increase because of conditions which will create greater values.

Britiganwood Today Has Streets Paved with Asphalt. Sewer, Water and Gas Mains, with Stubs for Each Inside Curb, are In and Paid For—Concrete Sidewalks—Trees—in Fact, It Is a Developed Proposition—One That Is a Real Investment and Not a Speculation or a Promise Participate in Britiganwood Peace Profits!

BRITIGANWOOD is a North Side residential property, fully improved, located not far from the lake, and will be the next great property to be occupied by people of the middle class. Just south of BRITIGANWOOD is the prosperous Albany Park district, where the rise in values has been almost magical. Lots in that district that sold a few years ago for $600 have since been sold for as high as $20,000. Business corners in that district have brought $40,000 and today are worth more. Britiganwood profits will be as great as these.

You Can Double Your Money in Britiganwood

Many persons are today regretting the fact that they did not invest in Albany Park, Ravenswood or North Edgewater when they were platted a few years ago. Now is the opportunity for these people. BRITIGANWOOD lots are today selling for $250 or more less than Ravenswood lots sold for when that property was put on the market. They are selling for less today than North Edgewater lots sold for ten years ago. They will see the same increase in value proportionately that lots in those sections experienced. These increases will be the direct result of the demand for this property.

RESIDENCE LOTS (30 x 125) as low as— $635

BUSINESS LOTS (25x125) as low as $750

LOWDEN APPEALS TO CHICAGOANS FOR GOOD ROADS

Governor Says the State Must Set Example for Middle West.

"Illinois is likely, by next Tuesday night, to have blazed the way for good roads to all the middle west. If the vote on the bond issue should fail, it will have stopped this item of progress in the whole Mississippi valley."

Gov. Lowden went literally from one end of Cook county to the other with that message yesterday. He motored more than 100 miles, from Glencoe and Wheeling on the north to Blue Island on the south, and talked himself hoarse urging the need of a favorable vote on the little ballot.

Makes Five Speeches.

He made five speeches, and in four of them there was not a word of politics. In only one case—his impromptu visit to the Hamilton club—did he touch upon the party issues of the campaign. The rest of the day he devoted to pleading for the united support of every voter for the $60,000,000 good roads bond issue.

The climax of the program came at the Chicago Association of Commerce luncheon at the Hotel La Salle, where the governor addressed an audience of more than 1,000, including the visiting army surgeons from Europe, who expressed frank amazement at the enthusiasm displayed over a program of things to be accomplished after the war.

Little Ballot Important.

"I am here," said Governor Lowden "to give you my opinion that the little ballot this year is more important than any big ballot you ever voted in your lives for the good of the future of Illinois.

"The insane asylums and institutions for the feeble minded ought to be extended to accommodate those who do not see the need in Illinois for those projected changes and improvements.

Praise for Motorists.

"Through the big, patriotic, generous attitude of our motorists we are offered 4,800 miles of paved roads without a penny of direct taxation. If they're willing to foot the bills, the people of Illinois are not very bright if they don't accept the gift.

"Our boys, 2,000,000 of them, have been called over there to do the most important job ever given any nation in the world. They have done their work so well that I think they're going to be out of a job pretty soon. Let us avail ourselves of that great genius they have developed when they come home. And what better employment can we give them than the building of a comprehensive system of good roads?

Asks All to Vote.

"I don't know whether this bond issue is going to carry or not. It will if every man who votes remembers his little ballot. So I urge you, vote the little ballot first."

The first meeting of the day was held in Evanston. After his addresses at the Hotel La Salle and the Hamilton club the governor went to Blue Island ,and in the evening he was escorted by a bluejacket band and a detachment of the Illinois reserve militia to the Chicago Motor club, where he addressed 700 motorists and saw the good roads campaign movie for the first time.

TWO INQUIRIES STARTED OVER BROOKLYN WRECK

New York, Nov. 2.—Two investigations were started today into the wreck which occurred last night in the Malbone street tunnel of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, when a crowded Brighton Beach train, said to have been operated by a "green" motorman, leaped a curve, killing eighty-nine persons and injuring nearly double that number.

One investigation was started by Mayor Hylan and Harry E. Lewis, district attorney of Kings county, to fix the blame for the accident and to present evidence to the November grand jury, which Mr. Lewis announced he would summon Monday.

A supplementary investigation was begun by the public service commission, which announced tonight that it would turn over the reports of its experts to District Attorney Lewis.

For perhaps the first time in the history of this city its chief executive has presided as committing magistrate. Mayor Hylan opened the "John Doe" inquiry. He asked for prosecution of Brooklyn Rapid Transit officials, whom he blamed for the wreck because they failed to reinstate twenty-nine men, as recommended by the war labor board.

The investigation is scheduled to continue Monday, when it is expected that the real names of the persons for whom the warrants have been issued will be made known.

Export of Grain Held Up to Send Pershing Troops

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—Demands for ships to carry soldiers overseas under the enlarged military program practically has stopped cereal exports, Food Administrator Hoover informed Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska today in a letter explaining the administration's permit system for corn shipments.

Mr. Hoover said the system was necessary to prevent congestion in terminals, and was not the cauce of declining prices.

PICK NEWBERRY IN MICHIGAN BY 20,000 TO 40,000

Birthplace of G. O. P. Expected to Defeat Pacifist Ford.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Commander Truman H. Newberry looks like the winner next Tuesday. The campaign grows hotter every hour. Reports from all quarters are that the Republicans are riproaring fighting mad over Democratic interference in a strong G. O. P. state and the dragging of the war into politics.

Michigan is normally Republican by about 100,000, but some 200,000 men are in the army and navy, which will cut down the vote. The Republican managers are confident that Newberry will win comfortably. They are making no estimates on the vote, but on the basis of reports from four-fifths of the counties the unofficial forecasters put Newberry's probable plurality anywhere between 20,000 and 40,000.

Ford Damaged by Torpedoes.

Within the last week the Ford campaign has been struck by three torpedoes:

First—The call of President Wilson for the election of Democrats to congress simply because they are Democrats at once roused high resentment in a state whose Republican congressmen have stood solidly by the administration and the war measures.

Michigan casualties are fifth among the states, being exceeded only by those of Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, and Massachusetts. It has been up towards the top in all war activities, and now to be told that Commander Newberry, who fought in the Spanish war and whose two sons are in service, must be discarded in favor of Ford, ex-pacifist—well, it's a boomerang for the Democrats.

Collapse of Newberry Attack.

Second—The second torpedo was the collapse of the Democratic attack before the New York federal grand jury upon the expenditures of the Newberry managers.

Meanwhile the Democrats have been doing for Ford precisely what they complained the Republican managers had done for Newberry. The Republicans charge that in two weeks the Democrats have spent as much on Ford publicity as was spent by the Republicans in advertising Newberry in a six months' campaign.

Third—The depth bomb, the one that did more damage to Ford than all the others, was the Hughes aircraft report with its finding that in deference to Ford's wishes pro-Germans have been employed on government war work at the Ford plant.

In the lower house, the Republicans expect to elect a solid delegation. At present there are two Democrats. The capture of one seat is listed as a certainty, while in Detroit the Republicans this time say Congressman Doremus, Democrat, will be defeated. He lives in a Republican district and in former years has been elected through the activities of the vote swappers' league.

'RUBBER STAMP' GIVES BIRTH TO 'LEWIS G. O. P.'

'Appeal' by 'League' Refused by Tribune as Advertising.

A Chicago newspaper this morning prints a half page advertisement purporting to be an appeal by "We Republicans of the James Hamilton Lewis Republican Club" for support of Senator Lewis for reëlection. The advertisement includes this line: "This advertisement was refused by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE."

When the copy for this advertisement was submitted to THE TRIBUNE an inquiry convinced the management of this newspaper that there was no such organization as the "James Hamilton Lewis Republican League" and that therefore the advertisement was not bona fide. For that reason alone the copy was not admitted to the columns of THE TRIBUNE.

It was found that approximately eighty cards which had been used in the campaign for B. J. Rosenthal for congressman-at-large in the recent Democratic primaries had been decorated with a rubber stamp declaration for Senator Lewis and this circulated and signed by as many persons, not over half of them saying they were Republicans.

No One Backs Claim.

No one could be reached who knew anything of the claim that this constituted membership in a James Hamilton Lewis Republican league or who had information that such a league had been formed or suggested except in the advertising matter submitted for newspaper publication.

After this is published there may be an effort made by the Lewis managers to "organize" the signers into a "league," but it is THE TRIBUNE's belief that no such league now exists and that no attempt even has been made to organize one.

Among the men whose names are signed to the advertisement who told THE TRIBUNE last night that while they were individually for Mr. Lewis they never heard of a "league," were A. C. Greenebaum, J. L. Felsenthal, and Joseph Baskind.

Signed for Rosenthal.

Joseph S. Hartman, whose name is also signed to the advertisement, said he had signed a card at the solicitation of his friend, Mr. Rosenthal, but that he had not joined any Lewis league, nor had he authorized any one to use his name in connection with such an appeal.

The advertising agent who submitted the copy to THE TRIBUNE was told on Friday that if he could show evidence that such a league had been formed the advertisement would be printed. No such evidence was submitted.

THE TRIBUNE also said to the advertising agent that if he would get the signatures of the men to the text of the advertisement as drawn up it would be printed. None of them signed any such phrase as "We Republicans appeal to our fellow Republicans." In fact, some of them are known to be Democrats. This is the reason the advertisement was not considered bona fide.

FOLK IN DANGER OF DEMOCRATIC JUMP TO RIVAL

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—The last week of the political campaign has developed doubt in the race for United States senator. Joseph W. Folk, former governor and lately counselor of the department of state in Washington, D. C., the Democratic candidate, has bitter enemies in his own party. Selden Spencer of St. Louis is the Republican nominee and has made an active canvass.

It has been estimated Folk will lose 10,000 Democratic votes in St. Louis, where he is best known, and several thousand in Kansas City.

The fact that Mr. Spencer was engaged in war work before the death of Senator Stone and has two sons—one a first lieutenant, who has been wounded in the front battle line—may attract many Democratic votes to him, particularly from men who have sons in France. Spencer's friends undoubtedly are expecting to get a pretty heavy Democratic vote over the state, and on that assumption are basing their hopes of success.

WILSON WAGON LANDS HOOVER? EYE TOWARD 1920

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Herbert C. Hoover, the national food administrator, it was learned here tonight, has been induced after much reluctance to issue a statement urging the American public to heed the appeal of President Wilson for support of Democratic candidates in the forthcoming election.

Mr. Hoover's statement, it is said, has been incorporated in a letter to Mr. Frederic R. Coudert of New York, who will make it public tomorrow.

Mr. Hoover, long suspected of having Republican leanings in politics, although for many years a foreign resident, is declared to have insisted that his letter should not be issued as a campaign statement from the Democratic national committee, hence its projected publication through a private citizen. Incidentally the political gossips here already have started a political boom for Hoover with the Democratic presidential nomination as the goal of his achievement.

Regarding the need of new clothes

There are times when clever pictures and strong language in advertising mean nothing to the man or woman who needs clothes, but who lacks the ready cash.

How much cash have you on hand to buy your present clothing needs? Would a cash outlay of $30.00 or more for clothes seriously affect your cash on hand for other needs?

Your need of new clothes is a natural condition. Overcome that natural condition in the most natural way.

This special charge account plan of ours offers good quality, stylish clothes. The price you pay is consistent with the quality you get. We realize a normal profit.

INDICTMENTS IN CHICAGO'S AERO ORGY RETURNED

'Sons of Wealth' Reported Hit, but Names Are Suppressed.

Indictments against several former officials and employés of the inspection department of the equipment division, aviation section, of the signal corps for the Chicago district were returned by the federal grand jury yesterday before Federal Judge Carpenter.

The bills were suppressed until warrants issued by the court can be served and the specific charges laid at the door of the "opera bouffe" officials of the "win the war in the air" department were not made known.

Eight indictments were voted by the grand jury. It is known that C. I. Hogue, who was the active head of the division, was among those named Since the exposé by THE TRIBUNE two and a half months ago of the conditions which existed in the office prior to the war department "cleanup" on Jan. 24 last, he had been living on a farm near Evansville, Ind. Reports from that place last night stated that he disappeared from there last Monday.

"Sons of Wealth" Named.

Both United States Attorney Charles F. Clyne and his assistant, Benjamin P. Epstein, who handled the inquiry before the inquisitorial body, declined yesterday to discuss the contents of the suppressed indictments until those named have been taken into custody. It was reported at the federal building, however, that several dozen "sons of wealth" are named in the bills as having been participants in the orgy with government funds, although not made direct targets for federal prosecution.

The scandal relates to the conduct of the Chicago office between Oct. 15, 1917, and Jan. 24, 1918, when war department officials came to Chicago and overnight lopped 90 useless employés from the pay roll. During that time the office was under the control of A. R. Brunker, now holding a responsible position in the war service at Washington, but who had delegated all of his authority to Hogue, who was connected with the brokerage firm of Hogue & Simpson in the First National Bank building. While Hogue's title was but "chief clerk," he was the dictator of all affairs in the office.

How Jobs Were Passed Out.

The principal charges made were:

That "employment" was given to about thirty sons of families of wealth and without training as aircraft inspectors at salaries ranging from $150 to $200 a month and the issuance of exemption affidavits which lifted them from class 1, liable to the draft, to class 3, which is "bomb proof," as "essential employés."

The hiring of John Clabaugh, father of Hinton G. Clabaugh, head of the federal investigators here, under the name of "C. H. Bruce," as "assistant librarian" of a library containing but forty volumes, his principal duties being to dig up data for theses on "ancient and modern history."

The establishment of an advisory committee consisting of class 3 sons of wealth; of an authorized legal committee, the chief counsel being a stock broker; of an intelligence section headed by Frank Harvey, Hogue's former tailor; the hiring of a superadvisor, he being Frank G. Saida, manager of the Continental and Commercial National Bank building, and receiving as government pay $200 a month besides his $10,000 a year salary as the bank building manager.

The padding of pay rolls to the extent of more than $8,000 a month with alleged "slickers" and a tribe of relatives; extravagances in the expenditure of money for office space and for "inspections" and for railroad transportation.

ROUGH COURTING

Her Admirer Tries to Remove Parental Objection with Bullets.

Miss Mildred Shomo
NATIONAL STUDIO

SHOOTS FATHER OF GIRL, 15, WHEN SUIT IS SPURNED

Admirer, 30, Fires Five Bullets Point Blank, Then Runs.

Mildred Shomo is 15 years old and when Samuel Yedor, 30 years old, became enamored and started to pay her too constant court, her father objected. Because of his objection, the father, James Shomo, 6340 Ellis avenue, is in the Washington Park hospital, one bullet hole through his arm and another through his scalp.

Yedor shot Shomo yesterday when the two met almost in front of the Shomo home, firing five shots point blank.

The parents of the Shomo girl recently learned that the little school girl and the 30 year old man had been meeting secretly. Night before last she did not return at all. When the girl did come home she told her parents that she had been with a family of friends.

Ordered to Keep Away.

But the parents had spent a sleepless night, worrying, and straightway Mr. Shomo went to Walter Yedor, a brother of Samuel, who runs the Woodlawn market, 941 East Sixty-third street.

Notice was served upon Samuel through his brother that he would have to "keep away" from the Shomo girl. According to the Shomo family Yedor took this as a declaration of hostilities.

When the father came home yesterday afternoon he met Yedor. He is said to have told him:

"I don't want to have any words with you, but I want you to leave my daughter alone."

Shoots, Then Runs.

Without replying, according to Shomo, Yedor drew his pistol and began firing. Luckily the bullet that struck Shomo in the head glanced and ran around his skull inside the scalp. Yedor then fled, but a little later gave himself up to the police.

"I love my papa," said the girl last night, weeping at her father's bedside. "I don't ever want to see that man again. He used to follow me whenever I went out on the street. I didn't like him, but he always kept bothering me.

"Every time he would say he wanted to marry me. I'll never let him speak to me again—never!"

The girl's mother, standing at the window of the Shomo home, was a witness to the shooting.

LOVE TANGLES DRIVE ARMY WIFE TO ATTEMPT LIFE

Miss Bessie Harvey, 19 years old, also known as Mrs. Earl Weir, arrested in the Morrison hotel Friday night for attempting suicide, told a story of tangled romances and embittered love to the police yesterday. The girl's home is said to be in St. Louis, where three months ago, according to the police, she tried to kill herself by shooting because of love for a sailor.

She came here, she said, to be near Lieut. John W. Tighe, stationed at Fort Sheridan. She also said that she was married in St. Louis on Dec. 24, 1917, to an army officer who gave his name as "Lieut. Earl Wier."

When she learned that was not his true name, she said, an investigation was started by her family and he left. The girl's arrest came after a third army officer, Lieut. Perkins, a friend of Lieut. Tighe, told a hotel detective that the girl was in a hysterical condition and had tried to kill herself with a razor.

As the police entered the girl's room, they say, she tried to swallow a bottle of poison. A razor was found in the room. When told she was under arrest she fainted.

When arrested she tore a letter which she had written into bits. The police rescued the pieces and will try to patch them together. A post card on her dresser, addressed to Miss Belle Thompson, 4035 Virginia avenue, St. Louis, read:

"Dear Tomio—Sorry I can't spend Halloween with you; we used to have such good times, but it is impossible. Bess Weir."

No road is too exacting—mud, muck, sand, stone, city boulevards or cobble pavements—Essenkay absorbs the shocks and maintains constant, uniform pressure in the casings.

No Inner Tubes

Essenkay Tire Filler takes the place of air in tires—no inner tubes are needed—and it will not expand or contract under changes of heat, cold, pressure or moisture. No spare tires, spare rims, tubes or pumps are needed. New official tests with the Widney Resiliometer establish that Essenkay—in addition to eliminating punctures and blowouts—gives tires a resiliency of 91%.

First Cost—Last Cost

Essenkay is in use on thousands of pleasure cars, trucks and converted tractors. Many municipalities, departments of the government and metropolitan newspapers have increased truck efficiency to 100% and cut tire costs by its use. After the casing is worn to the last layer of fabric the Essenkay can be transferred to new casings; the first cost is the last cost; 10,000 to 18,000 miles from a casing is the rule rather than the exception.

Ten Days' Free Trial

Passenger car or truck owners may test Essenkay under their own driving and loading conditions ten days without charge or obligation.

O'GARA OBJECTS TO COMPOSITION FOR CREDITORS

Former Coal Company Head Charges Trick by Officers.

The tangled financial affairs of the bankrupt O'Gara Coal company, alleged to be hopelessly insolvent four years ago, and now said to be enjoying "war bride" profits, were further complicated yesterday. Thomas J. O'Gara, former president and principal stockholder, filed an objection in the United States district court asking that an offer of composition made to creditors by alleged present officers of the company be not allowed by the court.

Offer Not Bona Fide.

The former president declares that the offer made by Frank H Woods of Lincoln, Neb., who claims to be president of the company, and presented by alleged attorneys for the company, is not bona fide. He claims that their election, as well as that of the present directors, on March 6, 1918, was not valid, and charges that Woods, with W. A. Brewerton, J. B. Russell, and others who constitute a bondholders' committee, are attempting to injure the claims of creditors and enrich themselves.

O'Gara claims that an offer made by alleged representatives of the company to pay creditors with promissory notes, payable within fifteen days after confirmation by the court, is not backed by the $500,000 necessary.

Prospered in Wartime.

That the coal company has prospered in war time is indicated by a statement by O'Gara that the $290,500 of interest in default on the company's $2,780,000 of bonds existing at the time of bankruptcy, as well as $136,400 additional interest, has been paid.

O'Gara charges that the present alleged officers of the company, before paying anything to creditors, are proposing to pay themselves and to the committee acting for certain bondholders $550,000 as fees, commission, and expenses.

Big Sum for Fees.

Included in this sum, he says, is $250,000 which, it has been agreed, shall be paid to the bondholders' committee for alleged fees and expenses.

His bill declares that the present bond issue outstanding is void, inasmuch as the New York purchasers of the bonds obtained them at "a huge, unlawful, and usurious discount."

O'Gara says he has a claim of $1,515,000 against the company.

U. of C. Co-Eds to Cut Out "Small Town Stuff"

University of Chicago co-eds are to be cosmopolitanized, after first submitting to treatment for the removal of provincialisms. Ten groups have been organized for the discussion of modern problems, under the slogan of "Don't be Provincial."

An effort to eliminate "small town stuff" and to add a liberal measure of cosmopolitanism is the main aim, according to Miss Katherine Prosser, president of the Y. W. C. L. on the campus. Christianity, democracy and internationalism are among the subjects to be discussed.

Among those who will lead the groups are Dean William S. Grey, Dr. R. G. Moulton, Dr. William McLaughlin and Dr. John Coulter.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 2.—At a meeting of the city school board last night it was voted unanimously to keep the schools closed for another week because of the influenza epidemic.

Electric Intake Heater on Upright Manifold

It Will Fit Any Car

ONE MINUTE

To Start Your Motor On the Coldest Day

The Electric Intake Heater is without doubt the surest, simplest, most economical device offered to motorists to assure easy starting in winter weather.

In one minute, or less, it heats the intake pipe or carburetor sufficiently to provide a highly combustible mixture which ignites instantly when the motor is turned over, no matter how long the car has stood in the cold.

It can be installed by anyone, on any car, and works at the touch of a switch on the dash.

Order at once. War needs have restricted our output. Make sure you get yours by ordering today.

ELECTRIC Intake heater $3.50

Guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. We refer you to any bank in Jackson.

The Electric Intake Heater consists of a quick-action electric resistance coil (the same principle as an electric flatiron).

It attaches easily and simply to the intake pipe, manifold or carburetor of any make of car, without drilling, tapping or alteration.

The Heater does not run down the battery, even when used a dozen times a day. It consumes, for a minute or so at a time, only as much current as your lights.

In ordering, be sure to give the make and model of your car, the battery voltage, and whether the wiring is double or single.

MORE SMOKES

Old Friend Gives $50 for Solace in the Trenches.

An old friend flipped a $50 check into the smokes for soldiers fund yesterday. He modestly asked that his name not be published, so he heads the list like this:

"Regular Monthly Contributor"	$50.00
Red, White and Blue club	23.50
Mrs. Frank Hubbard Stevens, Racine hotel, Racine, Wis.	10.00
Edward Rose & Co., Simon Klee	4.50
Mrs. N. M. Benson by R. L. B.	2.00
Employés bureau medical inspection, city of Chicago	1.50
C. G. Snyder	1.00
W. H. Griffin	1.00
Previously acknowledged	$17,220.76
Total	$17,314.26

The above gifts mean a lot in the trenches, where the boys think about their smokes like this:

"When you feel you've reached the finish and you're sure your number's up,
And you feel as weak as Belgian beer and helpless as a pup—
But you know that you're not down and out, that life's worth living yet,
When some old war wise Red Cross guy slips
you a cigaret."

WEAKNESS FOR CHITLINS LURES YOUTHS TO CRIME

"Flunk" Taber, 17 years old, and "Buddy Boy" Herrell, 19, were arrested yesterday as two of six young Negro bandits who have been raiding the black belt recently. The captures were made by "Six" Smith and "Scotty" Scott, veteran Negro policemen, who work out of the Central detail.

For a long time young colored youths have been committing minor depredations and using stolen cars as means of transportation. Small robberies only worried the police, but when Wolfe Sherman, a grocer, 3161 South Wabash avenue, was robbed of $200 the other night, the police began to worry.

"Better bresh up you rabbit's foot," said "Scotty" to "Six," for it is known that the latter always carries one.

"What you boys all do with that money?" demanded "Six" last night of "Flunk" and "Buddy Boy."

"Bought chitlins," they replied.

Evanston Co-Eds, Cheer Up! 600 S. A. T. C. Boys Freed

Perhaps Evanston co-eds will not feel so harsh now towards the Chicago newspapers. The world is brighter. Six hundred S. A. T. C. boys were turned loose from quarantine yesterday noon and given liberty over Sunday.

After three weeks' cooped up hunger and three weeks' growth of locks they went over the top to the barber shop and the candy kitchen.

Of late when reporters have called Willard hall for class election news and the like the girls have been rather curt in replies over the phone. Improvement is hoped for now.

FLU LID COMES ENTIRELY OFF IN CITY TOMORROW

Curfew Shall Ring No More, but Smoking Cars Are Issue.

Outside of the fact that you mustn't cough, sneeze, expectorate or osculate, musn't smoke on street cars or in the elevated trains, can not visit sick friends and must continue to observe the food and fuel regulations and keep up your installment payments on Liberty bonds, you can get up tomorrow and do as you dar please. All day.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, city health commissioner, announced last night that the flu lid comes practically clear off tomorrow and that the city is to return to its normal mode of living. Curfew shall ring no more. You may go to the theater secure in the knowledge that you won't get sent home at the end of the second act. Movies will keep open as long as the fans are in finances and you may dance without fearing the intrusion of a health department chaperon with untimely remarks about the dangers of proximity.

Ban on Meetings Off.

The ban on meetings is off today. Whether they be devoted to religion, lodge matters, politics, traction or what not, they may be held this afternoon and tonight without violating the health department rules. This does not apply to dancing, however, which remains under the ban until tomorrow. Permits must be obtained from the health department before reopening a dance hall, theater, or moving picture house.

Whether or not smoking on street cars and in elevated trains will be permanently prohibited, is still a mooted point.

Other Cities to Be Freed.

The influenza quarantine will be lifted in the following towns today, according to an order issued late yesterday by Dr. C. St. Clair Drake, state medical director:

Evanston,
Woodstock,
Wilmette,
Kenilworth,
Winnetka,
Glencoe,
Highwood,
Lake Bluff,
North Chicago,
Libertyville,
Sycamore,
Rockford,
Belvidere,
Oak Park.

Conditions are progressing so satisfactorily in central Illinois that the quarantine there may be raised some time this week, according to Dr. Drake, but southern Illinois will be kept under quarantine for several days yet, he said.

ALLIED SURGEONS SHOW PANORAMA OF WAR HEROISM

Chicago Physicians Told of New Marvels of Surgery.

A panorama of the heroism of the wounded, of the wonders achieved by army surgery in the war, and of the close knit fraternity existing in the surgical departments of all the allied nations was presented to the Chicago Physicians' club last night at a meeting in the gold room of the Congress hotel.

The occasion was a reception tendered seven of the most distinguished surgeons in the allied armies, here in America to attend a meeting of the clinical congress of the American College of Surgery, prevented by the recent influenza epidemic. The party, consisting of Col. Sir Thomas Nyles, Col. G. Grey Turner, and Col. George E. Gask of the British army medical service; Col. Pierre Duval and Dr. Henri Leclerc of the French army medical service; Col. Prof. Rafaelle Bastianelli and Maj. Piolet of the Italian army medical service, and Col. George E. Brewer of the American army medical service, in Chicago for only one day, was entertained at dinner at the Florentine room of the hotel by the Chicago Surgical society and afterward met the Physicians' club in the gold room.

Tell of Marvels.

The visitors told of the marvels the war has wrought in surgery. Sir Thomas Myles described the British methods of restoration of those injured in the war and told of the heroism and also of the frailties of the men. Col. Franklin H. Martin, chairman of the Council of Defense general medical board, predicted an after the war change in the medical profession wherein "medicine will be practiced rationally, instead of irrationally, and no longer upon a commercial basis, while our task will be mainly to keep people well instead of treating them when they are sick."

Col Duval, with the aid of illustrated lantern slides, described wonderful effects achieved by war surgery in the French army, whereby "within two months 85 per cent of all wounded have been cured and returned to the front."

Col. Brewer told of the American medical service, the heroism of phyants, and the bombing of hospitals.

Praises U. S. Medical Service.

Col. Bastianelli described a new method of plastic surgery in amputations whereby artificial hands can be controlled by the arm muscles themselves instead of by complicated wires and springs.

Col. Gask described the treatment of chest wounds and the discovery in the war that chest operations and operations on the lungs are as readily susceptible to surgical treatment as affections of the abdomen.

FATHER AND SON FOUND DEAD IN GAS FILLED ROOM

Patrick Moriarity, 47 years old, and his son, Eugene, 11 years old, were found dead last night in the gas filled kitchen of their home at 252 West Forty-third street. Gas was escaping from a rubber tube that had been attached to a gas plate and had become disconnected.

Police were undecided whether Moriarity caused his son's death and committed suicide or whether the deaths were accidental. Moriarity had been drinking heavily, the police say.

Vote "Yes" for Good Roads on the Little Ballot Nov. 5

Statement for the Busy Voter

One of the most important questions ever submitted to the voters of the state is the good roads proposition on the little ballot at the election on November 5. Under the plan adopted by the legislature, the proposal is for a system of state highways about 4,800 miles in extent, connecting all counties, reaching nearly all important cities and towns and serving all the people of the commonwealth.

Under existing laws such a system could be built only after 25 or 30 years of extraordinary administrative effort. The present laws provide for the cost of the system under a year to year plan of construction out of the automobile license fees, but they do not provide the co-ordinated authority to build the roads all at once and pay for them on time.

Paid from Automobile Licenses

The little ballot proposition corrects this defect and allows the issuance of $60,000,000 worth of bonds, to be paid entirely out of the automobile license fees.

This sum is to be used to build the state system of roads in a period of about five years. The state administration is under pledge that not a bond will be sold or a foot of road constructed until the war is won and this great public improvement will be available as a means of absorbing workers during the post-bellum time when industry is being readjusted to a peace basis.

Help Labor After War

Thus there is a double incentive to public support of the proposition—the general good to the state from a businesslike method of road building and the special assistance to industry and labor after the war.

The question must receive a majority of the votes cast for all members of the legislature and we, therefore, urge every citizen who votes at the coming election to mark an X opposite the word "yes" on the good roads question on the little ballot.

No Tax on Real Estate

The automobile owners alone will pay for the roads under license fees already in force. The man who does not own an automobile will not pay any part of the expense.

Republican Voters

Vice-President Marshall Says: "This War is a Democratic Asset"

Tuesday, November 5th, is Election Day, when this claim will be voted either up or down!

Are you willing to let the war be made an asset of the Democratic party? Are you sending your sons to the battlefields of Europe to fatten the partisan heritage of a political party—any political party? Was Belgium ravished to lengthen the tenure of office of politicians labeled "Democrats?" Has the blood and treasure of France and Great Britain and Italy and all America been poured out to give assets to any political party?

By Republican votes in Congress America was organized and armed for war in 1917. When Democratic Senators and Representatives wabbled and quibbled and hung back, Republicans stood fast for the war—a war which, when won, would be an asset of the civilization of the world. When American troops—Republican and Democrat side by side—carried the day at Chateau Thierry, at St. Mihiel, at St. Quentin and in the Argonne, it was to enrich the heritage of ALL Americans.

Republican Lincoln fought and won the war of the Rebellion in the name of universal freedom and to preserve the union of the states. Republican McKinley fought and won the Spanish-American war to liberate an oppressed people. And neither ever degraded his achievement by claiming victory, or the war itself, as an asset of the political party which nominated him for office.

Voters who avow the principles of liberty and freedom of Lincoln and McKinley! Redeem this war from the corrosion of partisanship. Redeem it by sending to Congress a Republican majority in both the Senate and the House of Representatives—Americans who will keep this great, holy cause in which America fights, an asset of America. Claim your share in the war as your just due for the blood of your kin and your own sacrifices, by exercising the right to vote, as free citizens, for Republican candidates.

Remember Tuesday, November 5, Election Day, is the one day upon which you can exercise your right. Go to the polls and vote.

A MESSAGE

To Those Who Mourn.

DINSMORE ELY, Chicago aviator, was killed in France last spring. His last letter to his parents, dated Paris, April 3, closed thus:

"And I want to say, in closing, if anything should happen to me, let's have no mourning, in spirit or in dress. Like a Liberty bond, it is an investment, not a loss, when a man dies for his country. It is an honor to a family, and is that the time for weeping? I would rather leave my family rich in pleasant memories of my life than numbed in sorrow at my death. DINSMORE ELY."

Chicago Taxpayers Can NOT Avoid Their Share in the Cost of the Boulevard Link

A vote IN FAVOR of the $3,000,000 bond issue Tuesday will spread your payment over many years.

A vote AGAINST the $3,000,000 bond issue will force the courts to enter judgment against the City for the amount, and it must then be taken care of in the ensuing year's tax rolls.

Downtown property owners have already been assessed their share, amounting to $3,412,957; and the City MUST pay its share. An adverse vote will not stop the execution of this wonderful public improvement. Millions have been spent. It is well under way, and work positively will continue.

But an adverse vote will cause expensive litigation, possibly raise the expenses by half a million dollars and necessitate the payment of bills by court order out of current taxes instead of by bond issue.

Prevent this waste and encourage a meritorious public improvement. It will probably result in the expenditure of more than one hundred million dollars in building construction immediately after the war and has the full endorsement of the Building Trades Council and all Labor Organizations.

It is to the personal interest of every voter to vote YES on the $3,000,000 bond issue on the little ballot Tuesday.

CITY OF CHICAGO

BOARD OF LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS

MAYOR'S HOPE OF SCHOOL VICTORY RESTS IN GAVEL

Expected to Use Mace When Council Considers Appointees.

Mayor Thompson, according to rumors among the aldermen, is prepared to wield the gavel heavily tomorrow morning when the city council meets to consider his eleven school board appointees.

Both sides were guessing hard yesterday after a meeting of the committee on schools which had before it Ald. George F. Iliff's resolution for an inquiry into the legal aspects of the board problem. By a vote of 5 to 4 the committee placed it on file, but the minority at once prepared its own report and will submit it to the council—or endeavor to—before the mayor's appointees are acted upon. Its introduction would pave the way for a postponement of action.

"But you know," whispered Ald. Louis B. Anderson, one of the two negro aldermen again counted upon to support the mayor, "it may be held that this report is not germane to the subject."

Hints Use of Gavel.

This was taken as more than a hint that Mayor Thompson will attempt to gavel down any attempt to present the minority report. If he does there probably will be an appeal from the decision of the chair and another hot fight such as marked his gavel adjournment of a previous discussion of school board appointees. In this instance the council may insist upon adjournment as a large majority now favor deferring all action on the school matter until after Tuesday's election.

The Iliff resolution proposed an inquiry by a special committee to determine whether the mayor has the authority to appoint more than nine trustees at this time. Prior to his appointment of the "big six" his appointment of Jacob M. Loeb and Mrs. Frances E. Thornton as his first selections for the new board of eleven had been approved by the council. All other appointments except those two later were rescinded. And Corporation Counsel Ettelson now contends that Mr. Loeb and Mrs. Thornton have lost all claims to positions on the board of eleven.

Resolution Is Filed.

In the schools committee meeting Jackson, Adamkiewicz, Byrne, Johnson and Kennedy voted to file the resolution, and Guernsey, Link, Steffen, and Maypole against. Ald. George Maypole then moved that the committee recommend an inquiry by the judiciary committee. That was voted down.

But the four then drafted a minority report recommending that the judiciary committee be directed to "conduct a full investigation of the law and facts bearing upon the question of the number of vacancies now existing upon the board of education in order that the action of the council in the matter may not promote further legal complications and confusion."

Another report that caused considerable discussion around the city hall was that several aldermen had shown indications of "cold feet" which might lead them to stay away from tomorrow's meeting. One of the objects of the campaign of intimidation now being conducted is said to be that of reducing the attendance to a point where the mayor's forces might constitute a majority of those present.

Democrats Favor Delay.

The Democrats failed to caucus yesterday, but individually they expressed themselves as favorable to the plan of postponement upon which the Republicans will stand together, and it is regarded as certain that no man need absent himself in fear of having to vote on this "ticklish" matter the day before the election.

The Chicago Federation of Labor this afternoon will discuss the mayor's appointments, and the question will be raised whether the organization wishes to indorse the "solid six" and their conduct of the schools while they were in power.

The tieup of the pay of the entire school system was continued by City Comptroller Pike, who indicates that he "doubts" the legal right of President Loeb to approve the rolls. Mr. Loeb replied to Mr. Pike's inquiry as to "which board" he represents.

"Only One Board."

"There is but one public school system of the city of Chicago," he wrote. "There is but one board of education in charge of that system. I am, and I acted as president of that board of education in signing the same pay rolls and warrants. These pay rolls and warrants, which you have failed to honor, are those of that board of education."

M'ERLANE, LAST OF JAILBREAKERS, IS BROUGHT BACK

Frank McErlane, who escaped from the county jail with Earl Dear, Lloyd Bopp and "Big Joe" Moran, was brought back to Chicago last night by Detective Sergeant James McCarthy of the state's attorney's office from Bisbee, Ariz., where he was captured by A. H. Howe, deputy sheriff and newspaper man.

"I've been a fool all my life. I can't understand why I participated in the jail break," he told reporters. McErlane supplied little new information concerning the jail delivery. Moran planned it, he said, and so far as he knew no outsiders were implicated.

The night of the jail break McErlane and Moran walked all night in a westerly direction, reaching Maywood early in the morning. They separated at Rochelle. McErlane has been in New Mexico and Arizona most of the time, he said.

Mrs. Geo. E. Cole, Wilmette Red Cross Worker, Dies

Mrs. Louisa Cole, wife of George E. Cole, well known in Chicago civic affairs, died at her home, 911 Greenwood avenue, Wilmette, yesterday from apoplexy. Mrs. Cole had been active in Red Cross work and civic affairs. She was a member of the Chicago Woman's club. Besides her husband, she leaves a son, Monroe Cole. The funeral will take place Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home. Interment will be at Rosehill cemetery.

BOYS HELD AS ROBBERS.

John Wrobel, 13 years old, 652 North Green street, and his companion, Frank Jaworski, 696 North Sangamon street, 11 years old, were arrested yesterday. The boys with three others are said to have entered the saloon of Charles Buystron, 630 North Halsted street, through a transom over a door and took $15 in nickels out of a telephone box which they pried open.

THE TRIBUNE'S RECOMMENDATIONS TO VOTERS

In the adjacent columns "The Tribune" presents its recommendations to voters for the election next Tuesday. The recommendations include state offices, county offices, sanitary trustees, and the Municipal court.

Women may vote in this election for sanitary trustees, for members of the board of review, and for members of the board of assessors. They also may vote on the Michigan avenue link proposition and the traction ordinance.

"The Tribune" makes no recommendations for individual candidates for congress, believing the voters of the several congressional districts are sufficiently informed of the issues. "The Tribune" urges voters to make the basis of their selections the qualifications of candidates for intelligent service and sturdy Americanism rather than for the partisan loyalty demanded by the leaders of the party in power, taking into consideration, however, those legitimate considerations of party principle and conviction which are the life blood of government in our representative democracy.

As to the legislature, "The Tribune" recommends the advice of the Legislative Voters' league, summarized elsewhere.

THE LITTLE BALLOT.

THE TRIBUNE earnestly urges its readers to vote Yes on these five propositions on the Little Ballot

For the unified traction ordinance.
For the $60,000,000 good roads bond issue.
For the $3,000,000 Michigan avenue link bond issue.
For the constitutional convention.
For the state banking law amendment.

Voters in Cook county outside of Chicago are advised to vote for county board members as follows: William Busse, Joseph Carolan, George A. Miller, William H. Maclean, Dudley D. Pierson.

WOMAN SEEKING DEATH IN LAKE SCHOOL TEACHER

The woman who jumped into the lake at the foot of Fifty-ninth street Friday gave her name yesterday as Miss Irene Richardson, 320 North Lockwood avenue. She was formerly a Chicago school teacher, but had not taught this year because of ill health. She lived with a sister, Miss Inez Richardson. A brother, W. H. Richardson, is general passenger agent of the C. & E. I. railroad. "She was not seriously ill," said Miss Inez Richardson, "and she could not be worried about money. She only recently bought a $100 Liberty bond."

Owner Finds Automobile After Reporting His Loss

Charles Frankel, a Pittsburgh merchant, reported to the police yesterday that his machine, a Stutz, had been stolen. Then he went out to play detective himself. He found it in front of the Sherman hotel and said the speedometer showed it had been driven about twenty miles.

CITY'S NEED OF NEW BASIC LAW IS MADE CLEAR

Final Appeals for Votes for Constitutional Convention.

The real situation that confronts Chicago and Illinois—a situation that can be cured only by revision or amendment of the Illinois constitution—was disclosed last night in a statement issued by Frank I. Bennett.

Mr. Bennett was chairman of the finance committee of the city council during the Busse administration. He has been commissioner of public works and is now director of public works in the cabinet of Gov. Lowden at Springfield.

Text of Statement.

Mr. Bennett's statement follows:

"The calling of a constitutional convention is of the utmost importance to the city of Chicago.

"The present financial plight of the city again emphasizes the necessity. Every voter and resident of Chicago and the county should vote yes on this question. The responsibility for the financial condition of the city does not rest upon any one administration. It is constantly recurring and an omnipresent handicap to the city's progress, due to the expansion of the city's functions and the progressive demands of the age and to the increased cost of labor and supplies.

Bankruptcy Not Real.

"While in a technical sense the city treasury is bankrupt, due entirely to the shackles in which the city is bound, as a matter of fact it has less debt than any other city of like size and importance. The financial situation is due entirely to ridiculous financial regulations and the antiquated and imperfect revenue laws of the state concerning the assessment of property.

"Most citizens labor under the impression that the city of Chicago is responsible for the greater part of the taxes collected, when, as a matter of fact, the city receives only 26¾ per cent (including bond levies), or a little more than one-fourth of these taxes.

Duties Most Important.

"In brief, it has most of the important duties to perform with the least comparative income. In other words, of every dollar paid by the taxpayer the city receives only 17¼ cents toward the maintenance and operation of its multitudinous and important activities, and 9½ cents for the interest and retirement of bonds issued upon the vote of the people for permanent improvements.

"Important and necessary as is this reform in the city's revenue, there are many other changes urgently necessary to make the city, county, and state government efficient, up to date, and economical, such as revision of the entire taxation system, reorganization of court procedure, a short ballot, greater control of local affairs, and unification of government. Chicago is hampered and tied by its present legal limitations. Every citizen should now lend a hand in order that the city may expand and progress in keeping with its natural destiny."

POLICE UPSET HONEYMOON OF HOLDUP'S BRIDE

A bridewell romance which originated in the Detroit house of correction was rudely interrupted with the arrest of an alleged holdup gang Friday night. William Claude Clements, "The Candy Kid," and his bride of a week or so, Mae Williams Clements, were two of those taken. Clements and Edward Rice, alias Ed Kelly, an associate, last night confessed to one holdup and admitted they had pulled several other jobs.

Rice and Clements were serving sixty days in Detroit, when the latter was hurt. In the hospital he met Mae Williams, a nurse, who wished to reform him. After he was released, and after waiting for Rice, they came to Chicago and were married here. Rice was best man.

Funds for a honeymoon were lacking. Rice and Clements confessed they chartered an automobile and drove to Tony Schroeder's place at 3401 North Halsted street. Mrs. Schroeder's famous cooking draws wealthy patronage to the place and the holdups got $420 cash and jewelry worth $750.

While the men were lining up the ten customers in the restaurant Clements' bride was waiting in the car half a block away as a "lookout."

Detective Sergeant Al Woolrich of the first deputy's office, who arrested the honeymoon party in a saloon at Polk and Dearborn streets, thought he had the cabaret gang which held up Patrick Farley's saloon at 935 South Western avenue. Farley and some of his patrons looked over Mae yesterday and couldn't identify her as the "girl with the rose in her hair," the leader of the Farley holdup.

Charles Vosicky, the chauffeur who drove the trio on several raids, also is held by the police. He denies all knowledge of their business, but admits they presented him with a watch in addition to a liberal fee. The watch was identified as one taken from Schroeder's.

The police believe the Clements gang has been here much longer than they admit, and are trying to trace other recent holdup jobs to them.

$2,000 WORTH COFFEE STOLEN.

A wagon and horses belonging to the A. T. Willett Teaming company, 230 East Grand avenue, were stolen, coffee valued at $2,000 being in the wagon, at North Dearborn and west Kinzie streets yesterday afternoon. Later the wagon and horses were found but the coffee was missing.

LIQUOR ZONE IS THROWN AROUND M'KINLEY PARK

Half Mile Limit Is the First of Several U.S. Plans.

Without warning, the government yesterday established a half mile liquor zone around McKinley park, in the "back o' the yards" district, in which Camp Lloyd Wheaton is located, and wiped out of existence nearly 100 saloons.

Within an hour after the order was signed, at 2 o'clock, federal operatives were in the district, and by dark every saloon in the area, which includes half a mile from the outer boundaries of the park on all sides, were out of business.

This is the first liquor zone to be established by the government around military camps within the city. Others are in prospect, and will probably be announced within a few days. Roughly speaking, the new liquor zone is bounded by Forty-fifth street on the south, Sacramento avenue on the west, Bross avenue on the north, and Hermitage avenue on the east.

Quartermaster Guard There.

McKinley park, which is located at Thirty-ninth and Robey streets, was officially designated as Camp Lloyd Wheaton a few days ago and classed as an army post. Located there are approximately 300 soldiers and eighteen officers, who constitute the guard on the quartermaster department buildings in the vicinity. The military authorities have complained of lax liquor regulation for some time, particularly as regards the sale of bottled goods.

Confer on New Laws.

Coincident with the announcement of the liquor zone, United States District Attorney Clyne said that tomorrow he will hold a conference with Capt. George Anderson of the enforcement division of the United States army, and representatives of Corporation Counsel Ettelson's office, at which the vice and liquor ordinances to be presented to the city council for passage will be determined. At the present time about fifteen ordinances are under consideration, and at least ten will be submitted to the council, each covering a different phase of the situation.

Capt. Anderson, who was made official representative of the army and navy secretaries some time ago, to take up the local vice situation, it is understood, was requested to come to Chicago again to make recommendations as to the ordinances. At the meeting it will also be determined the day the city council will be asked to sit in special session and act on the new city laws.

AUTO SPEEDERS ADD ANOTHER TO ROLL OF DEATH

One more death was added last evening to the list of those where automobiles have knocked down persons on the street and the drivers have sped away.

Edmond F. Goodwin, 63 years old, 258 North Washtenaw avenue, was knocked down by a light delivery truck in front of 2653 West Lake street late in the afternoon. Two young men in the machine increased their speed when they looked back and saw Goodwin lying in the street. Goodwin was taken to the Washington Boulevard hospital, where he died.

Goodwin is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. George Goodrich, and two sons, George and Edward Jr., sergeant in the Eighty-first engineers, who departed yesterday for France.

This death, with that of Miss Elizabeth Riley, killed at East Fiftieth place and St. Lawrence avenue, and the serious injury to another woman, knocked down at East Fifty-first street and Grand boulevard, both on last Thursday night, and all by automobilists who drove away without stopping, has aroused Coroner Hoffman. He said yesterday he will prosecute any who may be arrested for causing such deaths or injuries.

Michael Sabrico, aged 5, 1108 South Jefferson street, was killed yesterday by an automobile owned by Dr. Ralph Pagano, 831 West Polk street, in front of his parents' home.

The child was attempting to hitch on a wagon, and, loosening his hold, fell beneath the wheels of the automobile. Dr. Pagano stopped his car and started to pick the child from the ground when Mrs. Angelo Sabrico, the boy's mother, ran to the street with a drawn revolver.

A threatening crowd gathered and Dr. Pagano drove to the Maxwell street station and reported the occurrence.

UNION CAR MEN INDORSE TRACTION MEASURE AS BEST

Approval of the new traction ordinance was given yesterday by the officers of the street car men's local union. This local, with 11,000, is said to have the largest membership of any in the country. Following is how they feel on the ordinance:

"We, the undersigned, members of Division 241 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés of America, after careful consideration, have concluded that the interests of the members of our division will be better safeguarded after the war under the proposed traction ordinance than under the present franchise. We, therefore, recommend the passage of the ordinance to the members of our division."

Some of the opponents of the measure have made misstatements that the street car men opposed the ordinance.

ECONOMY!

Voting for Boulevard Link Issue Shown to Be Saving and Not Wasteful Expenditure.

In a statement urging the public to vote for the $3,000,000 Michigan avenue improvement bond issue, the North Central Business District association points out what is almost certain to happen if the work is held up by failure of the bond issue at the polls next Tuesday. Under the heading, "What to Expect If the Bond Issue Fails," are grouped the following:

Delay now will cost the city many times the bond issue asked for.

The work which would be begun on $50,000,000 buildings to be started as soon as the war ends will have to be held up at a time when labor conditions are uncertain.

Chicago will not have the finest street in the world for many years to come and will thus lose the use of one of its chief assets.

The great start the city has made in the last few months will mean nothing unless the street is completed.

The board of local improvements cannot remedy conditions in traffic north and south unless the bond issue is passed to give immediate funds for improvement of the temporary route.

SALOON AND DRUG STORE VICTIMS OF HOLDUP MEN

Four men who rode in a large green car held up the saloon of Richard Zerbst at 4201 Archer avenue last night and took $30 from the cash register and $56 from a customer, Edward Woodrich of 8760 Fourth avenue.

Shortly afterward the drug store of William M. Schemelin was visited, and he was robbed of $45. The same gang is supposed to have done both jobs. Schemelin was bound to a chair in the back room of his store while the robbers seached the place.

CAR ORDINANCE MUST WIN, SAY AROUSED VOTERS

Straphangers Will Push Measure Over, Reports Show.

Chicago's fight to obtain unification of the surface and elevated lines and a subway system, as provided in the new traction ordinance to be voted on at Tuesday's election, appears to be won.

From all sections of the city yesterday came reports that men and women voters were aroused because the defeat of the traction measure means many years of delay in gaining a transportation system adequate to serve the city's needs.

Straphangers declared they would support the ordinance to the last ditch, and most of these repudiated the lies which have been spread regarding the measure.

Some statements said the ordinance would carry 2 and 3 to 1. There was not a section of the city which did not report that the ordinance had better than an even chance of carrying. The object in having a large affirmative vote is to impress the state legislature with the necessity of granting the enabling acts necessary to carry out the provisions of the ordinance.

Lies are Nailed.

Every lie circulated about the ordinance has had the props knocked out from under it by the citizens' committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, which has waged a campaign for the ordinance in every section of the city. In this work it has had the aid of a woman's advisory committee, of which Mrs. James W. Morrisson is chairman. The women workers carried their messages into every large industrial center. Their appeal was directed to the straphangers, mostly women, who have to work for a living and who depend entirely on the traction lines to get to and from their work.

Employers of large numbers of persons joined in the fight. They pointed out that not only would the workers be benefited by the time saving and rapid transit features of the new plan, but that it meant a money saving for them because fares will be lower under it than under present conditions.

Large Employment Fields.

The employers urged the success of the ordinance among corporations because it means a larger field for them to draw employés from. With rapid transit a worker need not care what part of the city he lives in, as he will have the assurance that he can get to work and home again by means of the rapid transit system, and in comfort.

Walter L. Fisher, the city's special counsel in traction affairs, talked to an overflow meeting yesterday at the Woods theater. Mr. Fisher tore into the persons and organizations which have spread falsehoods about the ordinance, and the politicians, who, for selfish reasons, want it defeated.

Betterment a Necessity.

"If there was no other reason for immediate action on the traction question the necessity of providing decent transportation facilities for the working women of Chicago would be reason enough, and you women are going to decide for yourselves and for this community whether you and the rest of us are going to travel in sardine cans or in comfort," said Mr. Fisher.

"In this new ordinance every right the city has, including the right of municipal ownership, is better protected than it is now. No man has succeeded in pointing out a single right which it loses or fails to improve.

"For instance, we have the right to take over the surface lines on six months' notice by paying the capital account. We preserve that right and extend it to the elevated roads, whose franchises run for twenty-six years and which give the city no such right.

"We take the present properties from their present owners, who would otherwise have the right to select their own directors, and we turn the properties over to nine trustees for the public, of whom the city has named five and will name all after 1927. We give the city council the right to make and enforce all orders necessary or appropriate to secure adequate service and facilities.

Fares Not Increased.

"The new ordinance will not increase fares. On the contrary, it will enable us to have lower fares than will be possible under the present ordinance or under any other plan than service at cost. The state public utilities commission now tells us what fares we shall pay and what service we shall get, and it has allowed street railway companies not the cost of the service but 7 per cent net on their entire capital account. Already there are three cities in Illinois that have 7 cent fares and ten cities that have 6 cent fares.

"Under the new ordinance the present security holders will receive less than 6 per cent on their total capital account. They have been making more than this and the state utilities commission has held that 7 per cent is a reasonable return.

"The women of this city can decide, and probably will decide, the most important municipal question in years. I have every confidence that they will decide it in favor of immediate traction improvement under the new ordinance."

Lipps Talks at Theater.

Ald. William F. Lipps talked to another large meeting at the La Salle theater. He also showed the ordinance is wanted by the voters, and that they will support it.

Ald. Lipps outlined at length the painstaking and thorough method in which the local transportation committee of the city council went about the selection of experts and the drafting of plans.

"Our opponents have changed their literature in the very last day or so, when they found they had made a mistake in going so far from the truth and some things they said had to be nailed."

Ald. Lipps then took up, point by point, the charges of the opposition and contradicted them—especially the canard that frontage consents had been set aside by the ordinance and that taxes would be raised.

"They are telling you that we are providing for a fare raise," he went on. "In that connection I want to say that the passage of the ordinance does not hasten one minute a change of or raise of fare in Chicago. It does the reverse. It possibly means a lower fare in the future than we would have if it were not adopted. The war board has raised the pay of street and elevated railway employés to a figure of something like $4,500,000 per annum.

Fair Raise Due Now.

"The utility commission has a right to raise fares now, and if they succeeded in raising the fare to 6 cents on the elevated and 6 cents on the surface and you used the two properties for a combined ride you would be paying 12 cents. This proposition in the ordinance is that the fare shall continue 5 cents as heretofore for a combined ride, if you please, on the surface and elevated, with the further provision that the trustees, in the event that the receipts will not meet and pay out the returns the companies are allowed, to fix a 2 cent transfer fee as between surface and elevated only. In other words, 5 cents for fare and 2 cents for a transfer would mean a 7 cent fare on a combined ride on surface and elevated, against 10 cents you pay now for the same ride.

"It may interest you to know that some 25,000 people in Chicago pay 10 cents fare, using both systems, and a round trip fare of 20 cents. The ordinance definitely reserves the present transfer facilities between surface cars and surface cars and between elevated and elevated. In no place does the ordinance give the companies anything now in the control of the city, and wherever a change of conditions is provided it is a gain for the public."

Other Meetings Held.

Ald. John H. Lyle talked for the ordinance at a meeting in the Exchange building, Union stock yards.

C. O. Frisbie, chairman of the south side committee of the ward organization committee, talked to workers at the Illinois Steel company.

Three meetings of life insurance men were held.

The Jefferson Park Improvement association will have a parade this afternoon to urge votes for the ordinance. A stage coach, which was operated on Milwaukee avenue thirty-three years ago, will lead the parade.

C. Harrison's Family Not with Him Against Transit

Former Mayor Harrison, who is opposed to the new traction ordinance, does not seem able to keep the members of his immediate family in line against the ordinance.

Mr. Harrison's sister, Mrs. Heaton Owsley, 3150 Sheridan road, and Mr. Owsley, a brother-in-law, have pledged themselves with the allied better service committees to work for the interests of the ordinance.

Pledge cards from Mr. and Mrs. Owsley were received yesterday.

CIVIC LEADERS BACK FIGHT FOR CAR ORDINANCE

History of Campaign Is Blue Book of City's Welfare Aids.

Passage by the city council of the new traction ordinance came after months of negotiations between the council committee on local transportation, Walter L. Fisher, the city's special counsel on traction affairs, and the traction officials.

When Mr. Fisher first proposed the "trustee plan," it virtually was rejected by the committee and the traction men. They said it was too idealistic and that while the theory of it was good, it would not work out in a practical manner.

Mr. Fisher kept urging his plan, and finally got the aldermen and the traction officials to accept it. The committee recommended it to the council, and the first vote in the council was 48 yeas to 20 nays for the measure. Mayor Thompson then vetoed the ordinance, saying it was a vicious piece of legislation and an effort to defraud the people.

Ordinance Is Repassed.

The aldermen, who went through years of subway planning and negotiations with the traction lines in an effort to have a subway system and unification of the elevated and surface lines, thought otherwise. The council then repassed the ordinance over the mayor's veto by a vote of 51 yeas to 19 nays. Here are the aldermen who voted for the measure over the mayor's veto:

Lies Are Spread.

The spreading of lies and wild rumors was the first step taken by politicians to defeat the ordinance by misinforming the voters. Various were the fantastic stories spread. Then it was that the thinking men and women of Chicago got into the campaign and back of the ordinance.

One of the first of these was the Chicago Association of Commerce. A traction committee was named and a thorough investigation of the ordinance was made. Various opinions were sought, and then the association went on record as indorsing it.

The next step was to name the citizens' traction committee which took up the work of appealing to the people to investigate the benefits to be derived and then vote for better transportation. On account of the influenza ban on public meetings the "silent" campaign had to be done by personal canvass. Prominent men volunteered to serve on the committee. Following are the members of the committee:

Lucius Teter,
Walter J. Raymer,
Alfred Decker,
John V. Farwell,
Chas. R. Holden,
Blaine S. Smith,
Harry A. Lipsky,
Richard T. Fox,
Wyllys W. Baird,

W. A. Bond,
Chas. W. Folds,
Wm. Wrigley Jr.,
A. W. Tobias,
Albert F. Keeney,
Foster S. Nims,
Joseph W. Moses,
Marvin B. Pool.

The example of the Association of Commerce was followed by other organizations. Following is a list of those which have publicly indorsed the ordinance as one of the most beneficial pieces of legislation ever put up to the voters.

Chicago Association of Commerce.
Chicago Real Estate board.
Citizens' Association of Chicago.
Civic Federation of Chicago.
North Central Improvement association.
Eighty-seventh Street Development association.
Women's Association of Commerce.

Blue Island Industrial club.
Twenty-Seventh Ward Civic Welfare club.
Women's advisory committee, Chicago Association of Commerce.
Allied Better Service committee.
Rotary club.
Illinois Women's Athletic club.
Republican Women's Association of Illinois.

Women Open Campaign.

The women of Chicago also got into the fight. A women's advisory committee of the citizens' committee was formed and the work of reaching the women voters in a whirlwind educational campaign was begun. Mrs. James W. Morrison, civic worker, suffragist, and clubwoman, served as head of the committee, and Mrs. Robert McCall as vice chairman.

WHAT CAR ORDINANCE PROVIDES

THE new traction ordinance provides:

Unification of the surface and elevated lines and a subway system.

Extensions of the elevated and surface lines into all sections of the city, particularly the outlying portions.

Creation of a board of trustees, approved by the city council by unanimous vote, to have full control and operation of the unified system, subject to orders from the city council.

Rapid transit for 65 per cent of the car riders, instead of the 20 per cent which enjoy this now.

A single fare for the entire system and universal transfers, except in the remote possibility that a 2 cent charge for a transfer might be made for a combination subway-surface ride.

Expenditure of nearly $100,000,000 in the first six years of the ordinance for improvements. This will meet the after-war labor problem.

Service at cost.

Franchise to extend until city purchases system, or it becomes public property through an amortization process. It has been estimated that by this method the city will, within fifty years, own a transportation system valued at upward of $500,000,000, without having had to issue a dollar's worth of bonds to pay for it.

A saving of from 20 to 50 per cent in time for the car riders.

Existing companies turn over all their properties to the trustees and cancel all present grants.

Adequate provision for keeping the system at an efficient point at all times.

City traction fund to be used for the construction of subways, owned by the municipality and leased to the trustees.

DR. H. G. WELLS WITH RED CROSS IN THE BALKANS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—The war council of the American Red Cross announced today that organization of the American Red Cross commission to the Balkan states has been completed. Henry W. Anderson of Richmond, Va., heads the commission. Dr. H. Gideon Wells of Chicago, director of Sprague institute, bacteriologist and pathologist, will direct the medical activities.

Wonderful Amusement Park Property For Sale

THIS delightful park on the shores of Lake Ontario, and consisting of upwards of one hundred acres, beautifully wooded, will afford a wonderful money making opportunity for any one possessing experience in managing Amusement Parks or Hotels.

Besides such features as roller coaster, carousal, ferris wheel, picture shows, and other popular amusements, there are beautiful picnic grounds which, in the summer season, are patronized by three picnic parties on an average each day.

There is a baseball diamond, a cricket field, and a running track.

The main feature, however, is a hotel, and in connection therewith a restaurant. On the grounds there is a dancing pavilion, tennis court and bowling green for the use of guests.

This park is widely known and a favorite stopping place for motorists. It is patronized by the people of three cities, who reach it by steamboat, trolley, train, and motor car.

To purchase this fine property you only need $15,000 cash—for the wonderful proposition that we are prepared to make to an immediate buyer calls for only that amount as a first payment, and the balance by mortgage.

If interested, write immediately to obtain our complete offer and terms.

We have had big revenue from this Park last season—and so will you, if you have the requisite experience in conducting resorts. We can furnish the best of reasons for wishing to sell. For particulars

ENEMIES OF CAR ORDINANCE TURN ALL GUNS LOOSE

Thompson and Hoyne Give Categorical List of Objections.

Opponents of the new traction ordinance came out yesterday with appeals to citizens to reject the plan when they vote at Tuesday's election.

Mayor Thompson cited six reasons why the measure should be voted down. He said glowing promises made for the ordinance were doubtful, that fares would be increased under it, that it means more profits for the traction barons, that the city is not sufficiently protected by it, and that it ties up the municipality forever, as the ordinance contains no forfeiture clause.

Mr. Hoyne Also Objects.

State's Attorney Hoyne followed this with a list of eighteen questions which he asked Walter L. Fisher, the city's special counsel in traction affairs, and Ald. H. D. Capitain, chairman of the city council committee on local transportation, to answer. Most of these were legal objections to the ordinance. The prosecutor called the ordinance "camouflage" and a "confidence game." Some of his questions follow:

"Under the existing 1907 ordinances the companies are compelled to build twenty-three miles of extensions each year, and the city council has the power to forfeit the traction companies' privileges for failing to perform its duties and obligations. Why have you failed to put any forfeiture or penalty provision in the proposed new ordinance?

Why No Forfeiture?

"The traction companies have failed to keep their promises under the 1907 ordinances to build extensions, and have otherwise broken their promises. Why have you and the city council never compelled them to perform their obligations or used the forfeiture provision?

"Under the 1907 ordinances, which have many years to run, street car fares are limited to 5 cents, and transfers must be free. Will you point out any section or clause in the proposed ordinance which places any limit upon the right of these trustees, until 1928, to raise fares to any amount they deem necessary?

Will City Lose Receipts?

"Do you deny that under the proposed new ordinance the city in the future entirely loses its right to 55 per cent of the net receipts of the surface street car lines which it now has under the 1907 ordinances, and which has amounted to date to $25,000,000, which sum is now in the city treasury?

The Citizens' Nonpartisan Traction Settlement association issued a statement claiming that the claims made for the 1907 ordinances had not been fulfilled, and that no better result could be expected of claims made for the new ordinance.

Miss Dobyne Finds Fault.

Carl D. Thompson, secretary of the Public Ownership league, and Miss Margaret Dobyne of the Woman's City club, issued a statement from Delos F. Wilcox, former chief of the bureau of franchises of the New York City public service commission, and a member of the Public Ownership league. Mr. Wilcox found the following faults with the ordinance:

The purchase price is excessive.

The franchise is not limited to twenty years.

The city is getting farther away from financial ability to purchase the traction systems.

The ordinance provides for reckless financiering.

The taking over process will not work out so the city eventually will own the lines without having to buy them by means of bond issues.

When Experts Disagree.

The trustees are self perpetuating and irresponsible.

"When traction experts disagree," said Miss Dobyne, "what choice has the layman but to take the safe course and vote against the ordinance?"

The Anti-Traction Ordinance league issued a statement showing why the ordinance ought to be defeated. This said the ordinance would double street car fares, that the ordinance was a perpetual grant and that the trustee plan is a fraud.

FARES
The new traction ordinance will not increase fares. It will increase service.
The whole purpose of the ordinance is to give the people of Chicago best possible transportation at least possible cost.
This means adequate rapid transit facilities, particularly new elevated lines and subways—more cars—seats instead of straps—speed and comfort for car riders.
Don't be fooled by the cry that the new ordinance means higher fares. It does not. On the contrary it means lower fares—service at actual cost—universal transfers.
War conditions may compel the State Public Utilities Commission to advance fares in Chicago before the new ordinance goes into effect. If so, the economies of unified operation, which the new ordinance provides, are the city's safest guaranty that fares will be reduced.
Remember! The new ordinance means city control instead of private control. The properties will be directed by a board of trustees appointed by the city council.
Should this ordinance be defeated, we must endure years of declining service, then start all over again. Do you want this? Or do you want good transportation now?
We believe the new traction ordinance is good for the car rider and good for the city. We recommend that every voter, man and woman, vote "YES."

ECKIE RECALLS CHICAGO-MICHIGAN GAME OF 13 YEARS AGO

RIBUNE' CRITIC IG FIGURE OF 2 TO 0 CONTEST

aroons and Wolverines Revive Relations Next Saturday Here.

Y WALTER ECKERSALL.

n Stagg field next Saturday Chi- o and Michigan will renew football tions after a hiatus of thirteen rs.

ams representing these colleges e met on the gridiron fourteen s. The Wolverines have been vic- nine times, while the Maroons e captured five contests. There e been no ties, but some of the es have been decided by the nar- margin of one point, and in the meeting in 1905 Chicago was vic- ous by a 2 to 0 score.

tagg and Yost were coaching Chi- o and Michigan, respectively, thir- years ago when the Maroons won 2 to 0 game which still is famed the hardest game of football ever ved in the west. It was the sort contest which is not won until final whistle, and it was one that t 32,000 football fans in a frenzy excitement.

he writer played quarter back for cago in that game and readily lls incidents of the battle which sed the ball to travel from one end he field to the other. Each team plays which might be called nce formations. They could be d just once, and if they failed to the work and practice spent in r perfection went for naught.

Michigan Victor in 1904.

n the previous year I played the e position when Chicago traveled Ann Arbor and Michigan won, 22 2, in a game which the Wolverine ers expected to win by at least y points. Billy Heston, whom I sider the greatest half back who r graced a gridiron, was captain t year. Other members of the team e men who helped make Michigan tball history.

lost of the Chicago players who ved in that game were eligible the owing year. The Maroons were sat- d with their showing and the men de up their minds that Michigan uld be beaten. The Wolverines were eduled to meet Illinois at Urbana he middle of the season and Coach gg took the entire squad there.

Michigan Betting Choice.

he day of the game broke clear crisp. There was just enough t in the air to give the players nty of ginger. Michigan was the orite at odds of 2 and 3 to 1. Both ms were in the best of shape and s doubtful if ever two elevens ped on a western gridiron coached such high points of football effi- cy.

hortly after the bitter struggle rted Curtis, Michigan's great left kle, was ruled out of the game for ghing the kicker. I happened to he punter in that game, and I have ays maintained that Curtis did not ntionally mean to hurt me, but the lision stunned me and I was com- ed to call for time, the second oc- ion in my four years of college foot- l that time was taken out for me.

Parry's Two Handled Belt.

oth teams resorted to punting dur- the first half, and neither threat- d the other's goal. In the second half tide of battle turned in Michigan's or. Chicago was forced back into own territory, but finally obtained session of the ball on its twenty d line.

tagg had given Chicago a play in ich big Ed Parry, the giant tackle, a belt with two handles around his ist. He was called to a fullback's ition. When the snapping signal s given, I was to hold the ball until rry got nearly up to the line and n I was to grasp one of the handles he was to pull me through.

Parry got as far as the line, but in hurry to get to the scrimmage line did not go the necessary five yards her side of the center, as was the when the ball passed through only pairs of hands. Chicago was nalized fifteen yards and the ball n rested on Chicago's five yard line. ngs certainly did look bad for us.

There was only one thing left to do d that was to punt. Tom Hammond, w a major with the One Hundred d Forty-ninth Field artillery, played Michigan, and was as good a field l kicker as there was in the west that time. On top of this, a strong nd was blowing against Chicago and was a certainty that Michigan would ve made a fair catch and Hammond given the opportunity to kick a goal m placement.

I gave the punt signal, but I saw Michigan players shift to the other e to protect the wide side of the ld. This left the narrow side practi- lly unprotected. I did not shout ange signal, for if I had Michigan uld have suspected something. I ve another signal loud and clear ich called for a run from a punt mation.

Long Chance Saves Maroons.

was standing six yards back of my n goal line, but I managed to get by chigan and carried the ball twenty rds into the field before I was pped. On the next play I punted ball down the field and out of range Hammond's educated toe.

Michigan then cut loose with trick ays, but Chicago finally obtained pos sion of the ball in midfield. The me was nearing an end and the ound gaining efforts of Chicago had en spent. We were compelled to nt, and, as luck would have it, I ppened to hook the ball just right th my foot. In spiral fashion it iled over the Michigan line.

Clark, the Michigan back, lost his ad for the moment and tried to run ball back into the field of play. adenock, Chicago's tackle, hit him, t did not hang on. Just a second ter Capt. Mark Catlin of Chicago tore to the Wolverine and tackled him so d that he was downed back of his line for a safety and the two nts which spelled a Chicago victory.

BOB MAC DONALD'S CLEVER PUTT

Eighteenth Hole at Fox Hill Remembered by Indian Hill Pro from Experience There in Title Play.

BY GEORGE A. O'NEIL.
[Lake Shore Country Club.]

GEORGE A. O'NEIL

Bob MacDonald, the "Big Six" from Indian Hill, always thought until he played the eighteenth hole at Fox Hill, Staten Island, that a two shot hole to be considered seriously ought to measure about 450 yards.

Upon this occasion Bob was competing in the metropolitan championship. Walter Hagen was leading the field with a score of 294 until Gil Nichols turned in a 292. As Bob stepped up to the tee with a three to tie Gil, the distance did not seem to worry the Chicago expert, as he always looked at a 350 yard hole as a mere drive and pitch.

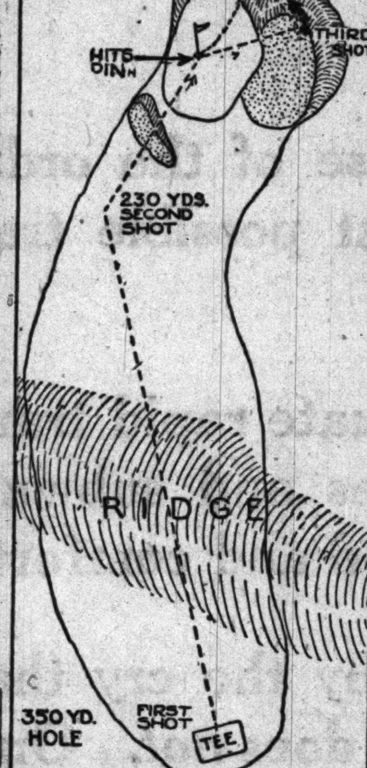
Bob's drive was slightly pulled, leaving a difficult angle to approach the green, which was faced abruptly at the back but sloped to the right. The second shot was played right on the pin with plenty of back spin, but the ball struck the pin on the first bound and glanced to the right. The slope accentuated the roll and the ball finally lodged half way up the side of the bank—across a narrow pit.

Mac glanced but a moment and saw that it was impossible to play straight out to the hole, and that the only possible chance was to play to the back of the green and up the bank, high enough to gain enough momentum to start the ball back toward the hole. This he did and was rewarded with his three, to the amazement of the gallery. Possibly Bob was surprised also. Still, he believes in giving the ball a chance, as it has to go somewhere.

Golfers who have watched the different experts will agree that Mac has more shots in his bag than any golfer in the country, and usually displays them at the opportune time.

Chicago has been fortunate in seeing him play several times this summer in Red Cross matches, and it is worth while to go miles to see him play. From driving to putting his style is faultless.

Looking over his wonderful record this summer, his best round was played at Birmingham, Ala. Partnered with George Simpson, he broke the record of the course with a 70, beating "Tips" Hutchinson and Bobbie Jones, 2 and 1.



At Mayfield with low ball of 73, he and Jim Barnes finished 1 up on Chick and Warren. Again, at Rockford, Chick and Warren found Bob at the top of his game when he broke another record, scoring a 69.

FLOSSMOOR MAN UP FOR RE-ELECTION AS HEAD OF GOLF BODY

BY JOE DAVIS.

In recognition of his fine work in managing this year's Red Cross campaign, Charles F. Thompson of the Flossmoor Country club has been renominated as president of the Western Golf association. Under his direction the exhibitions staged this year under the auspices of the W. G. A. netted over $303,000.

Mr. Thompson has been one of the mainstays of the association for many years, starting as secretary in 1907, being secretary the following year, and president in 1909.

Kansas City Man Renominated.

Charles W. German of the Blue Hill C. C. of Kansas City has been renominated for the vice presidency, and Guy F. Gregg of Milwaukee, the treasurer, has been honored similarly. James H. Barnard of Glen View will succeed Charles M. Smalley of Olympia fields as secretary.

Horace F. Smith of the Nashville Golf and Country club, who with the exception of two years, has been on the directorate since 1907, in various capacities, again heads the directors. S. G. Strickland of the Westmoreland C. C. and Wilbur H. Brooks of Mayfield, Cleveland, have been renominated. The new candidates are A. M. Parry of the Country club of Indianapolis, president of the Indiana Golf association, and John W. Hughes, Omaha Field club, vice president of the Trans-Mississippi Golf association.

Strong Men on Board.

The personnel of the new board is exceptionally strong and should golf return to near its normal conditions next year, the directors will have a lot of work to do The officers also are well distributed geographically.

The annual meeting will be held Jan. 18 at the Chicago Athletic association at 8 p. m. as the annual dinner will be dispensed with.

The nominating committee for this year consisted of Sherman C. Spitzer, Oak Park C. C.; C. T. Fertig, Colorado Springs; C. H. Hyde, Buffalo C. C.; F W. Hale, Omaha, C. C.; T. B. Paine, Atlanta A. C.

Nominating Committee Named.

The nominating committee for 1919 is as follows:

Hon. C. M. Foell, chairman, Skokie C. C.; Jesse L. Carleton, Sunset Hills, St. Louis; J. W. Mackelfresh, Hamilton County G. C., Cincinnati; J. L. Mullin, Northland C. C., Duluth, Minn.; C. O. Pfeil, Memphis C. C.

Burmeister Runs 97 in Shoot at Lincoln Park

With a run of 97 before he missed, Charles Burmeister made high score of 99 in the 100 target event at the Saturday shoot over Lincoln Park Gun club traps. The feature event was a 100 bird race between C. R. Seelig and Jerome Lino. This match was made about two weeks ago, but was put off by the "flu." The match was for 100 targets, 16 yards rise, Lino to give Seelig five dead birds. Lino made the excellent score of 97. Seelig got a bad start, but finished strong with 88, which with the 5 handicap made his score 93. High scores:

100 targets, 16 yards—C. G. Burmeister, 99; J. Lino, 97; L. C. Larsen, 97; L. B. Clarke, 96; F. Snyder, 93; Lieut. Arvin, 91; D. F. Fesler, 87; C. R. Seelig, 87.

25 targets, 16 yards—L. C. Larsen, 25; L. B. Clarke, 25; C. G. Burmeister, 25; J. Lino, 25; D. F. Fesler, 24; H. J. Foster, 24; C. R. Seelig, 24; Lieut. Arvin 24; H. Snyder, 24; Dr. Belknap, 24; W. W. Sterling, 23; H. A. Rhodes, 23; Dr. W. N. Sem, 22; W. G. Peters, 22.

MILLIKEN, 20; SQUADRON C, 0.

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—The Squadron C eleven from the Chanute aviation field was defeated by Milliken university this afternoon, 20 to 0. Milliken scored each of three touchdowns with forward passes, for which the aviators had little defense.

Golf

ELIOT H. EVANS won the low gross prize in the handicap at Evanston with 76. First low net went to Dr. H. Combs, 83—8—75, Dr. Clyde, 84—8—76, and C. E. Gibson, 101—25—76. A. B. Blackburn has been appointed manager of the New Evanston club and will take charge at once, so as to have everything in shape for an early opening in the spring.

President C. Fred Yegge and his associates picked Mr. Blackburn from a number of applicants. He was for four years manager of the Seattle Golf and Country club and later at Mount Diablo Park club. Last year he was at Grand Beach, Mich.

WESTWARD HO.

Thomas Cusack won the president's cup at Westward Ho, defeating F. Spelman, 2 up. In the final for the Gale cup J. L. Gallagher defeated J. R. McGregor, 1 up.

EDGEBROOK.

Members of the Edgebrook club closed their competitive season with the annual harvest home dinner. More than 100 guests took part in the festivities which included the presentation of the cups and medals won during the season. Among those who carried home the trophies were Robert Newman, champion; Dr. A. O. Young, E. Kirschner, A. Stoll, Mrs. E. L. Brouthers, Mrs. H. H. Conway, Miss Jack Stoll, champion, and Miss Elsie Stoll.

EDGEWATER.

Sweepstakes was the feature at Edgewater and P. T. Starck with his card of 89—10—79 carried off the honors in class A, while A. J. Kasper Jr., with 87—6—81 was second. Fred Klein, who had 96—20—76, won in class B, and W. Davis, 108—21—87, finished second.

SKOKIE.

The Hoyt cup at Skokie was taken by S. A. Wilmarth, who disposed of W. G. Lerch by 1 up in the final. The victor also took the choice score trophy for the season with a card of 57.

RIDGE.

Ernest Liebke finished first in the annual poultry handicap at Ridge yesterday, his score of 94—24—70 winning the turkey. R. N. Dow, 89—17—72, won a duck, and W. H. Murray, 100—28—72, took the first chicken. A. S. Young, 86—12—74, took the second chicken.

$1,726 TAX FROM SEMI-PRO CLUB

The Garden City Baseball club, one of the leading semi-pro teams of Chicago, paid the government for war taxes on admissions the sum of $1,726.53 for the season of 1918.

This sum represented the tax on 42,563 paid admissions and 1,268 passes. The divisions were: Box seats, 4,247, 5 cents each; season passes, 1,268, 5 cents; grandstand, 30,630, 4 cents; pavilion, 7,186, 3 cents; boys' seats, 500, 2 cents.

When it is considered this team plays only Sunday ball with a few Saturday games, the attendance and returns to the government clearly indicate the interest in "neighborhood" baseball.

Mack Wants Law Against Selling Players; His Sold

New York, Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Having realized nearly $200,000 in the sale of his once invincible Athletics, Connie Mack now favors startling reforms. He wants to have the practice of selling baseball stars stopped by legislation.

"I know the fans will smile," says the veteran manager, "but the sale of ball players for fabulous sums should be wiped out. These spectacular transactions result in inflated salaries, discontented players, disgusted fans, and give baseball a black eye in general. If a club doesn't want a player he should be released outright, or waivers should be requested before turning him over to a club that needs him at the uniform price of $2,500. There should be no more $25,000 or $50,000 deals. They are harmful to the game."

Mack is a trifle late, but his views are sensible.

BASEBALL BACK AFTER WAR, SAYS UMP BILL EVANS

Patient Ill by Overdose of Finance, but Health Good Otherwise.

BY BILLY EVANS.
[American League Umpire.]

What is the matter with baseball?

That question has been put to me time and again since the close of the 1918 campaign of the major leagues.

BILL EVANS

Being in a position to know the inside facts from the playing and executive standpoints, and being familiar with the viewpoint of the fan, through the the constant rubbing of elbows with him, I believe I am fairly competent to offer at least an opinion—my opinion.

After having made a careful and thorough diagnosis of the patient, I can say without hesitation there is nothing serious the matter with friend baseball. The patient has suffered, and is still suffering from a number of minor ailments, but there is no need for worry.

To Come Back After the War.

After the war there will be a readjustment of affairs and baseball will be no exception. Minor evils which have hurt the game somewhat will be erased, new and strong stimulants will be introduced, and in a short time the greatest game of them all will again ride on the high crest of popularity.

During the last few years baseball has been attacked from stem to stern. It has been the target for all kinds of criticisms, much of which was deserved, but a great deal more that was exceedingly unjust.

Coin Gets Too Much Stress.

I am convinced that the baseball fan is more interested in what happens on the ball field than anything that pertains to the magnates, which means the financial or executive end of the game. For some time comment on the playing end has been curtailed. Space once used exclusively for comment or breezy notes about the game and the players often is used now for a far different purpose.

Baseball is in a sense my livelihood. Often you hear people say the active participants tire of reading or talking about the business in which they are engaged. I believe that is erroneous. The successful players are those who talk shop from the start to the close of the season, and who are equally interested during the off season.

Reads War News First.

In my own case, the sporting page, until the United States got into the war, was the page to which I first turned on picking up a newpaper. Now it takes me some time devouring the war news before I get to the sporting page. The war, then, is one big reason why professional baseball is suffering. When the kaiser has been derricked and sent back to some bush league baseball will have recovered from its most serious ailment.

The baseball fan, the players, and the umpires like to read about the game. When the executive part of the pastime is relegated to the background for good, then baseball will have recovered from another drawback.

Tired of Money Details.

The reader of the sporting page has tired of hearing about the bickerings of the magnates and players, the high cost of operating a ball club, the fabulous salaries handed out, and a lot of other dope that in in no way concerns the playing end of the game, the one feature that interests all lovers of baseball.

False publicity is a poor advertising medium. It may for a time attract attention and create comment, but in the end it works to the great detriment of the thing that is being so boosted. For the last four or five years baseball has unconsciously been the victim of such a publicity campaign. I feel that the blame for such a condition can be traced directly to some of the club owners.

I also feel certain all the club owners have reached such a conclusion. Last season two big leaders in American league circles told me "exaggeration" had done more to hurt baseball than anything they could mention.

Rushing Seat Sale for Camps Grant-Taylor Game

Advance orders for seats for the football game between Camp Grant and Camp Taylor elevens next Saturday at Cub park indicate that a big crowd will attend. The receipts will go to the athletic funds at the camps. It was announced yesterday by Chairman Emil C. Wetten of the executive committee that there would be about 10,000 seats at $1 each. Then there are a number at $1.50, also at $2, and a few choice ones at $2.50.

Two thousand seats will be taken by soldiers from Camp Grant and Camp Taylor has ordered 500. Many of the clubs in Chicago are taking large blocks of seats.

U. S. Outdoor Pistol Shoot at Camp Logan's Range

Annual outdoor championships of the United States Revolver association will be held today and next Sunday at Camp Logan, the United States navy rifle range. The Milwaukee express, 8 a. m. train, will stop at Camp Logan for the shooters, although it is not on the time table. The following matches will be shot:

Match A—Army revolver.
Match B—Army pistol.
Match C—Individual military.
Match E—Four man team.
Match F—Pocket revolver.
Match G—Novice.

Woods and Waters By LARRY ST. JOHN

SQUIRREL HUNTING IS NOW IN SESSION.

THE love of squirrel hunting is inherited by people of American ancestry. Even in the good old days when big game was plentiful in this country men and boys took pride in their ability to shoot squirrels—when our forefathers went to war they carried their "squirrel rifles" with them and often they called themselves "the squirrel hunters."

The varieties of squirrels common to the middle west are the ground squirrel, chipmunk, flying, red, gray, and fox squirrels, the black squirrel being merely a color phase of the grey. Of these only the two last named are worthy of serious consideration.

True, some hunters will shoot a red squirrel, but while he is interesting and sassy to the point of impudence, he is a worthless little beggar not worth a cartridge and his flesh has a strong flavor because of his nest robbing proclivities.

The habits of the gray and fox squirrels are similar and the hunter who does not know them in a general way is at a disadvantage. Where squirrels are plentiful it is not much of a trick to get a mess, but in most regions considerable "know how" and skill is necessary. In a recent issue of "Hunter-Trader-Trapper" there is an article on squirrel hunting written by a man who knows his business. Because he covers the subject so ably we trust that we will be pardoned for quoting at length:

"Gray squirrel hunting is best followed in the fall of the year, when the squirrels are cutting nuts and tree seeds. At this time the gunner goes into the woods in the early morning, about sunrise, or the afternoon, about 2 or 3 o'clock, and listens carefully for the merry buzz, which is very hard to reduce to words but which the squirrel hunter will recognize as soon as he hears.

"This, of course, assumes that the squirrel is working on hard cutting food, like hickory, walnut, or butternut. Often they cut on other trees, such as gum, oak, chestnut, buckeye, pine, etc. There is a different sound when the squirrels are working on these soft cutting growths, the sound ranging from an almost inaudible snip-snip when they work on horn beams to an occasional crash when they work on horse chestnuts and heavy acorns.

"Misty mornings are especially good for squirrel hunting, for then the gunner can hear better, while the squirrel is at a disadvantage in being unable to see well what is on the ground and every footstep of a squirrel will shower down a fall of water (dew) that can be heard a fourth of a mile. Afternoons are as good to hunt in as mornings sometimes, but not usually.

"It is during hickory nut time that the most interesting hunting is had. Often several squirrels will be in the same tree, all busily sawing on the hard shells with that indescribable but unforgettable whir. Hunters should creep up to the tree and pick off the squirrels when opportunity offers. If he is using a rifle he can secure several in a short time, as the rifle makes little noise, and if the squirrel is killed outright, as most are with a well placed rifle bullet, there need be no disturbance on the ground between shots—simply shoot, let the squirrel fall, and lay there. But many hunters shoot scatter guns at squirrels, and these seldom can get more than one or two out of a tree at one time, no matter how many be working there."

A few weeks ago we published at the request of a reader directions for skinning a squirrel. Since then a number of friendly readers have told their ways, some of which are worth knowing. One hunter in southern Illinois, where squirrels are plentiful, describes the method known in that section as "shucking." Here it is:

"With a sharp knife cut a deep gash under the tail where tail and body meet. Cut through the bones of the tail, but leave the skin adhering to it. Then run the knife back under the skin and loosen all the tendons that adhere to the tail—this must be done or you will pull the tail off.

"Now stand on the tail, take both hind feet and pull. The body will peel right out of the skin, all except the legs and head. Finally take hold of the skin on the belly and pull skin from the legs and neck. With a little practice one can clean a squirrel in three minutes without getting a hair on the meat."

Young squirrels fried in butter are what most any one would call "good eats," while old, tough ones stewed with potatoes and onions with a thick gravy are an old standby in many an autumn camp.

In some parts of the country where squirrels are so numerous as to be a menace to the crops it is a good plan to smoke the surplus. Soak the hams or saddles in salt water a few hours and smoke in a smudge of hard wood—the result is something choicely good. In most regions, however, it is good sportsmanship to take only what you can use and leave some for the other fellow and for seed stock. That the other fellow may not do the same is no excuse for you to go out and kill all you can find. A better plan is to go gunning for the other fellow.

DEERFIELD HIGH TRIMS EVANSTON

In a contest staged on Northwestern field yesterday morning, Evanston High team was outclassed by Deerfield High 27 to 7. Deerfield did its scoring early, holding its supremacy over the Evanston boys throughout the game. Evanston scoring only once, in the second quarter. Holmes, Jackson and Morgan scored touchdowns for Deerfield.

A brilliant end run by Brandt of Evanston, who intercepted a forward pass on his own five yard line, carrying the ball to the enemy ten yard line, was stopped.

BADGERS GALLOP OVER BELOIT IN 21 TO 0 VICTORY

Wisconsin Simply Takes Good Practice Work Against Collegians.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Behind closed gates Bert Mann led the Badgers to an easy victory over Beloit, the final count being 21 to 0. Although Beloit fought hard, Wisconsin's goal was at no time in danger and the Cardinal eleven was not forced to uncover anything except straight football.

For a time it appeared as if the game would develop into a punting duel between Sundt and Coe, the advantage being with the former, who played a stellar game at all times. Beloit fumbled frequently, often causing the loss of the ball. Smith replaced Sundt in the second quarter and after making a number of good gains went over for the final touchdown.

At no time were the downstaters able to gain through Mann at left tackle. Wisconsin's backfield was fighting hard at all times and displayed considerable drive. Leaper had everything his own way at right end. Lineup:

REPORT RANKING OF PLAYERS IN TENNIS DEC. 13

Executive Committee of National to Hear Rating of Murray.

New York, Nov. 2.—The annual meeting of the executive committee of the National Lawn Tennis association will be held in this city Dec. 13. Recommendations regarding tennis activities for 1919 will be prepared for presentation at the annual meeting of the association in February, and the report of the ranking committee received.

Much interest centers in the latter report this year and a general shifting of players is forecast. Virtually all of the "first ten" of recent seasons are engaged in war service, and with the exception of R. Lindley Murray, the 1918 champion, few engaged in tournament plays. The latter participated at Southampton and in the Forest Hill titular tourney, and his showing in these events will be the basis for his ranking.

This year's tabulations also mark the inauguration of the new system in which the players of approximately equal skill are grouped in classes instead of being assigned positions in numerical sequence.

AERIAL VICTORY FOR POPPERFUSS

Word from France conveys the information that Lieut. Henry R. Popperfuss of Chicago, a former University of Illinois athlete, has shot down his Hun plane. Popperfuss is a member of the Ninety-fifth aero squadron of the First pursuit group, and was on patrol duty when he spotted the Hun flyer and sent him down in flames.

Popperfuss gained considerable athletic fame at the University of Illinois, where he was captain of the basketball team and also a member of the track team, his specialty being the half mile and high jump. He attended the aviation school at Champaign, then went to Italy, where he was commissioned a lieutenant, after which he went to France to fly.

Veteran Pedestrians Issue Challenge 3 Years Ahead

Here's a chance for a future book. Dan O'Leary, who will be 80 years old on June 29, 1921, and Joseph Badenoch, who will be 70, will walk any two veterans 150 miles, this then being the combined age of the challengers. They are willing to give their opponents an allowance of fourteen years. Badenoch coached O'Leary on his first walk here in 1874, and Dan wants him to be his partner in his final match. Dan yesterday visited Parson Davies, the veteran sporting promoter, who is stopping at the Elks' club here, preparatory to going to the Elks' home at Bedford, W. Va.

THREE CUSHION MATCH FOR TITLE HERE THIS WEEK

Kieckhefer Will Defend World Championship Against McCourt.

BY JOE DAVIS.

After one postponement on account of the prevailing epidemic, Champion Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago and Charley McCourt of Cleveland, twice former champion, will meet on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday night at the Elks' club to decide possession of the Brunswick trophy, emblematic of the world's three cushion title.

This match will be a much stronger magnet than the first of the present season, in which Kieckhefer defeated Charley Otis of New York. McCourt is noted for his dashing attack, and while the local southpaw doubtless will be a slight favorite, McCourt's fine record must not be overlooked.

McCourt Former Champion.

In May, 1916, the Clevelander won the world's title from Charley Ellis, 150 to 149, and after losing it to Hugh Heal regained it in February, 1917, by defeating George Moore at New York, 150 to 122. The Cuban, De Oro, won the title from McCourt, and Kieckhefer vanquished De Oro last spring.

In the Interstate league McCourt tied for second place in 1914, tied for fourth place in 1915 and won in 1916, finishing one game ahead of Charley Ellis. In 1916, when Kieckhefer was representing Bensinger in the Interstate league, he won 23 of 24 games on his own table, McCourt being the only player to defeat him, getting a 1 point verdict.

Defends Title Three Times.

Augie won the title from De Oro in their memorable match this year in the Inter Ocean building and has since defeated Bob Cannefax, Pierre Maupome and Charley Otis.

Although McCourt is 41 years of age and Augie 29, they started their three cushions careers about 1910, both graduating from the pocket billiard ranks. The seating capacity of the Elks' room is about 350, and a full house is assured for each night. Seats are now on sale at the Elks' club, West Washington street.

The committee in charge of the billiard drive in connection with the campaign of the United War Charities will meet at 625 South Wabash avenue tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

"They shall not change"

Here is one of the newest friends of Owl and White Owl. He is a type of the splendid fighters who made good on these historic words uttered before Verdun "Ils ne passeront pas"—"they shall not pass."

Oddly enough the motto of Owl and White Owl is quite like that of their French friend. It is, "They shall not change." Which means that the mellow fragrance of Owl and White Owl shall always be as dependable as it is today. Constantly backing up this pledge of dependability is the great Owl leaf reserve—worth nearly $2,000,000.

PURDUE SWEEPS MAROONS TO DEFEAT IN LAST PERIOD, 7-3

CROWD IN KHAKI CARRIES VICTORS OFF THE FIELD

Fumble Fatal to Chicago After Stegeman's Drop Kick Almost Wins.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—A Purdue crowd saw Purdue triumph over Chicago here for the first time in the many years the Boilermakers and Maroons have been meeting. The score of the hard fought game was 7 to 3. The scoring was compressed into the first and last periods.

Chicago scored in the opening quarter on a drop kick by Stegeman. Purdue won the game in the final quarter with a touchdown registered by Markley, who made a brilliant twenty yard run after catching Quaist's forward pass. In both instances fumbling led up to the score.

In the previous twenty-three annual clashes Purdue won three and tied one, but all were played at Chicago.

Evenly Fought Game.

The quality of football displayed by the two elevens was inferior to the usual conference standard, but, considering how war has robbed Big Ten teams of their best material, the opposing aggregations made a good showing. They were evenly matched, and it was nip and tuck to the finish.

The Boilermakers presented a remarkably strong defense in the first and second quarters, although Waters' fumble put Chicago in position to score its three points. But for that one time the Boilermakers' goal was never in serious danger.

After Waters' costly fumble in the first period, Stegeman recovered the ball for Chicago on the Purdue twenty-five yard line. Stegeman then sent the ball sailing between the posts for a field goal.

Markley's Hair Raising Run.

Markley's touchdown that won the game came soon after the final quarter began. Purdue had punted and Sears fumbled the ball, which was recovered by Bendixen on Chicago's thirty-five yard line. Quaist then made a pretty forward pass of twenty yards to Markley, who drove forward twenty yards more for a touchdown, shaking off three tacklers.

In the closing minutes of the game the Maroons strove desperately to score by forward passes, but each march toward the goal was checked.

First Quarter See-Saw.

After the kickoff, Chicago's attempts to gain were futile, the Purdue line and ends holding firmly. The Maroons punted and Daley returned to midfield. A fumble by Daley, however, gave Chicago the ball on the Maroon thirty-five yard line. The oval changed hands several times without either side gaining much ground, and then came Waters' fumble and Stegeman's drop kick.

Chicago kicked off and Purdue showed a flash of speed, Daley circling an end for twenty-five yards, and Murphy and Waters plugging the line until the play was on the Maroon twenty-five yard line. There a Purdue pass was intercepted by Hermes and the quarter ended.

Purdue Passes Incompleted.

In the second quarter neither side scored, although Daley again carried the ball well into Chicago's territory. Incompleted passes spoiled Purdue's chance to score. The Maroons managed a few gains, but got nothing like an opportunity to score.

In the third period, Purdue's first string backfield went back into the game after a rest of one quarter. Although both teams managed to gain five to ten yards at times by end runs and line drives, both were forced to punt. In the closing part of the period Reber intercepted a Purdue pass and Hermes, Elton, and Halladay worked the ball down to the Purdue twenty-five yard line. Here Miller was ruled out for slugging and Chicago received a thirty yard penalty.

Chicago Stakes All on Passes.

After the Purdue touchdown in the fourth quarter, Elton and Bradley pulled a twenty yard forward pass and then a pass, Elton to Sears, netted two yards. But the Boilermakers made a stand on their twenty-five yard line and took the ball on downs.

Daley of Purdue displayed brilliant flashes of speed early in the game, tearing off fifteen and twenty yard runs repeatedly. But he tired, due to an injury received in practice some weeks ago, and had to retire in the second quarter. Later he went back into the lineup, but did not display the same speed.

The Purdue and Chicago lines were evenly balanced and there was not much difference in the relative strength and speed of the backfields. For Purdue, Markley, Daley, Roth, Birk, and Quaist did stellar work, while for Chicago, Elton, Hermes, and Halladay starred.

Purdue Much Improved Team.

While there was little brilliant work in the game, Purdue showed great improvement over its form last Saturday, when De Pauw squeezed out a 9 to 7 victory over the Boilermakers. Chicago lacked its usual driving power that so regularly has spelled defeat for Purdue teams on Stagg field.

The attendance at the game was about 5,000, half of the spectators being in khaki. There was a wild scene when the 2,500 Purdue soldiers rushed out on the field and carried the winners to their quarters. Lineup:

ILLINOIS' OPEN PLAY, PUZZLING HAWKEYES, GIVES 19-0 VICTORY

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Coach Zuppke's title seeking Illini this afternoon defeated the Hawkeyes in one of the most fiercely contested games ever played on Iowa field, 19 to 0.

Coached in open style play and taking advantage of every opportunity, the visitors scored a touchdown at the start of the second quarter when Kirkpatrick pulled a run around the right side of Iowa's line.

The Hawks played the visitors to a standstill in the first quarter, which ended 0 to 0. The teams were about even in the second quarter, although the visitors scored a touchdown. The half ended 6 to 0.

Illini Open Up Passes.

In the third quarter Illinois opened up a series of brilliantly executed passes and scored again. The backs carried the oval up the field by steady plunging to Iowa's 35 yard line, whence Lanum passed to Lovejoy for 20 yards and Sabo circled left end for the second counter. Leitch failed on one attempt to kick goal from touchdown and Kirkpatrick also failed.

At the opening of the fourth quarter, Illinois took the ball on Iowa's forty yard line and began a steady march to the Hawkeye goal. Successful passing, coupled with Sabo's gains through line, carried the ball to the five yard line, whence Sabo plunged over for his second touchdown. Butzer, subbing for Lovejoy, kicked the goal.

Iowa Fails to Solve Attack.

Although Illinois entered the game with the odds against them, they played a good brand of football from start to finish. The visiting line made holes and the backs found little trouble going through after the first half ended. Forward passing by Zuppke's men was of high standard and they made many gains by the aerial route. Robert Fletcher, Walquist, Sabo, and Kirkpatrick were the stars. They showed fast good open field running and forward passed spectacularly.

Iowa could not stop the drives and failed utterly to solve the mystery of the Illinois attack, which included numerous trick plays. In the first quarter the Hawks carried the ball to the Illinois twenty yard line in the first five minutes of play, but after that the home team did not have the ball often enough to make a noteworthy showing.

Hawkeyes on Defensive.

The Hawkeyes were on the defensive for the remainder of the game. They played pluckily but almost hopelessly for three quarters. Although the Iowa line did not play up to its standard, several players distinguished themselves by breaking through the Illinois line and tackling the runners for losses. Capt. Reed, Synhorst, and Slater, the big Negro tackle, performed brilliantly in that respect. Lohman, with limited opportunities, carried the ball often and well. Lineup:

In the Wake of the News

By RING W. LARDNER

THE EPISTLES OF EDNA.

Chicago, Oct. 31.

Dear Mr. Hayes;

Well, Mr. Hayes, I agree with you that calling each other "Mr. Hayes" and "Miss Conklin" does seem "cold" as you put it and I assure you I would be anything but "offended" were you to address me by my first name. But though I know it's "ladies first" in most cases do not you think it ought to be the "other way about" in this case? I do and I "insist" on you being the first one to "break the ice."

But please do it the very next time you write as I am crazy to call you by your first name as I have always been crazy about the name "Lionel." But it "simply wouldn't do" for me to start the "ball rolling," "Nevaire!"

But listen, Mr. Stingy, do you think you are playing the game fair? You asked me to tell you "all about myself" and I did so like a little "lamb," but it was with the understanding that it was to be "fifty-fifty" if you will pardon my slang. But did you tell me "all about yourself?" "Not yet but soon." There's some more slang and I'm glad mother isn't reading this letter or she would scold her little "Eddie." She says I am the slangiest little thing in the world and it's unladylike to be slangy. Do you think me unladylike Mr. Hayes? Or do you think me something worse than that? I'll bet you do. But "anyhow" if you don't play fair and tell me your "life history" or at least a part of it, I am going to be simply boiling and you don't know how terrible I am when I'm really mad! So you would better beware! There! Aren't you frightened, or does it just make you laugh to think of poor little me being "terrible?"

Did the change in time bother you? I haven't got it straightened out yet and I suppose I never will. I'm always thinking it's late when it's early and vice versa.

When are you coming to "Chi?" I see just "millions" of sailor boys on the streets every day, but never the one I—— But I would better not say that or you would probably think me perfectly crazy. Well, I guess I am on some subjects, one in particular. But I'll never tell you what the "one" is.

Well "anyhow" the town isn't quite as dead as during the "flu" as the theaters are open now and the cabarets "and everything" though it hasn't made much difference to me as I haven't been anywhere and had really rather stay home and "dream" than go out alone or with somebody who I was not crazy about. But I do love the theater when it's with some one I like but it's been ages since that kind of a some one asked me to go. But please, Mr. Hayes, don't think I am "hinting" as it would be more than enough "enjoyment" just to be with you without you taking me anywhere. But do write soon and say you are coming to "Chi" soon and will call up.

Yours (?)

INDIANA BEATEN BY CAMP TAYLOR SOLDIERS, 7 TO 3

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 2.—Indiana's colors were carried to defeat here today, but in that defeat there was victory, for Coach Steihm's eleven held the Camp Taylor gridders to a 7 to 3 score and outplayed the soldiers in three of the four quarters.

Camp Taylor's eleven was composed of all college men who were stars several years back, but Indiana opened up some wonderful work and thereby gave Camp Taylor the hardest kind of a time to prevent them from scoring a touchdown in the last period. Jenkins and Briscoe carried the brunt of the offensive for Taylor. The former cut in with two long end runs which were responsible for a touchdown in the second period. Feeney kicked goal.

In the first quarter Faust dropped back to the thirty yard line and booted the ball between the cross bars for Indiana's only score of the game. Lineup:

Yost's Men Slump While He's Watching Maroons

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—With Coach Yost at Lafayette watching the Maroons and the home team left under Coach Douglas' direction, the Michigan eleven took one of the worst slumps of the season today. There was a forty-five minutes scrimmage between the varsity and reserves, in which Smith, half on the reserves, was put out of the game with a bad cut on the temple. Hereafter there will be no reserves. Daniels, quarter back of Menominee, is proving himself a real find.

GOPHERS CRUSH CARLETON TEAM BY 59 TO 6 SCORE

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—The Minnesota S. A. T. C. football team today overwhelmed the Carleton-St. Olaf combination at St. Paul by a score of 59 to 6. A small crowd saw the runaway victory for the Gophers, whose offensive and defensive power showed a great improvement over last week.

An eighty-five yard run on the kickoff through the entire Carleton team by Capt. Kingsley of Minnesota for a touchdown and similar performance by Lampi for sixty yards were the outstanding features of the game. Carleton scored its only touchdown when Kingsley made a poor punt from behind his goal to his own twenty yard line. Two penalties and one crack at the line sent Thuni over for a touchdown.

The game proved easy for the Gophers most of the time. Kingsley, Lampi, and Ekberg were the outstanding stars for Minnesota, while Thuni and Rowe played a corking good game for the losers. Lineup:

Columbia Eleven Beats Amherst in Game, 21 to 7

New York, Nov. 2.—Columbia defeated Amherst by a score of 21 to 7 today in a hard fought game in which Columbia's superior weight told against the Massachusetts eleven. Columbia's three touchdowns were earned by straight line smashing, combined with a few spectacular end runs. Amherst's score came at the end of the second period when it gained the ball on a fumble on Columbia's twenty-five yard line and pushed it over. Amherst was again near scoring at the end of the last period.

Grinnell Rolls Up Score of 71 to 0 Against Drake

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 2.—With a dashing, cohesive attack and an impenetrable defense, Grinnell college's eleven swamped Drake university, 71 to 0. Halfbacks Hase and Macey were Grinnell's stars, while McIntyre, center, and Ostrus and Brown, substitute guards, were Drake's mainstays.

GREAT LAKES TRIMS CORNELL BOYS, 33-3, WITH TEAM OF SUBS

Great Lakes, Ill., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—With only one regular, Knight, center in its lineup, Great Lakes had little difficulty in downing Cornell college of Mount Vernon, Ia., today, 33 to 3.

The game revealed the fact that Great Lakes has a splendid amount of second string material and the rooters would not be surprised to see Lieut. McReavey give some of his second team recruits a chance against Notre Dame next Saturday. Byers, former Ames quarter back, who ran the Gobs today, displayed wonderful form in running back punts, while Sayles, end, showed unusual ability in catching forward passes.

Cornell fought hard the first half and at half time the Bluejackets led only by ten points, the score for the half being 13 to 3. The Iowans scored in the first quarter when Milholin dropped a pretty goal from the field from the thirty-five yard line.

The heavy navy team, outweighing their opponents from Iowa by a big margin, plowed through at will in the second half and increased their margin to thirty points. Lineup:

SYRACUSE BEATS DARTMOUTH, 34-6

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 2.—Within a few minutes after the opening of the game between the Dartmouth and Syracuse S. A. T. C. teams on Pratt field this afternoon the outcome was merely a question of how much the Syracuse score would exceed that of the Hanover team, and after the forty-eight minutes of play the result was: Syracuse, 34; Dartmouth, 6.

Syracuse had a well rounded system of attack, a fast charging line, and an elusive set of backs that were good for gains of any sort from five to twenty yards. Syracuse was master of the situation at all times. Ackley, Kernan, Barsha, and Erwig made sensational gains time and again. Dartmouth's touchdown came in the second period, when McDermott picked up Ackley's fumble and took it thirty-two yards. Threshie took the ball over in two plunges from the three yard line.

SAILORS OF PIER FLATTEN PURPLE ELEVEN, 25 TO 0

Bluejacket Backs Vie with One Another in Gains Against S. A. T. C.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Navy triumphed over Army at Evanston field yesterday when the strong team of the United States auxiliary naval reserve school from the municipal pier buried the Northwestern S. A. T. C. eleven under a 25 to 0 score. The Gobs demonstrated their superior strength in the first period and maintained it throughout, scoring two touchdowns in each half. Only one of them was converted into a goal.

Koehler, Johnson, and Bryan, the Pier's back trio, proved strong enough to gain consistently when within striking distance of the goal, except in the first period. The game was free from fumbling except on forward passes, and was cleanly played. Quarterback Blocki made the brilliant play of the day when he got away for a forty yard run which paved the way to a touchdown.

First Period Is Even.

Neither team scored in the first period, in which the teams looked pretty evenly matched, although the play was largely in Purple territory. Only once did Northwestern get far into its opponents' terrain. That was when one of Cigrand's punts beaned an opponent and a Purple outpost recovered it on the Pier's forty yard line.

Northwestern soon was forced to punt, and was kept on the defensive the rest of the period. Near its end the Gobs crowded the student soldiers back to their fifteen yard line, where they stopped, and Johnson tried for a field goal, but missed.

Two Touchdowns for Pier.

Early in the second period the pier obtained the ball after an exchange of punts on the Purple twenty-five yard line and by a succession of drives scored a touchdown. Bryan carried the ball over on a plunge off the right wing. Johnson missed the goal. For the rest of the period the play was almost entirely in Northwestern territory.

Capt. Koehler of the pier resorted to forward passes, most of which failed, but just before the half ended Koehler got away a beauty which Johnson caught and was downed on the home team's fifteen yard mark. From these the gobs had little difficulty in hammering their way over for a second touchdown, Koehler making the final plunge. Johnson kicked the goal, raising the score to 13 to 0.

Bentz Recovers Blocked Kick.

For a time in the third period the Purple braced and held the bluejackets on even terms. The ball kept around the middle, changing hands frequently on punts.

With the ball on the Purple forty-five yard line, a punt by Holmes was blocked. Bentz, the pier's giant right tackle, picked it up on Northwestern's twenty yard line and with a clear field ran the rest of the way for the third touchdown. No goal was kicked, and the third quarter ended with the score 19 to 0.

Blocki in Brilliant Run.

After a couple of punts in the fourth period the bluejackets got the ball on Northwestern's forty-eight yard line. Blocki made a brilliant run around the Purple left end, then dodged through a broken field until he had a clear path, but Turner, the Negro tackle, overtook and tackled the runner from behind on Northwestern's ten yard line.

From there the Pier team smashed through for a touchdown near the corner of the field. Koehler carried the pigskin in the final plunge. The kickout failed and the score was 25 to 0. The game ended soon afterward. Lineup:

NOTRE DAME HAS 66 TO 7 VICTORY AGAINST WABASH

Crawfordsville, Ind., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Notre Dame trampled over Wabash, 66 to 7, taking advantage of their strong interference to smash the Scarlet line and race the ends for ten touchdowns. Notre Dame scored two touchdowns in each of the first three periods and then came back with substitutes in the final period and tallied four more. Bahan and Gipp, the two smashing half backs who trampled over West Point last year, outshone their teammates. Lineup:

GRANT'S SPEEDY ATTACK BEATS HARRISON, 37-7

Omer's Soldier Eleven Rushes Over Men of Indiana Fort.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Playing an even better brand of football than it did against Wisconsin a week ago today, the football team representing Camp Grant defeated Fort Benjamin Harrison at the Three Eyes league baseball park today, 37 to 7.

The local team completely outclassed the visitors in the first half and scored almost at will, while the Indianapolis eleven was powerless when it did get possession of the ball. In the third period Coach Omer sent in a number of substitutes, and the defense which these players put up was not stiff enough to stop a successful attack launched by Harrison, which resulted in Quarterback Rapp circling the locals' right end for a touchdown.

Scores in a Hurry.

Shortly after the kickoff Camp Grant obtained possession of the ball in midfield and then started a successful march to its opponents' goal. With Capt. Lutes, Egan, and Schneider carrying the ball on line plunges and off tackle drives, the Grant captain drove through center for the first touchdown. He added another point by kicking goal.

Camp Grant scored again shortly afterward by the use of the same attack, varied by a couple of successful forward passes which were received by Schneider. In this successful march the driving by Egan was the feature. This player, by line plunging, took the ball to Harrison's one yard line, and then Quarterback Delmore drove through center for the second touchdown. Capt. Lutes again kicked goal.

Delmore Makes Long Run.

The feature of the second period was the sixty-five yard run by Delmore. On a shift formation he broke through center and raced the distance for a touchdown. He shook off several tacklers in the course of the run and did some excellent dodging. Before the half closed Egan finished the scoring by making a perfect drop kick from the thirty-five yard line.

The third period was featured by Harrison's strong comeback which resulted in a score. In the last quarter Coach Omer threw all his regulars back in the game with the result Harrison was held at a safe distance from the goal and Camp Grant scored more points.

Generally speaking, Grant is a team of great possibilities, which will certainly give Camp Taylor an interesting game in Chicago this week. Lineup:

HIGHER PRICES FOR GRAIN AFTER BREAK EARLIER

War News Has Less Effect than Usual on Traders.

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Week end evening up with a reduced selling pressure made higher prices for grains after an early break, the close being ⅜ to ⅞c higher on the active futures in corn, while November lost ½c. Oats gained ¼ to ⅝c. War news had less effect on traders in Chicago.

Southwestern corn markets were weak with losses of ½@2c, St. Louis leading. Oats in the southwest gained ⅛@⅜c. In Minneapolis oats closed ¼c higher to ⅛ lower and Winnipeg was ½c higher.

Closing trades, compared with a week ago, show losses of 8@10½c on corn, c on oats and $1.20@1.60 on pork. November lard gained $1 and short ribs 35c. January lard, however, lost $1.15 and short ribs $1.

Corn Acts Oversold.

Corn prices declined early to new low levels on the present movement, on free selling by commission houses and the local element, but offerings passed into strong hands on the break, and a rally followed, the upturn in oats having some effect. There was also week end evening up on the part of local professionals.

At the inside figure December was within 2⅜c of the low point on the crop. Closing trades were at intermediate prices with November at $1.15½. December at $1.13⅛, and January at $1.14⅜, the spread between the latter two deliveries narrowing ⅜c.

Receipts from the new crop are increasing rapidly, and a larger movement is expected this week. Peoria had 18 cars of new, which graded well. Local arrivals were 185 cars, with sample values steady to 5c lower, the latter at the last. Domestic shipping sales were 125,000 bu.

For the week arrivals were 1,884,000 bu and shipments 1,133,000 bu. Last year receipts were 472,000 bu and shipments 151,000 bu.

Government Demand for Oats.

Oats showed independent strength due to the removal of hedges on sales of cash grain to the government. The latter bought here and in outside markets, the bids being both for shipment to Newport News and for winter storage, the latter presumably in boats at eastern points. Details as to the quantities were not given.

At no time were prices more than fractionally below the previous day's close, which was followed by a bulge of 1@1¼c, the close being at fair net gains with November at 67⅝c, December at 66⅛c, and January at 66¼c.

Domestic shipping sales were 100,000 bu, with receipts 141 cars. Premiums were ¼c higher with No. 3 whites 1@1¼c over December and standards 1¼@1⅜c over, the former showing an advance of 1⅜c from the inside figure earlier in the week relative to the future. For the week receipts were 2,675,000 bu, and shipments 1,754,000 bu. Last year receipts were 4,129,000 bu, and shipments 1,862,000 bu.

Rye Market Firm.

Rye was in fair supply and good demand with prices firmer. No. 2 on track sold at $1.62. The government continues to bid that price in store and bought 15,000 bu. Receipts 17 cars. Milwaukee and Minneapolis were unchanged. The northwest received 110 cars.

Barley sold fairly at unchanged prices, receipts being 31 cars. Spot sales were at 80@99c. The government bought about 100,000 bu at 99c@$1.01. Milwaukee and Minneapolis unchanged. The northwest had 159 cars.

Flax seed at Duluth closed ½c lower to 1c higher; November, $3.63; December, $3.55. Winnipeg, unchanged to 1c higher; November, $3.47; December, $3.37. The three markets received 57 cars.

Timothy seed firm. March, $11.70 bid. Toledo, unchanged to 10c lower; December, $5; March, $5.20, per bu of 45 lbs. Clover seed unchanged. Country lots, $25@35, per 100 lbs. Toledo, unchanged; December, $22.95; March, $24, per bu of 60 lbs.

Provision Prices Easier.

Interest in provisions was lighter and the undertone easier with expectations of big receipts of hogs this month. The monthly report on stocks here showed a smaller decrease than last year and was somewhat disappointing. Cash trade as usual on Saturday was light, and commission houses were fair sellers. Most of the interest centered in ribs and closing trades were at the inside prices. Shipments of cured meats for the week showed an excess of over 1,200,000 lbs as compared with last year and were nearly 4,000,000 lbs more than the previous week. Lard shipments, while decreasing nearly 2,000,000 lbs for the week, increased over 5,000,000 lbs as compared with last year. Prices follow:

PIT PARAGRAPHS

Sentiment of the grain trade remains bearish on the whole, although some of the local traders who pressed the selling side covered their shorts on yesterday's break and turned bullish temporarily, regarding the markets as oversold. There was a great deal of selling at times, however, on weakness in the cash grades of No. 4 and better. Reports from the country induced some wavering in sentiment. Peoria reported shipments of corn to St. Louis and Kansas City was said to be buying corn in St. Louis. Keokuk, Iowa, wired that they were buying corn to be shipped in there. Toledo reported that Kokomo, Ind., was bidding for corn in their market. Under such conditions some of the local traders with profits thought it best to secure them.

Indemnity trading was more divided than usual. In oats there was a demand for bids early in the day, but later offers were taken. The country does not seem uneasy over peace reports and there were numerous claims from Iowa and parts of Illinois of light offerings. The government has been a big buyer of oats in nearly all markets. It is said that Louisville sold 800,000 bu to the government. The Wheat Export company was inquiring for oats, but the prices bid were out of line. It is said that the oats are to be shipped east by lake for winter storage in boats, and the movement late this month will be large.

Notices were sent out yesterday by Secretary Mauff of the Board of Trade requiring that all trades, with the names, be reported. This is a move to check up all operations, so there can be no evasion of the rule limiting individual trading to 200,000 bu. There has been considerable gossip of late that some operators were evading the regulation.

Olive H. Perry Jr. posted his Board of Trade membership yesterday for transfer to Eugene M. Hoyne, who is to take over the business of Perry, Price & Co. within a few days. The firm will be Eugene M. Hoyne & Co. Mr. Hoyne is a brother of State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne.

M. G. Reitz is understood to take the Board of Trade membership of John E. Fitzgerald of the Hammond Distilling company.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

Demand for cash wheat was rather slow, and only a few choice cars sold at better than the basic figure. The same conditions prevailed at St. Louis. Local receipts were 139 cars.

Cash corn was in fair demand, but prices had to be shaded to make sales. Sample grades showed little change, while the No. 4 grades were off 5c, and No. 5 and No. 3 mixed quoted 7c lower. St. Louis was 2c lower to 4c higher on yellow, and unchanged to 5c higher on white and mixed. Kansas City unchanged. Omaha unchanged to 2c higher. Peoria unchanged to ½c lower, and Milwaukee 5c lower.

Offerings of cash oats were light and sold readily with prices unchanged to ½c higher. St. Louis was ½c lower. Kansas City unchanged. Omaha 1c higher. Peoria unchanged to ¼c higher, and Milwaukee ½c lower. Cash grain prices in leading markets follow:

FOURTH LIBERTY BOND TRADING TO START SOON

First Sales Expected to Be Made at Lower Prices.

BY GLENN GRISWOLD.

Trading in fourth Liberty loan bonds will commence this week under more favorable circumstances than have attended initial business in other loans. First trades probably will be made at lower prices than on earlier and similar occasions, but there will be little pressure on the market and third 4¼s will provide a balance wheel to trading.

All 4 and 4¼ issues made sharp gains yesterday apparently in anticipation of trading in the new issues. Gains ranged from 52 to 78 points and all closed above 97.90. First 4¼s ended above 98.

No Bank Subscriptions.

In all previous flotations the banks had subscribed, at times quite heavily, to insure the success of offerings. These holdings needed liquidating and were usually sold immediately. This gave the market a heavy selling pressure after trading began in each new issue. In the case of the latest issue banks made no subscriptions except in rare instances and then only for permanent investment.

Another selling impulse of other days is missing at this time. Thousands of subscribers in the past paid $2 or $5 as an initial installment on small bonds and defaulted on further payments, resulting in the forced sale of the bonds they had ordered. The fourth flotation called for a first payment of $10 per $100. This amount is not easily abandoned.

Fourth Should Be Higher.

Whatever speculative buying of Liberties there is aroused by peace prospects should favor the fourth as against the thirds 4¼s because of the longer maturity. In peace times with governments selling on a normal money market basis, the twenty year bond sells above the ten year certificate.

A number of new issues are expected to be announced this week. Many are now ready for the starting gun. Among the big and important ones will be a Pennsylvania note or short term bond flotation. The issue promises such popularity that brokers have been able to take orders without being able to give any of the terms of sale.

PRODUCE TRADE

Calls for butter Saturday were less urgent, owing to the recent advance in prices. The make has been reduced and stocks here have decreased. Cold storage supplies are down to 14,249,000 lbs, and in common storage are 44,119 tubs. Creameries were 52½@58c, the latter for 92 scores.

Firmness prevailed in the egg market, with a good demand. Receipts for the week were 23,900 cases, against 30,181 cases the previous week and 34,250 cases last year. Stocks in common storage and on track are 34,971 cases and in cold storage 856,351 cases. Firsts were 55½@58c, with higher prices for fancy. Live fowls declined ½c, spring chickens 1c, and prices on other poultry were unchanged. Fowls were 22@25c, depending on weight. Spring chickens, 23½c. Receipts for the week, 40 cars and 4,255 coops, a decrease of 6 cars and 150 coops for the week.

Potatoes brought higher prices with a better demand, Minnesota sacked stock being $2.00. Wisconsins, $1.50 to $1.85 per 100 lbs. Receipts for week were 521 cars, against 480 cars the previous week and 335 cars last year. There were 309 cars on team track and 48 cars in the outer yards. Supplies of apples are liberal and trade is good. Other fruits are in fair supply and selling well.

COTTON TRADE NEWS

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—After the slumps of the last few days, the cotton market showed strength today and closed with gains of from 16 to 43 points.

This was promoted by the firm technical position after the break of over 4 cents per pound from the high level of last Monday. Brokers believed to be operating for the French commission were among the buyers.

Reports from the goods trade indicated continued nervousness with conditions unsettled by the talk of peace prospects and the apprehension that the end of the war will mean either cancellations of government goods orders or a rapid shifting of mill machinery from government to civilian business. PRICES OF HOGS REACH LOWEST POINT OF WEEK

Average for Cattle 50 Cents Higher than Last.

Fresh receipts of hogs were only 4,000 larger than the number left from Friday at 14,000 and trade was more uniform than it has been for several weeks. Top and average at $18.40 and $17.75 respectively were lowest of the week and proved 5c below Friday.

Around 173,700 hogs were received at Chicago for the week, standing the largest since April and nearly 68,000 larger than corresponding week a year ago, but nearly 65,000 short of corresponding week two years ago, when offerings were lighter in weight than at present.

Week's average price of cattle at $14.90 stood 50c higher than the previous week, but $1.50 lower than the record week of September. However, the top was a new record at $19.70, standing 10c higher than ever before.

Lambs were 25@50c higher for the week until yesterday, when on a forced market that much decline was noted. Over half of the supply was not on sale. Yesterday's top of $16.25 was 60c under the high day of the week.

Estimated average weight of hogs received at Chicago last week was 228 lbs, being lightest since last January and 24 lbs lighter than first week of last September. Average previous week was 230 lbs and a year ago 207 lbs. It is expected the average will decrease materially the coming week.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $17.75, against $17.80 Friday, $17.15 a week ago, $16.95 a year ago, $9.45 two years ago and $6.90 three years ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 33,000 cattle, 42,000 hogs and 30,000 sheep. Next week's estimated receipts, 100,000 cattle, 190,000 hogs, and 135,000 sheep.

CATTLE FINISH WEAK.

Over half of the 5,000 cattle yesterday were to packers from outside markets and most of the balance were not offered for sale, as few buyers were willing to go out in the alleys. Closing prices for native steers were steady with a week ago, with top a new record at $19.70, while westerns were 25c higher, some reaching $17.00. Butcher stock was weak to 25c lower. Stockers and feeders held steady and bulls declined 25c. Calves were up 25@50c, best vealers making $16.50.

HOGS SLIGHTLY LOWER.

Hogs were steady to 10c lower, with the top and average 5c lower than on Friday at $18.40 and $17.75, respectively. Trade closed weak on packing grades. Offerings were unevenly higher than a week ago, the top showing 40c gain and the average an advance of 60c. Pigs were steady with previous day's low spot, but ruled 50c above week ago. Eleven markets had 40,000, or 4,000 more than a week ago and 2,000 less than a year ago.

LAMBS SUFFER DECLINE.

Saturday's lamb prices were generally 25@50c lower, with 2,000 of the 5,500 received on sale, while sheep held steady. Closing prices for sheep were strong to 25c higher than a week ago, while the closing break in lambs put prices back to a steady level for the week, with feeders strong. Week's top on lambs was $16.85, although prime ones topped yesterday at $16.25. Wethers reached $12.00 and ewes sold up to $10.35.

WAR NEWS AIDS UNDERTONE OF REALTY MARKET

Leasing Building Space Chief Activity of Week.

While there was nothing in the week's real estate transactions to indicate any betterment of market conditions as the result of the favorable war news on the western and Italian fronts, there is little doubt, however, that it already has been reflected in a betterment way, mostly in the way of an improved undertone. If nothing of an unfavorable character supervenes, marked tangible improvement is thought to be certain in the near future.

Just how soon the market will begin to show substantial evidences of a beginning of this period of activity, which brokers are confident is to follow the advent of peace, is uncertain, but it is believed the quickening process will be hastened by the promised activity in nearly all lines of building.

Predicts Record Activity.

Commenting on post war conditions, S. W. Straus of S. W. Straus & Co. says: "Evidence multiplies that concurrent with the end of the war there will begin an extended period of unprecedented activity in all branches of the building and construction industry. Housing conditions in nearly every large American city today are far below normal.

"While there will be a tremendous augmentation of all lines of construction work, the speeding up of building operations on a large scale will take precedence over all other phases of business. These activities are likely to be reflected in a greatly stimulated real estate market in all of the leading cities, and we shall find capital seeking these channels with increased enthusiasm. There will be a consistent increase in values where conditions are permitted to develop under the natural sway of supply and demand."

The market's activities for the week were principally in the way of leases of building space in the downtown district, the selling market being represented by only a few transactions of a generally unimportant character. A purchase by the Chicago Smelting and Refining company was about the most important transaction reported, while apartment property was only fairly represented.

Former Oil Plant Sold.

The purchase of the Chicago Smelting and Refining company covered the former plant of the Hills-Benedict Linseed Oil company at Loomis street and the river, which was acquired for a stated consideration of $60,000, the company giving back a part purchase money mortgage of $30,000, five years at 6 per cent.

The lot is irregular in shape, with a frontage of about 100 feet on Loomis street, with a depth of about 256 feet to the Chicago river, on which it has a frontage of about 200 feet. There are four buildings of one, two, and three stories, including a power house. These will be remodeled to meet the requirements of the company, which expects to take possession about May 1 next.

Two Transfers Recorded.

The property was first conveyed by the Benedict company last March to Stuart D. Boynton for a stated consideration of $40,000, subject to an incumbrance of $25,000, the transfer being made in connection with the liquidation of the company's business. A profit of $20,000 for Mr. Boynton is indicated.

In connection with this transfer Mr. Boynton conveyed to Harry Benedict the property in Lowe avenue, 191 feet west of Vincennes road, east front, 300x125 feet, and other property, for an indicated consideration of $40,000, according to the revenue stamps on the deed. While Mr. Boynton is connected with the Power Equipment company, the purchase is said to have been on his personal account. He is said to have paid off the $25,000 incumbrance and subsequently to have leased a part of the premises to his company and other concerns. In the present transaction he conveyed to Louis C. Robinson and Hyman Fienberg, comprising the Chicago Smelting and Refining company. Joseph Rubins represented the purchasing company in a legal way.

Seventy-fifth Street Deal.

John F. Geary has sold to Charles F. Parker the business property at the northeast corner of Seventy-fifth street and Paxton avenue for an indicated consideration of $53,000, subject to an incumbrance of $35,000, which the grantee assumes. The lot is 102x100 feet and is improved with a two story building containing three stores on the ground floor with apartments above, with a garage occupying a part of the Seventy-fifth street front.

David Mayer Sells State Street Leasehold

There was filed for record the sale by David Mayer to Samuel Perlman of the leasehold interest in the property in State street 60 feet south of Van Buren street, 59x100 feet, east front, a nominal consideration being given. The property was leased to Mr. Mayer by Lucy F. Alexander for a term of twenty years from May 1, 1909, at an annual rental of $20,000 for the first ten years and $21,000 for the last ten. E. F. Keebler & Co. represented both parties to the transaction, Henry Russell Platt representing Mr. Mayer in a legal way.

Will Sell City Property to High Bidder Nov. 18

The property at the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and Fourteenth street, belonging to the city, will be sold to the highest bidder, the bids to be received up to 11 a. m. of Monday, Nov. 18. The property, which has not been used for municipal purposes for a number of years, fronts twenty-four feet with a depth of 130 feet, and is improved with a one and a half story building at the corner and a two story building in the rear, of little value. The property is thought to be worth about $2,000 a front foot.

As indicated elsewhere the leasing of building space in the down town district was the most conspicuous feature of the week's market.

Probably the most important covered the Grace hotel at the southeast corner of Clark street and Jackson boulevard, which has been leased by Imelda Bremner to F. G. Sangster and Stuart Sinnott for a term of ten years from Oct. 26, 1918, at a reported term rental of $155,000. The lease covers the seven upper stories of the building, comprising the part used for hotel purposes, which contains 137 guest rooms. There are three stores on the ground floor not included in the lease.

Mr. Sangster is the proprietor of the St. Denis hotel at Columbus, Ind., and the New Exchange hotel at South Chicago. Mr. Sinnott is the owner of the Sinnott hotel at Paducah, Ky. It is stated the new proprietors will make extensive improvements both in modernizing and refurnishing the hotel throughout. P. H. Reed & Co. were the brokers.

Anna McGrath, former proprietor, recently leased through E. F. Keebler & Co. the building southwest corner of Michigan and Eighteenth street at an annual rental of $12,000.

Milwaukeean Takes Lease.

Herman Reel, who conducts the Reel Quality shop in Milwaukee and whose raw fur and wool business is at 21 West Kinzie street, has leased the store space at 602-606 South Michigan avenue for a term of eight years at a reported annual rental of $13,000, and has purchased from the Maison de Mode, which now occupies the store, the fixtures therein for a reported cash consideration of $11,000. It is said the fixtures represent an original outlay of over $40,000. The store will be redecorated and occupied by Reel & Co. with a ready to wear shop along the lines of their Milwaukee store. E. C. Brownlee was the broker.

D. A. Schulte, a New York cigar man, is reported to have leased the corner store at the southwest corner of Clark and Monroe streets in the Standard Trust and Savings Bank building, formerly the Fort Dearborn Bank building, for a term of years at a reported annual rental of $12,000. The store is about 40x50 feet, and it is understood the lessee plans to sublet a part of the space and occupy the corner with a cigar store.

There was filed for record the sale by David Mayer to Samuel Perlman of the leasehold interest in the property in State street, 50 feet south of Van Buren street, 59 by 100 feet, east front, a nominal consideration being given. The property was leased to Mr. Mayer by Lucy F. Alexander for a term of twenty years from May 1, 1903, at an annual rental of $20,000 for the first ten years, and $21,000 for the last ten.

Company Closes Many Leases.

The Hool Realty company closed leases of building space during October with an aggregate rental of $117,000. Some of the more important include for J. B. Moos to Bloomenthal & Frost the second and third floors of the McKenry building southeast corner Harrison and Wells street, for a term rental of $30,000; for same to Strasburger & Ascher half of third floor in Annex building, 139-45 South Wells street at term rent of $10,000; to Max Meyer & Co. the north half of third floor in same building at term rental of $10,000, and to Goldstein & Sax, north half of second floor, same building, at term rental of $12,000. For Brede & Ragoosky to Diamond Tailoring company, third floor of building at 833 West Jackson boulevard, term rental of $30,000; for Albert Pick to William Cooper & Nephews company, the basement floor of Walker building southwest corner Austin avenue and Franklin street for term rental of $11,000.

Lease Halsted Street Building.

Edward D. Le Tourneux has leased for Bragno & Mustari to Banco di Napoli, by Armondo Caruson, agent, now located at 854 South Halsted street, the first floor of the new building at the southwest corner of Forquer and Halsted streets, at a term rental of $31,500.

C. E. Hulbert & Co. have leased for George Borgfeldt & Co. to A. B. Fiedler & Sons the seventh floor of the Mercantile building, southwest corner Adams and Franklin streets for two years from Jan. 1, at term rental of $10,600, and for the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, the space to Fiedler & Sons for a further term of five years at term rental of $30,000. The lessee company are large manufacturers of dress trimmings, with factory at 1913 Hammond street.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $60,000, six years, at 6 per cent, to George J. Williams, secured by the property at the northwest corner of Indiana avenue and Garfield boulevard, 100x161 feet, with flat improvements.

Catholics Lease Building for Army Men's Hotel

The National Catholic War council has leased the building at 417-19 South Wabash avenue, from the Fowler estate, at a gross rental of $18,000. The property will be opened immediately as a hotel for soldiers and sailors. Cremin & O'Connor represented the National Catholic War council, and John C. Fetzer represented the Fowler estate.

$65,000 DEAL IS WEEK'S LEADER IN APARTMENTS

2 Transactions Reported In and Near Sheridan Road.

The week's business in apartment property was limited in volume and was of a comparatively unimportant character. The largest transaction carried with it a consideration of $65,000, and was a trading proposition, as most of the flat deals are. There were also two transactions in high grade three apartment properties on and near Sheridan road.

Another interesting transaction covered the Drexel Mansions, at the northwest corner of Drexel boulevard and Forty-fifth street, and the apartment property adjoining on the west, south front in Forty-fifth street, in which Sigmund Zeisler quitclaimed the properties to Samuel Thal, who acquired the properties a year ago as the result of an execution sale under a judgment in favor of Mr. Thal against Mrs. John Worthington, wife of the banker and real estate man whose operations several years ago attracted much attention.

Worthington acquired the property from the late Dr. Lyman Ware. The Mansions building is a three story structure on 88x200 feet of ground, and contains twenty-four apartments. The building in the rear contains eighteen apartments. Mr. Zeisler took title pending the determination of certain legal questions. These having been settled, he now conveys the title to Mr. Thal. The judgment claims against the property were in excess of $130,000.

Three-Cornered Deal.

A three-cornered deal, involving a valuable Lake View apartment building, a store, office, and flat building at Ogden and Kedzie avenues, and a 240 acre farm near Elgin, figured in the week's real estate news. The apartment building, a twelve flat structure of four to six rooms, on a lot 90x100 feet at the southeast corner of Cornelia avenue and Elaine place, was conveyed by Milton S. Plotke to Edward Lichtenberger for an indicated consideration of $65,000, subject to an incumbrance of $35,000.

The building was completed May 1 and has a gross annual rental of about $8,000. Mr. Plotke took in exchange the property at the southwest corner of Ogden and Kedzie avenues, lot 82x150 feet, improved with a building containing eight stores, six offices, and two flats, at a valuation of $40,000, clear, but the transfer was made to Mannie Sleep, who in turn conveyed to Mr. Plotke the farm near Elgin.

Sale of Apartment House.

The high grade three apartment building at 1245 Jarvis avenue, 191 feet east of Sheridan road, lot 40x153 feet, north front, has been sold by John Mangel, florist, to Theodore P. Keller, wholesale coal dealer, for an indicated consideration of $32,000, subject to an incumbrance of $18,000. The apartments rent at $135 a month. Paul Steinbrecher & Co. represented both parties to the transaction.

The six apartment building of seven and eight rooms at 4917-19 Lake Park avenue, lot fifty-nine feet, west front, running back to the Illinois Central right of way, has been transferred by John W. Sturtevant to S. Ella W. Dean for an indicated consideration of $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $18,000.

Subdivision Market Has Evidence of Movement

Subdivision property seems to be the first to feel an improvement in the real estate market, as evidenced by the fact that such subdividers as William H. Britigan have begun an active campaign for the marketing of this class of property.

Mr. Britigan's latest offering is that of Britiganwood, which comprises 367 acres north of Albany Park, between Bryn Mawr and Peterson avenues. During the last eighteen months this property has been fully improved with asphalt pavements, sidewalks, sewer, water, and gas and is now being offered to the public as improved property. These improvements are reported to have cost over $900,000.

It is understood that over 100 buildings will be started in this subdivision just as soon as the government restriction is lifted.

Consumers Company Buys Barn and Office Corner

Record was made of the purchase by the Consumers company from the Peter Schoenhofen Brewing company of the property in Springfield avenue, 141 feet north of Twenty-fourth street, or the southwest corner of the Burlington road right of way, 141.6 feet, east front, in Springfield avenue, west front of 68 feet in Harding avenue, north front of 274 feet on the Burlington road, and a south depth of 264 feet, and is improved with a two story building used for office and barn purposes, for an indicated cash consideration of $24,000. The Consumers' company will use the property for yard purposes, occupying the office building space in the building.

LARGE CHANGES SHOWN IN WEEK'S BANK STATEMENT

Loan Account and Demand Deposits Both Lower.

Rather large changes were exhibited in the weekly statement of the New York associated banks, the loan account contracting nearly $46,000,000, while demand deposits were lower by $96,830,000. At the same time cash decreased over $92,000,000, with the net result of a loss of $79,556,580 in the excess reserve. The latter item now stands at $54,181,130, against over $132,000,000 the previous week. The treasury department made but a small draft on its deposits, decreasing the amount $8,719,000.

Although the changes were wide they were not of such a character as to suggest new conditions in the money situation.

‡Specie included, $59,188,000.

The weekly statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reflected the necessity of the member banks calling upon the Reserve institution for credit with which to finance Liberty loan payments. There was an increase of $39,835,239 in bills discounted. The bank gained in government deposits, $28,164,867. That item now stands at $34,711,056.

There was a further expansion of federal reserve notes in circulation, but it was small, $507,262.

So far as the week's figures go, the Reserve bank, representing member institutions in the Seventh district, came out of the windup of the Liberty loan demands in good condition.

In Good Condition.

—YOUR CREDITORS

38.48% (NEARLY TWO FIFTHS) OF OUR CUSTOMERS HAVE HAD THEIR COMMERCIAL RATINGS INCREASED WHILE DOING BUSINESS WITH US.

If you could sell your merchandise for cash, you could do a larger business and make more money—without increasing your capital one dollar—and yet not be over-trading.

We simply give you money for the sales you make to customers who don't pay cash, so that you can accomplish the same objects as if your customers paid you the cash.

How could your creditors have any less protection if you sell your merchandise on credit and then sell the Accounts or Acceptances for cash, than if you sell your merchandise for cash? You can use the money from either source for the same purpose.

Why shouldn't your Creditors be glad if you sold your Accounts and discounted the bills you owe them—instead of waiting for their money until your Debtors pay you?

Your Creditors are more interested in how you pay them than how you get the money. If you pay your bills promptly your Credit will be good whether you sell Accounts or not.

Show your Creditors that you can handle a larger volume, make more money, and pay them sooner, by selling Accounts, and that the discounts you can make may more than pay the cost—that it is to their interest for you to cash your Accounts.

INSURANCE NEWS IN ALL BRANCHES EAST AND WEST

Companies Are Watching the Tendency to Organize Pools.

BY THOMAS R. WEDDELL.

Much interest is being taken by fire insurance men in the tendency of the companies to organize pools to handle certain classes of business. While there is no objection to the Underwriters' Grain association or the Excess Insurance association, organized to meet war emergencies as a patriotic duty, there is much uneasiness over the organization of such pools as that recently formed to write oil risks, it being claimed that many other classes could be treated in the same way. As part of the opposition to the oil pool, several companies have temporarily withdrawn their authority to the subscribers' actuarial committee to file rates for them on oil risks in the southwest.

Announcement was made recently of the formation of a pool of eight companies to reinsure a company specializing on mills and elevators, which itself reinsured a number of mutuals. It was soon found that the plan was taking away from the stock companies business already on their books, and the pool was abandoned.

INSURANCE NOTES.

In the California election on Tuesday a vote will be taken on a constitutional amendment enabling the legislature to establish compulsory health insurance, and another enlarging the powers of the industrial accident commission. The 10 per cent war surcharge for war taxes and expenses has been put into effect in the state of Washington as of Oct. 25. This imposes the surcharge in all the Pacific coast states except Oregon, where action is expected soon.

The West Virginia insurance department is opposed to the proposition to have the state placed under the jurisdiction of the Western Union after Jan. 1. Many local agents also opposed the change, as it involves the institution of graded commissions. A conference will be held at the insurance department on Monday between the representatives of the companies and the agents.

TALK OF THE STREET

Some of the large New York commission houses are quite bearish on the price outlook for United States Steel common. They believe in the corporation, its earning power, and future standing, but feel that the wide acceptance of the idea that Steel common is a war stock will cause liquidation and considerably lower prices. What the New Yorkers talk among themselves is 85 or 90 for the stock. This is not stated as a prediction but as the record of a fact.

Some features of the market indicate the belief on the part of bear operators that there are heavy lines of Steel common hanging by a slender margin and if these can be dislodged there will be a fine opportunity to cover short contracts.

In a campaign against Steel common at this time the bears have a good position in that borrowing is absolutely restricted. With commission houses emphatically informed that they must not increase their loans beyond a certain limit, their hands are tied and a great volume of buying power shut out of the market. The reduction in the Steel dividend furnished also an adequate reason for selling the stock. No one ever heard of the price of a security going up following a dividend reduction. The Steel corporation is conservatively managed and its head is associated with the large interests in Wall street. The cutting off of 4 per cent, therefore, although only a part of an extra dividend, was regarded as being significant beyond the fact of the reduction.

The decision of the Mexican Supreme court sustaining the position of the government with reference to oil taxes causes some damage to Mexican Petroleum stock, though the fluctuations were not as wide as on previous days and at the close the stock was off but 2¼ points, compared with Friday. The whole list, with one or two exceptions, averaged somewhat lower. Southern Pacific showed a fractional gain. It has become barometric of railroad sentiment.

Unknown Factor in Railway Stock

The recent sudden rise in the mark of a few railway stocks has broug many inquiries from small investors to whether the rails do not now offer field for "safe" investment. The a swer is that nobody can predict the f ture of these shares.

The rails are in a totally different p sition now from that which they occ pied years ago. Then an increase in ge eral prosperity inevitably brought larg earnings to the railways and more earn ings were sure to bring an increased su plus. A slump in general business w sure to have the opposite effect. I either event the investor had a fair certain basis for judging the future.

Now, a new factor has entered th situation and its effect cannot be fore seen. The government is operating th roads under a contract which gives power to do many things detrimental their securities and to return the prop erties to the owners in a most unsa isfactory condition. Government ma guard the interests of the owners dil gently during the period of operation an finally return the roads in a highly prosperous state. It may do just the opp site. This is the uncertainty.

The history of the government's trea ment of security holders since the in terstate commerce commission was e tablished does not furnish a basis fo great hope. However, it is not impo sible that the bad results of past policie have been demonstrated sufficiently, an that the future will bring a change. Th point here insisted on is that the futur of railway stocks depends to a great ex ent on the judgment or whim of certai ersons rather than on a series o auses whose effect can be predicted.

Moline Plow.

A. B. C., Hinsdale—Moline Plow fir preferred declined a little in the marke last August before the announcement o the change in management, and has remained steady since. The fiscal yea ended July 31 and the annual report ha not yet been made public. Possibly th decline was due to advance informatio about the report. The new managemen has announced a policy of no dividend on common stock for the present. Thi should improve the position of the preferred.

Brief Answers.

A. J.—The Johnstone Tire and Rubbe company has never furnished a statemen of its condition. There is reason to believe that its stock is much watered an highly speculative.

F. B.—The Consumers Packing company has been reviewed. Send stamped envelope for copy if you wish it.

MASON'S UNIVERSAL SAUCE

For Meats, Fish, Fowl and Rarebits Sea Foods, Salads, Soups and Game

For years Mason's Universal Sauce has been the choice of discriminating diners in famous eating places. And now you can serve it in your home too. Let all the family enjoy its delights. Its use is universal. For the indescribable flavor of Mason's Universal Sauce gives matchless zest and added piquancy to all manner of good food. Then too, it aids digestion and stimulates the jaded appetite. With it, eating becomes a joy.

The Mark of Safety

ONCE you know the flavor of Mason's Universal Sauce you need never fear substitutes. To taste other so called sauces is to expose them. For the secrets of the ingredients of Mason's Universal Sauce—their blending and cooking—are all closely guarded. Only two men know them.

But should another sauce thoughtlessly be offered you—on every bottle of Mason's Universal Sauce appears The Mark of Safety—this signature of old England's sauce wizard.

George Mason

Know This Delight

COSTLY spices, rare flavors, and rich tropical fruits are gathered from far lands, then blended with America's flavory vegetables to give you this delectable sauce. For over 50 years George Mason has made rare sauces for Kings and Queens, and for the Connoisseurs of the old world and the new. It's a Vanity Fair creation and from the day it made its debut, petticoats have been steadily growing obsolete. Why not? The Pettibocker is as frilly as the frilliest underskirt, as comfy as the perfectly designed knicker! That's why it's called the Pettibocker.

In gray, taupe, black, baltic green, sand, brown, khaki, emerald and navy—in pink and white for evening wear. Ask for Vanity Fair in Vests, Unions, Chemise and Knickers as well.

BEFORE AND AFTER—VOTE FOR THE GOOD ROADS BOND ISSUE—Above is the Rand road, a quarter of a mile east of the county line, as it looked on Oct. 18, 1916, and below is the same road as it was on Sept. 19, 1918. Vote for the good roads bond issue so that Illinois will have 5,000 miles of good roads, connecting every county seat in the state. It will not call for the payment of extra taxes. The roads will be paid for out of the revenue from automobile licenses.

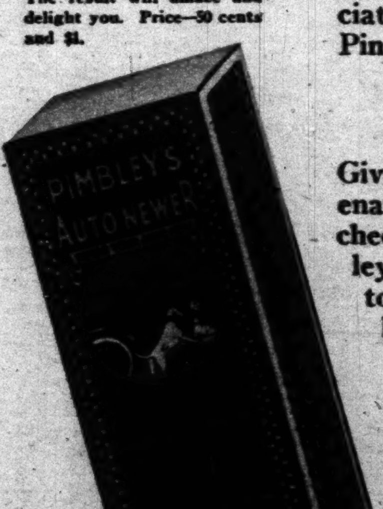
Do not rub or spray on a coating of heavy oil, wax or paste on the finish of your car. They leave a filmy, greasy coating, affected by heat and cold—catching dirt and dust.

Soap and water alone are insufficient to bring back the beautiful, original finish of your car.

The atmosphere deposits fine particles of grease and dirt. Washing either distributes this smear or the surface of the car when dry, has a bluish, mottled, cloudy effect. This overcast or blur—as well as all grease or wax—disappears from the finish when Pimbley's Auto-Newer is applied.

YES

The right way to keep your car new looking, is to clean and restore the ORIGINAL finish to its first beauty. Simply go over the surface with a cheesecloth rag dampened with Pimbley's Auto-Newer. A few drops and a few brisk rubs is all you need. The result will amaze and delight you. Price—50 cents and $1.



This is the package to get to make your car look new.

"You can make your car new looking at small expense

You can take greater pride in its appearance—increase its value should you wish to sell it."

How?

Renew that dingy, faded, leaky top

Get a can of Pimbley's Auto-Top-Newer, and a small paint brush. Use it on the top, curtains, cushions, leather or upholstery trim. Auto-Top-Newer is just the thing for Pantasote, mohair and leather. It dries quickly and never rubs off. Waterproof. Anyone can apply it. Not a paint. Does not go thru the fabric, but gives a beautiful high gloss finish that stays new looking in all kinds of weather. Pimbley's Auto-Top-Newer is also just the thing for the running board, axles, brake drums and rods, under part of engine, or any part of car not exposed to extreme heat. Fine for suit-cases, grips, trunks, tire holders. Price—½ Pints, 60c; Pints, $1; Quarts, $1.70.

If your car needs a new coat of paint

If fenders are dented or crumpled, if the hood is blistered, or the enamel cracked or chipped, if any part of the body of your car needs freshening up—get a can of Pimbley's Auto-Black-Enamel and paint your car yourself. You can do it. This extra fine quality, high gloss enamel is easily applied. It flows smoothly—evenly. It withstands intense heat without blistering or cracking. A great favorite with dealers and repair men who appreciate quality. Price—½ Pints, 60c; Pints, $1; Quarts, $1.70.

If your car does not need painting

Give it a good dusting and go over the enameled or varnished surfaces with a cheesecloth rag, dampened with Pimley's Auto-Newer. This brings back to life the beautiful finish your car had when new.. Price—50 cents and $1.

Pimbley's Newers are scientifically prepared preparations made exclusively for use on Automobiles. Use them as directed, and they will make YOUR car look new.

The amazing convenience of this silk underwear

FOR the week-end visit or the railroad trip, and for everyday use, this dainty yet durable silk underwear is the ideal choice.

These soft, pure "Italian" silk things do not muss or wrinkle and take up very little room in your drawer, your bag or trunk. They are ready to put on the minute you unpack. So easy to launder, too. You wash them out over night—no need even to iron them. They wash like a pocket handkerchief. It's really a pleasure to handle these dainty garments.

You can obtain the Marvelfit features only in the genuine Kayser Italian Silk Union Suits, Vests and Knickers.

SOARING MONOPLANE

Absolutely Safe and Harmless

The new toy sensation. Shoots high in the air. Then spirals gracefully to the ground close to the shooter's feet. Never a flying toy like this one. Hours of keen enjoyment in it for every young American. Acts exactly like the real airplane.

Powerful rubber sling launches it on its flight; wings open automatically at a height of 150 to 300 feet in the air. It remains in the air a full minute or longer, occasionally "looping the loop" and spirals down close to the starting point. Lands easily. Does not break.

Well made. Richly colored in stars and stripes design. Put up in individual cartons. Price 50c at all toy stores. Ask for The "Joy-Toy" Soaring Monoplane.

LET'S HAVE NO MORE SUCH SCENES AS THIS—VOTE FOR THE BUCK BANKING LAW—This picture was taken at the time of the failure of the private bank of Graham & Sons on the west side, Chicago, on June 29, 1917. About 27,000 depositors with claims aggregating nearly $4,000,000 suffered in this crash, and were able to get back only a small percentage when the bank went into the hands of a receiver. Thousands of workingmen and women had their total savings wiped out. It is an all too frequent occurrence which will be stopped if the Buck banking law, putting all banks under state supervision, is carried.

PREVENT THIS OVERCROWDING—VOTE FOR THE NEW RAPID TRANSIT ORDINANCE in the elections of Nov. 5. This scene is typical in the loop and in all factory districts at the rush hours of the day. You know what it means to wait while car after car passes by and you are unable to get even standing room in one. The rapid transit ordinance will put an end to this disagreeable condition.

Hands across the Sea

A letter from Tunbridge Wells

VERY frequently of late I've had such letters as this. Some of them, have travelled so far that they have taken months to reach us. But all of them in one way or another, tell the same story—that CREME ELCAYA is helping lovely women to remain beautiful, revealing undreamed-of charm in some, adding an exquisiteness of person to all.

But here is the letter from England:

> "Tunbridge Wells, Kent, England.
> Dear Sir: I am writing to ask if you will give me the address of any of your agents in England where I can obtain Creme Elcaya (non-greasy).
> Until recently I have been able to get it at Boots, Chemists, but they now say that it is unobtainable. I do so want to continue using Creme Elcaya, as I like it better than any other cream. Yours truly,
> (Mrs.) F——— Y———.
> P. S. If you have no other agents in England, could I send direct to you?"

These letters from all sorts of odd places 'round the world have told us more about CREME ELCAYA than we could have told the writers in the beginning. We sought to give women a non-greasy disappearing toilet cream that would protect and beautify the skin under face powder, day or evening. They have found it not only a delightful adjunct of the toilet but a necessity wherever lovely woman would be her loveliest.

As so many have proved that this formula for beauty is unfailing, isn't it time you tried it? There is nothing difficult about it.

Always use CREME ELCAYA before putting on your face powder, in this way—

A little CREME ELCAYA rubbed gently into the skin; then if you need color, a very little good Rouge spread carefully over the cheeks before the cream is quite dry; and after that the film of face powder over all.

Right off you'll like the feeling of it—and the looks. And with regular use you will see a refining and freshening of your complexion that you wouldn't have believed possible.

We want you to learn the easy way to have a skin like velvet. Send 10c in a letter marked Department "K" to the address below and obtain a trial package of CREME ELCAYA—the non-greasy, skin-refining disappearing toilet cream—and a miniature box of ELCAYA COMPLEXION POWDER. If you need color, send an additional 10c for a sample of ELCAYA ROUGE and use it with CREME ELCAYA. There's nothing better.

Your dealer has ELCAYA and has sold it for years. Ask him.

Your skin is changing every day

How to make it as attractive as you would love to have it

Your skin is continually changing. Every day, as old skin dies, new forms in its place. You can make this new skin as clear, radiant and fresh-looking as you have always wanted it.

See what this treatment will do. Lather your wash cloth well with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap. Apply it to your face and distribute the lather thoroughly. Now with the tips of your fingers work this cleansing, antiseptic lather into your skin, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse first with warm water, then with cold. Finish by rubbing your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

Do this persistently, once a week, and bring to your skin the loveliness which the daily use of Woodbury's always brings. The other six nights keep your skin thoroughly cleansed with Woodbury's Facial Soap.

You will find a 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap sufficient for a month or six weeks' use. Get a cake today. For sale at drug stores and toilet goods counters everywhere throughout the United States and Canada.

Write today for a trial size cake

For 6c we will send you a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap large enough for a week of this treatment, together with a twenty-page booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which gives you the proper treatments for all the commoner skin troubles. For 12c we will send, in addition, a sample of Woodbury's Facial Powder. Write today. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 26 Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 26 Sherbrooke St., Perth, Ontario.

Why Teeth Lose Their Glitter

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

You Leave the Film

Why do well-brushed teeth discolor and decay?

Why does tartar form?

Why does pyorrhea start?

Millions of people are asking those questions, and the answer is this:—

A slimy film constantly forms on your teeth. It clings to the teeth. It gets into crevices, hardens and stays, and your brushing doesn't remove it. And most tooth troubles are due to that film.

That film is what discolors—not your teeth. It hardens into tartar. It holds food which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea, and many internal troubles are due to them.

These facts have been known for years. But dental science found no way to effectively combat the film. A vigorous dental cleaning from time to time was needed to remove it.

Now a way has been found to combat it. That way is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. You can prove it, as thousands have, by a simple test. This is to urge that you do it.

See the Difference

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object is to dissolve the film, then to constantly prevent its accumulation.

Ordinary pepsin will not serve. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth.

But science has now found a harmless activating method. Five governments have already granted patents. That method, employed in Pepsodent, makes teeth-cleaning vastly more effective.

Able authorities have made clinical tests of Pepsodent. In thousands of cases they have watched its efficiency. Now we are urging all people to prove it in their homes. It means results you do not get without it, and they are all-important.

Send the coupon with 10 cents for a special tube. Use it like any tooth paste. Note how clean your teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

That film is your teeth's chief enemy. This test will show you that you can combat it. Then you will always clean your teeth, we think, in this scientific way. Cut out the coupon now.

Return your empty tooth paste tubes to the nearest Red Cross Station.

DECIDE NOW to protect your car this winter with Johnson's Freeze-Proof. Purchase your supply early from your dealer and read and follow the directions carefully. A little time spent now cleaning the radiator and putting on new hose connections will save you unlimited time, trouble, worry and expense during the winter months.

JOHNSON'S FREEZE-PROOF

is the logical anti-freeze preparation. It is inexpensive—does not evaporate—is non-inflammable—easy to use—and guaranteed. One application will last all winter unless the solution is lost through the overflow pipe or leakage.

Truck and fleet owners will find Johnson's Freeze-Proof a great time and money saver. Your trucks will always be on the job, and in the coldest weather it will be "Business as Usual" for you.

Farmers will find Johnson's Freeze-Proof a utility product—for automobiles—tractors—gas engines—trucks—and electro lighting and heating plants.

The present high price of alcohol—its low boiling point—quick evaporation and inflammability, make it impractical. Use Johnson's Freeze-Proof, then forget there is such a thing as a frozen radiator.

One package will protect a Ford to 5° below zero and two packages to 50° below. See scale on package.

"WELL, HERE'S LUCK!"—A SCENE IN A BRITISH DUGOUT

DRAWN BY F. MATANIA

GOOD LUCK

By C. FOX SMITH

The hour was near for starting
Ere Vimy Ridge was won,
And we said "Good luck" at parting,
As we had often done
In folly, sport, or fun.

All dreams men strive and sigh for,
Or lose beyond recall,
The things men live and die for,
The great things and the small—
Our "Good luck" meant them all.

For love and pride and passion
With speech accord but ill,
And if we had known the fashion
Of words to speak our fill,
We should be speaking still.

"To each his dear ambition,
As unto each seems best,
Love's crown or fate's fruition,
The fame, the medalled breast . . .
And to the dead their rest!"

Myrtle's Latest Swain Finds Where He Stands.

THE scene was set in the Crawford home. Myrtle, the beauteous cloak model, had polished the tenth finger nail, adjusted the beauty spot, opened the piano, and seated herself before it to await the coming of Harry Clayton, the gallant cafeteria proprietor, the only man who had ever kissed her. Harry was coming for his answer; Myrtle had it ready for him.

The bell jingled, and Myrtle's ma, who had been peeping from behind the wings in the vestibule, turned the knob on the cue, allowing nothing for such a valuable and standard dramatic element as suspense. She was excited, was ma, for she was as deeply in doubt as was the entering swain. Myrtle had declined to feed her doting mother's curiosity.

Mother was anxious to see her one and only a bride. Of all the suitors who had banged away at Myrtle's heart, none had made the favorable impression on mother that Clayton's gentlemanly attitude, diffident demeanor, quiet gentility of wardrobe, and clean, Christian approach had created. So Mrs. Crawford trembled—full well she knew the imperturbable Myrtle, the critical, quizzical, scoffing, eyebrow raising Myrtle, and she shook with the apprehension of a presentiment that Myrtle would "toss" this eligible, desirable swain as she had done those who had come before.

Clayton bowed ostentatiously to the little dried up mother of his big, fresh enamorata. He felt that she was his friend, though they had never exchanged more than a good evening and a good night. She took his panama hat, he ran his palms over his slick hair, backward, then advanced feverishly into the "parlor," where Myrtle, who knew just what was going on, sat with her hands on the ivories and her back to the door, in an obvious effort to appear unconscious of his approach.

"Good evening, Myrtle," he ventured.

She spun about on the pivot, arose briskly, extended her write hand; on her features was a bogus picture of surprise.

"Why—Mr. Clayton——"

His chin dropped.

"I hoped," he said, as he took her hand and held it, "that it would be 'Harry' tonight."

Myrtle blushed. Had Clayton known her better he might have taken that as more than counteracting the formal address, for Myrtle was not given to blushing, having always been a self-reliant and self-possessed young woman who never did anything to blush for and seldom let any one "put over" anything on her to force the blood to her cheeks.

"O—pardon me, H-Harry," she stammered, and hung her head a jot.

"Thanks," breathed Clayton, from the depths. "You make me very happy—and very hopeful."

"Sit down," she said, motioning him to the easy chair beside the piano. "I want you to be happy. You've—well, I don' mind tellin' you you've made me kind o' pleased with life a few, too.

"As for your bein' hopeful—well, that's another story."

"You don't mean——"

"Yes, an' no. Don't be so impatient. This is a matter concernin' two or more people for a long, long time. Don't try to save a second now, when there's so much I got to say to you with carefulness an' frankness.

"Before I begin, though, I'll let you in on a li'l secret which might kind o' keep you quiet while I tear off a few yards o' gab: you're the first man what ever got under my skin, an' I—I——"

Her head dropped low, her lip trembled.

"Go on; go on!" he pleaded, half rising.

"I—I love you."

He straightened with a snap, took one step to her, circled his arms about her and pressed her to him. He held her long and longingly. She made no resistance. He peppered her cheeks with kisses. Her arm stole from under one of his and around his neck. Their lips met and clung.

When Harry Clayton sat again, breathless, his hair rumpled and his heart hammering, Myrtle Crawford was on his knee, and mother, who was hiding in the vestibule, peeping from behind the shoddy portieres, forgotten, was choking herself to keep from exclaiming in glee at the sight, the sight of the salamander's surrender, the sight of her icy daughter's melting.

"When shall we be married, sweetheart?" asked he.

"That's the thing I got to talk to you about," she said, as she smoothed his shiny hair into a semblance of its accustomed order. "That's where you an' I got to have an understandin' now.

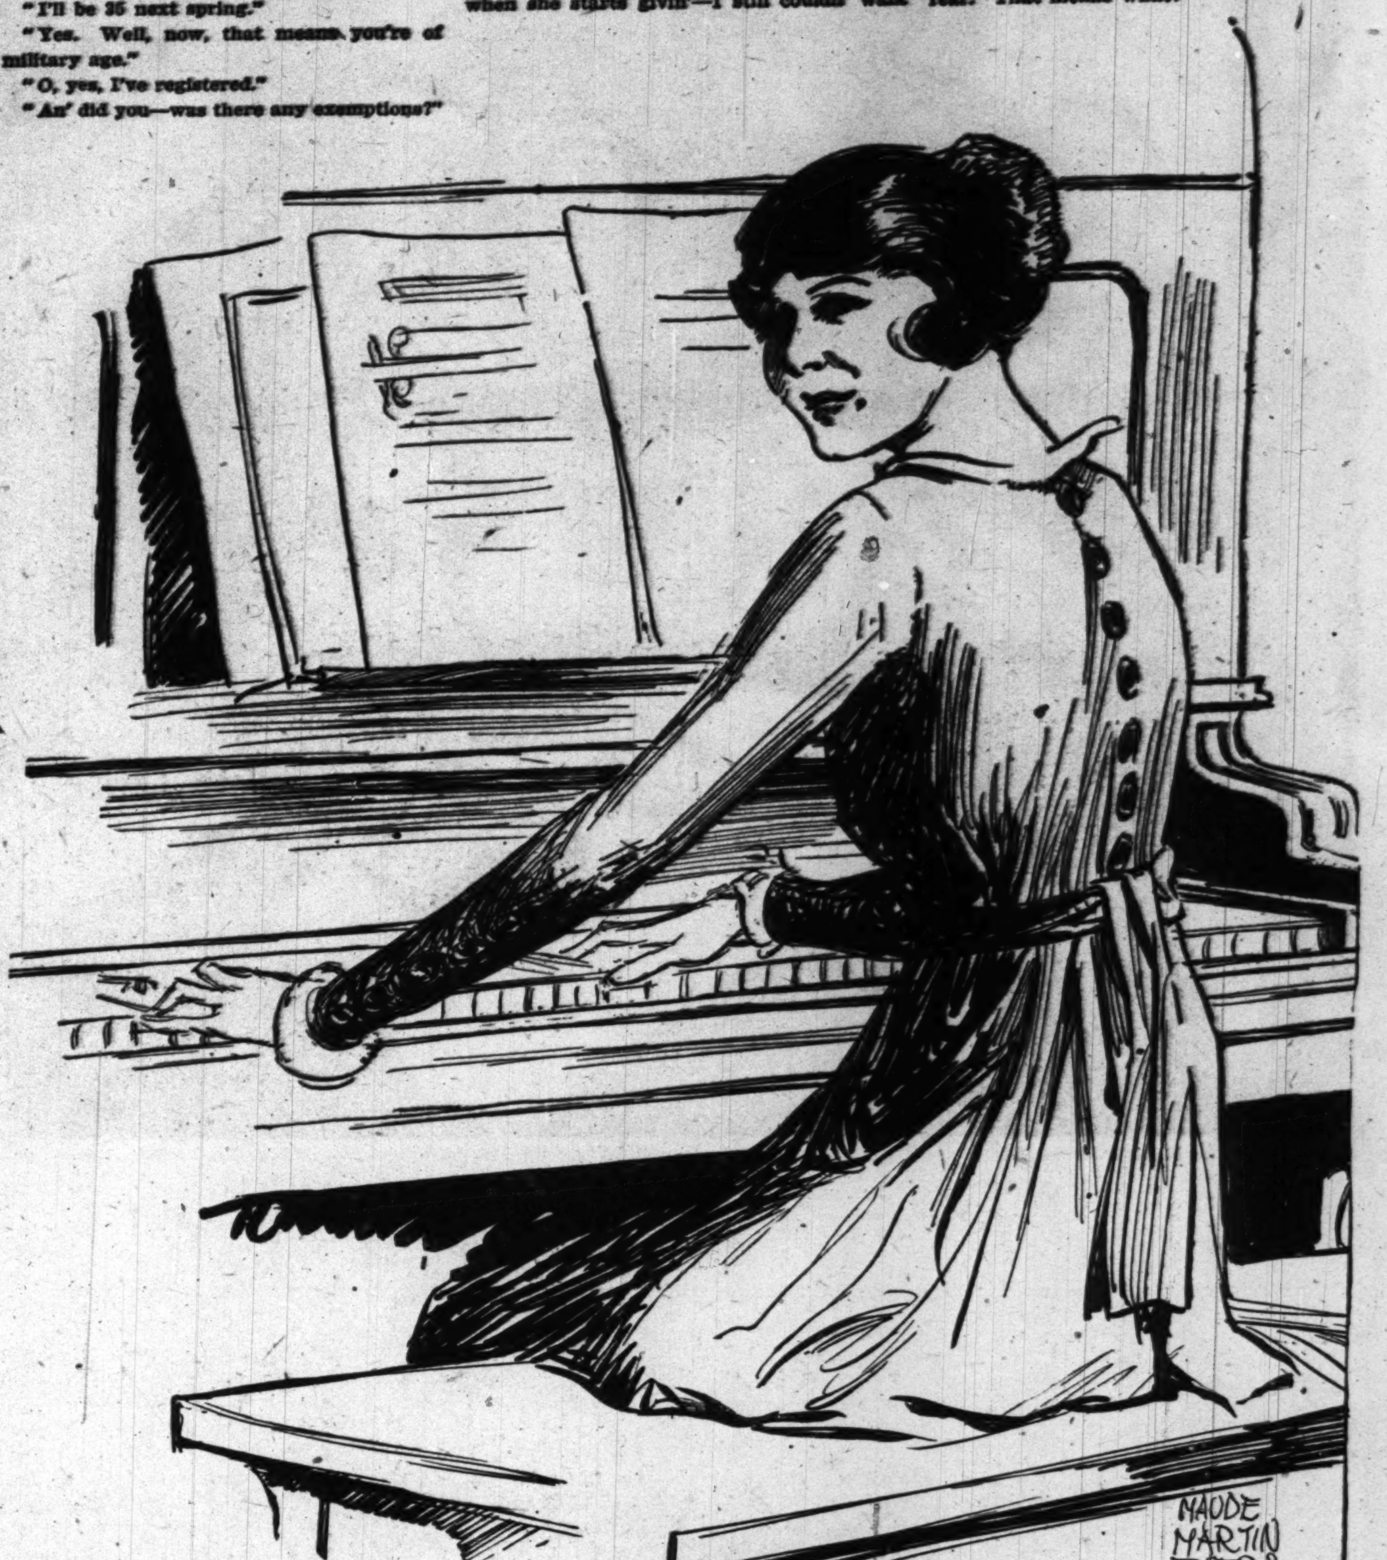
"You're about 35, as near as I can make out, huh?"

"I'll be 35 next spring."

"Yes. Well, now, that means you're of military age."

"O, yes, I've registered."

"An' did you—was there any exemptions?"



Myrtle sat with her hands on the ivories and her back to the door.

"I asked nothing. I support my mother, who is a widow, which I put into the questionnaire—it called for it. But I claimed nothing."

"But there's a line in it what says if your condition changes you're to notify the board. Now, if you was to—well, for instance, if you was to take on a wife—you'd have to give notice, wouldn't you?"

"Certainly."

"An' that might be considered an exemption, mightn't it? O, I know they say they won't pay no heed to marridges comin' off since the war, but they might, mightn't they?"

"O, I don't think——"

"Neither do I. But we don't know, neither of us, for sure, do we? If we should get married an' there should be a—O, I'm not ashamed to say it, I got idees about marridge diff'rent from most people; if there should be a child, let's say. That might make a diff'rence, mightn't it?"

"Isn't it a little—well, early to talk of that?"

"It's never too early to give reasonable consideration to the future, my dear boy. You an' I started this li'l romance in a very sensible an' grown-up way; let's keep it like that. If we love each other we might as well understand each other.

"The fact is that if you marry now you might change your standin' as a possible soldier for your country—our country. Now, as much as I love you, an' I want to tip you off right now that you don't dream how much that is an' haven't the slightest idee o' how much love Myrt Crawford has to give when she starts givin'—I still couldn' walk with my eyes open into anything where Old Glory is goin' to suffer becus I have my selfish wishes to look after.

"No. This is my country an' I love it, an' nothin' in the world can make me be unfaithful to it for one holy minute. I love you, too, an' you'll find that I'll stand by you the same way when the time comes. But right now it's country first. It's got to be.

"Now, you wouldn' want to marry me an' have me go on modelin' in the store, would you?"

"Of course not."

"Fine! Now I know you ain't starvin', but I guess you ain't got a forchune piled up so as me an' ma could live indefinite off the reserve bank roll, have you?"

"O, I have a little money laid away."

"I used to think I'd never marry a man that wasn't rich enough to give me all the things I never had, all the things every girl dreams about an' craves, all the things a poor girl can't never hope to have unless she marries rich—that's her only way out; it's diff'rent with a man, he can work for his an' he might make a forchune. A girl can work, too, but she can't hardly make a million at it. So her only possible crack at it is to land a rich fish. I used to be foolish enough to figger it out like that. But that's all behind me.

"I wouldn' care if you was makin' $10 a week, just enough for us to live in one room—well, anyway, two rooms; ma's got to be looked after, too, you know. So let's pass that subjec' with the one remark that if you go to France I go to work. Well, maybe I won't be able to work by that time. If so, what happens? You go to your board an' you put the proposition up to 'em. They'll exemp' you; this is a decent nation, this is, an' it don't want no men at the front what's leavin' starvin' women an' children in the rear. That means what?

"That means that you an' I, becus we love each other, becus we're young—an' maybe foolish, though I don't think so—an' want to marry, an' are in a hurry about it, are goin' in with our eyes wide open into a plot where we might have to do our country out of a soldier. Would that be square? Would that be patriotic? Would that be decent, I ask you?"

"I—I had hoped that we could be married very soon. I filed my papers even before I had your answer. I asked no favors. Perhaps I didn't give it the deep and rather broad foresight which you seem to have applied to the potential possibilities."

"But am I wrong? If I am, call me. You ain't a bit more anxious to have me Mrs. Clayton than what I am. Far be it from me to put any obstacles between me an' my happiness after I been waitin' all these years for it to come. But I can't see where I overplay the actual likelihood o' the matter."

"Why, thousands of couples are being married every day, in many instances more directly involved in war service than you and I. Don't we read of men and officers being married on the eve of departure for the trenches? Isn't the military wedding the fashionable thing? Isn't it being regarded as the highest manifestation of patriotism to marry a man about to leave for the fighting line?"

"You bet! Conditions vary with each couple. Some of 'em are rich an' can leave their wives independent; in the case of officers their pay is enough for a woman who has her country at heart to live on her share with a li'l sacrifice. But a private's donation to his fam'ly is about $15 a month. It seems harsh an' almos' brutal to talk o' money at a time like this. But I always tried to be sensible an' keep my tootsies on the ground. I might get by on a sum like that—yes, I'm sure I could, an' I gladly would. But I got my ol' lady to look after.

"I'm afraid I'll have to claim exemption, or at least deferred classification, from bein' drafted into marridge, on the ground that I got a dependent. All her life since I was born she's been givin' up and' goin' without an' workin' an' worryin' an' hashin' up what I lef' from dinner for her own breakfas'. I did kind o' hope that when I marry I might be able to give her for the firs' time since I know her some o' the bare comforts o' mere existence. Of course, war is war, an' she as well as myself will gladly stint an' scrimp if we have to. But we don't have to make it any more uncomf'table than what it is now.

"I got a middlin' fair job. I knock out twenty-five beans a week. As long as I'm single, her an' I can live along on that and hand the wolf a kick in the face whenever he gets too familiar with the back door. But, if I marry an' you go 'way, an' if there should be any reason why I couldn't go back to the dear ol' cloak an' suit penitentiary, where would we get off at? Would I want you at the front, where your thoughts ought to be all bent on puttin' a few Huns outta business, worryin' about how me an' ma—an' maybe somebody else—is gettin' along?

"Would that be fair to you? Would that be fair to anybody?

"Wouldn' it be better, safer, sweeter for the two of us to wait, like a couple of good kids, till this trouble is over, an' then, in the peace an' serenity of a world all safe an' clean an' right to live in, walk up to the altar an' fix this li'l matter so's we could belong to each other? We can't belong to each other now. You belong to the United States first. So do I. Can we make our marridge a sort o' second consideration, subjec' to fate what's starin' us right in the face, threatened by separation an' poverty an' regrets, maybe?

"Please, dearie, don't misunderstand me. I love you. You're the firs' man on earth I ever said that to; no other ever even tempted me to think it. An' for you I'd go anywhere an' do anything within my conscience. There's only three things outside o' yourself an' my duties to God that matter with me: My country, my mother, an' my children yet to be born.

"In the name of all o' them I ask you to believe in my good faith an' my love for you, an' I ask you to lemme promise you now to be your wife as soon as your military duties, whatever they may be, are done.

"Long engagements has always been a nightmare to me. But this is all diff'rent. I'm afraid we couldn't found a happy marridge on a situation like this. The papers says that married men is goin' to be put in deferred classifications. That means that if I marry you I might stand between my flag an' one of its defenders. I couldn't do that; you mus'n' ask me to, Harry. You won't—I know you won't."

"I won't," he said. "As much as I loved you before, I love you a million times more.

"I never dreamt a woman could worship her country so earnestly, and feel her duties toward it so profoundly. Sacrifices, when the bugle calls, are not unusual. American wives and mothers have always borne them with their eyes toward the flag and their hearts proud and steadfast. But you search so far into what may come, you are so punctiliously apprehensive of a possible future contingency—you startle me, you fascinate me.

"I am not as poor as you think. If I am called to the colors I shall sell my business and have a neat little fund to leave behind. So your fears in that direction are a trifle beyond necessity. But your reasoning that my classification might be set back because of marriage, because of the beautiful further possibility you have mentioned as the fruit of marriage, is as convincing to me as it is sincere with you.

"And you are right. I have not volunteered. Neither have I attempted to evade duty. Let us not involve the sweetest circumstance in the lives of both of us with a possible shadow of possible slackerism.

"You are now my promised bride."

"Yes, yes," she sobbed, as she drew his head to her and kissed him.

"We will set the date to be contingent upon such time when our marriage can in no way interfere with our obligations to our country, and when it cannot in any way prejudice your mother's means of existence or the livelihood of our children if God should grant us any. Am I right?"

"The rightest that ever lived!"

"Thank you. If I can sell out then, and get enough to provide for you while I am over there, we will be married just before I leave; if I cannot, we will be married after I come back."

"I'll pray for that hour, dear. I'll pray for my boy—my soldier man."

Mrs. Crawford, the tears streaming down her wrinkled old face, felt it unethical to witness further, so she quietly slipped out of the front door, around to the kichen door, into the house through the rear, where she would not have to disturb the lovers, and slowly made her way to her room.

After her prayers she took down a picture of Myrtle's father and looked at it fixedly.

"You were a wild one, Tom," she mused, with a kindly love in her faded eyes. "But you were a man, an American. And you gave me a daughter, God bless her, and she's a woman—and an American!"

THEY'RE IN THE ARMY NOW by Oney Fred Sweet

The Draft Played Havoc with the Players in the Band.

MARTIN HENDERSHIFT might be unknown on Broadway, but certain small towns out through the Dakotas knew him. During the summer months, when the great stretches of wheat were ripening and being harvested, "Jass" Hendershift brought the opera to Little Bow and Medicine Plain and Feather Bend.

Jass did not scorn to pitch his tent in a town simply because it boasted little more than a grain elevator and a general store. He knew that the section had plenty of little automobiles that could eat up the prairie distances. Jass had showmanship and he knew that no matter how busy a people might be with their crops they had a hunger in their hearts, too—a hunger to which he could appeal if not altogether satisfy.

Jass engaged stage talent, of course. He had Etta Laurito, a woman with a kind heart, rheumatism, a contralto voice, pinned on hair, and two fingers full of diamond rings that were always waiting to be pawned in a pinch. But the manager was chiefly concerned about securing gentlemen who could "double in brass." Little Bow and Feather Bend, well he knew, could not be lured inside the canvas unless an orchestra played within—an orchestra that earlier in the day blared past the grain elevator and the general store and walked so fast as they blared that you could "stand on their coat tails."

"The best aggregation I've ever had out," confided Jass to the proprietor of the general store at Little Bow early in June. "You take it a war year like this and folks has got to have something to divert their minds. I've got six pieces in the band and orchestra alone. I feel in my bones that it's going to be a great season."

Jass was standing at the ticket box near the entrance of the tent as he thus prophesied. He was wearing his wide felt hat tilted farther to one side of his head than usual. His gaze was distant as he spoke. He was watching the western sky where it was red, close to the flat horizon. His remarks were accompanied by practice notes from a slide trombone inside the tent—notes that died with a weird echo as they floated across the evening touched green.

"Is that old lady singing for ya yet?" inquired the general store keeper, whose business had kept him close to home through the years.

"You refer to Madame Laurito. Yes, still with us. But the madame ain't old," corrected the swarthy Jass. "She's seen a lot of life, that's all, and travelin's been hard on her."

Manager Jass paused to sell a bunch of tickets to a Scandinavian family that had just chugged in twenty miles after doing the chores. When the group had passed inside, Jass called to the crew man to light the gas jets. The jet at the tent entrance sputtered from the prairie breeze, lent an added glamour to the "Metropolitan Opera Company" surroundings.

The depot agent approached. "I got something for ya here," he announced officiously. "I guess it's for one of your men."

"Let's see it," snapped Manager Jass. "Hodack—yep, that's the bass horn and fiddle player He's drafted. Whadda ya know about that?"

Manager Jass waited until the countryside had arrived, was seated. Some of the babies were already crying because of discomfort. Manager Jass found Hodack in the dressing tent. It was between acts. He found him arguing with the clarinet player as to which of the two restaurants was preferable at the next "stand."

"Of course everything's gone up this year," Hodack was raving, "but last year at that place next to the furniture store, Ernie, I got—"

"Say, Hodack," interrupted Manager Jass, dodging under a guy rope, "I thought you said before you came on that you wouldn't be called this summer? Read that wire. Nope, it ain't from Henry W. Savage. It's from your registration board. I thought you said—"

"You're in the army now, you're in the army now," smiled the clarinetist. "You'll take the first train, I'll say you will."

The prima donna emerged from her curtained corner. At close range, Etta Laurito was grewsome in her grease paint.

"You great big soldier boy," she beamed at Hodack, her voice its throaty best. "I'm going to start tomorrow knitting you a sweater. But you'll have to write and send me the name of your camp. You great big soldier boy, you!"

It was the signal for everybody to crowd about. No, Hodack didn't know what branch he'd go into—aviation, maybe. They all went down to the train to see him off, after the show that night. And the next day at Medicine Plain the Metropolitan Opera company band paraded sans bass horn. Medicine Plain might not know the difference, but Manager Jass mourned the loss of the "um, pah, pahs" as a general on the western front might mourn the loss of a crack division.

"You ain't got the big horn player ya had last year, have ya?" ventured the Medicine Plain druggist.

"We've got another coming on," assured Manager Jass. But Jass knew better. According to the theatrical paper ads, there was not the usual number of bass horn players "at liberty."

Etta Laurito was knitting with brown wool when the train left Medicine Plain. The woman who ran the hotel had shown her how to get started.

The tent was filled that night at Long Prairie, but just before the last act a telegram came for the clarinet player, Ernie Lisk.

"Oh, you great big soldier boy!" Etta enthused. "And I've only begun on one end of Hodack's sweater."

And they all crowded about Ernie, Manager Jass in the background, chewing on a cigar—6 cents now "on account of the war."

Manager Jass was eying Miss Etta, busy with hero worship. If robbed of her beauty by the years, so had the years given her a philosophy of life. There was a great woman. She even had a system for ignoring her rheumatism when it bothered her most. She had a bearing, Etta had, that dominated the Little Bow and Medicine Plain audiences, and her contralto, sieved through the canvas on a cool night after a hot July day, reaching the manager's ears, had often caused him to give late ticket buyers a bit of press agenting:

"The madame's in wonderful voice tonight, folks. A lot of prima donnas would have been 'all in' after the blow down we had the other night. You're lucky to get a chance to hear her."

Thus would Manager Jass try to attract attention away from the fact that his orchestra had dwindled down to a trap drum player and a slide trombonist. The swift parade through the street at noon had long since been abandoned.

The trap drummer heard from his registration board on the night the Metropolitan played Dry Creek.

"And he could play the bells and make a noise like a rooster crowing as good as any drummer in the business," sighed Jass following the farewell given the departing one.

"Well, anyway," soothed Madame Laurito, "it will mean one less car fare. You were saying the other day how hard you had been hit by the new rates."

It was the occasion of one of the few personal chats in which the manager had ever engaged with his prima donna. Manager Jass believed in keeping himself aloof as manager at all times. In that way he would not be indulging in any factional quarrels which conflicting temperaments among the talent so often produced. He was all business. He knew the peculiarities and weaknesses of his stars. He kept himself aloof. He arranged for train transportation, paid salaries. He ate at a table by himself in the hotels, sat alone on the train. He prided himself on keeping himself solely the manager.

"I had feared," said Manager Jass, throwing aside his usual reserve, "that our leading man this season was going to be too old to please our patrons. His hair is thin on top even when he ruffles it up, but, anyhow, he's over 31. I'd have fired the comedian weeks ago if he hadn't had a stiff leg; the army'll be hard up before it ever calls on him. But the darn fools, neither one of 'em can 'double in brass.'"

"I wonder how the trap drummer's getting along by this time," sighed Etta, clicking her needles. "I hope the boy gets plenty to eat and warm blankets at night and don't get shot."

Manager Jass, with the aid of local talent, put the tent up himself next day at Tall Grass. The last crew man had been drafted. That night as the manager stood, selling tickets, there came from within the tent the blare of a trombone and the thud of a drum. It sounded to some, perhaps, as though there were two men in the orchestra, but the trombone player was doing his best with the drum by aid of a contraption that he manipulated with his feet.

The Tall Grass depot agent appeared, out of breath. He bore a yellow slip of paper. Manager Jass received it, signed for it, scanned it stoically. It was for the trombone player.

Manager Jass looked out over the prairie. The streak of red in the west faded, was gone. Manager Jass went around to the back of the tent. Etta had just come off the stage and was picking her way through the slough grass toward the dressing tent.

"Damn the kaiser!" said Manager Jass. "You won't have to get up at 2 o'clock tomorrow morning, Etta, to make that train. We aren't going on to Low Wind. The folks up there will have to get their mental diversion some other way than from 'The Metropolitan.' Without a trombone—say, no one can say that I'm such a poor showman as to try to bluff it through without a trombone."

Manager Jass went over and sat on the corner of one of the battered and plastered trunks.

"No one depending on me," he sighed. "They're going to take 'em up to 45 pretty quick, anyhow. The season started out fine but damn the kaiser. Heavy artillery for mine. I want to help send a thousand pound shell into Berlin. I can go to the recruiting office in St. Paul—"

"Jass," pleaded Madame Laurito, "do I understand you to say you're going, too?"

"There's the telegram," waved the manager. "It's for the trombone player, but it might just as well be for me."

A frog croaked in the slough. The faint, after sunset breeze caused the flag on top of the weather beaten tent to flutter.

"Go over and see the trombone player," suggested Manager Jass. "Go over and—"

"I'll do no such thing," soothed Etta Laurito in contralto. "Oh, you great big soldier boy, you! I've got that sweater just about finished. I'm going to give it to you now, Jass, I—"

The manager had shifted his position on the trunk. "Do you really feel that way, Etta?" he asked huskily. "You know I've always been just a hard old manager."

Manager Jass knew Etta Laurito. She had been his prima donna for three seasons. He knew when she was not merely stage acting. He knew when she was registering the real thing with those eyes of hers.

He went back to the front of the tent to wait for the final show to finish. He heard her voice, as, sieved through the canvas, it echoed across the silence and monotony of the prairie.

Her "great big soldier boy," he smiled.

The COMFORTER

By Elizabeth Jordan

The Story of a Little Boy Who Filled a Big Niche.

IT had been a very slight operation, under gas—so slight that an hour after I returned to consciousness my sole reminders of the experience were an impressive wad of cotton in my left ear, a pain and buzzing sensation in the same organ, and an acute sense of having been abused and of needing sympathy.

No sympathy, however, was offered me. The doctors were gone, the nurse had temporarily disappeared, and there was nothing more responsive in sight than the four severely hygienic walls of my private room at the hospital. Various pieces of oddly shaped apparatus for ear treatment, with which, during later hours, I was to have intimate and unpleasant association, hung from white painted iron rods near the bed. A small, glass topped table was beside my pillow. Within reach were electric light switches and bell buttons; but where was the touch of the human hand, the brooding solicitude of the human heart, to which, by every right, I felt myself entitled? My sense of injury deepened and I pushed a button; but if I had looked for comfort from the nurse who responded one glance at that remote being taught me that I looked in vain.

"Is there anything you want?" she asked coldly.

"N-o-o," I admitted, with regret, after a vain attempt to think of some excuse for having called her to my side.

She raised her eyebrows, smoothed my pillow professionally, laid a perfunctory finger on my pulse, and finally, after shaking a clinical thermometer, tucked it into my mouth. Having shown me these attentions, she sank into a reverie in which it was clear that my affairs had no part. A minute or two later she remembered me, removed the thermometer, and bestowed a casual glance upon it.

"Normal," she observed briefly and started toward the door. I checked her in her flight.

"I thought," I remarked hopefully, "that perhaps you could think of some delicate attention I need."

She laughed. "You don't need anything," she remarked callously. "You'll be out of here in four days." Then, softening a little, she added, "But I know what's the matter with you. You're lonesome."

"Perhaps that's it," I sighed. "I knew there was something. It's a horrible sensation, and of course it couldn't have anything to do with the excavations you people have been making in my ear-drum."

She studied me in silence for an instant; then, with dawning interest, pressed the bone behind my ear.

"Any pain there?" she asked.

"No," I admitted, "not yet. But I'm sure there will be the next time you inquire. It's what all the doctors are looking for; and after I've brooded over it a few hours more I'll have it."

"Nonsense," she said briskly. "I'm going to order your supper. What would you like? Tea or chocolate?"

I waved away the sordid topic. "If this thing develops into mastoiditis," I remarked, "or cerebro-spinal meningitis, please tell my family not to feel any remorse over neglecting me in my last hours——"

"Imaginative," she murmured, as if to herself. "Needs diversion." Then to me: "There is something you need. You need the comforter. Wait, and I'll send it to you."

She was gone, and I waited, perforce. The Comforter? It sounded serious, but interesting. What was it? Obviously not bed clothing, for it was an April evening, and I was already well supplied with that. I set my imagination to work and found it vacillating between the claims of a hot water bottle and a religious picture. Whatever it was, I reflected bitterly, they'd better send it soon, before it was too late. The pain in my ear was growing worse. If I died the corridors would be filled with stricken souls, and a procession of automobiles containing weeping friends would extend from the hospital to Harlem. But when I was merely half dead and wholly miserable nobody cared. I touched the bone behind my ear and decided that it was growing sensitive. It might well be, for I had been pressing it at close intervals since I returned to consciousness; but I did not stop to think of that, for by this time I was mentally selecting my pallbearers.

I had just decided that the incurably optimistic expression of my best man friend unfitted him for the sad occasion when I heard a soft tap, followed by the opening of my door, around which a head promptly appeared, covered with short yellow curls. A pair of brown eyes looked at me, and two rows of tiny, white teeth flashed in an adorable smile. The next instant the door closed and a small boy about 5 years old stood with his back against it, regarding me with shy hesitation as if to make sure that I was awake and in a hospitable mood. He looked like a study in blue and gold as he posed there, outlined against the white woodwork; for below his yellow curls he wore blue rompers, blue socks stopped half way up his chubby legs, and a yellow rose was pinned ostentatiously upon his breast. On his feet were slippers with straps over the instep, and as he felt my eyes resting on him he slowly drew the top of one slipper back and forth on the floor, as if following some invisible design.

"How do you do?" I asked when the silence was becoming oppressive. "Won't you come nearer and sit down?"

The invitation seemed to be what he was waiting for. With the assured step of one now certain of his welcome, he came toward me, climbed upon a chair near the bed and sat facing me, his short legs straight out in front of him, his brown eyes turned upon me with warm interest in their clear depths, a big dimple appearing and disappearing in his left cheek.

"How do you feel?" he inquired.

"Why, I—I think I feel much better, thank you," I assured him, with conviction in my tone. For it was true. The suddenness of his appearance, the charm of his personality, and the beauty of the picture he made as he sat before me diverted and delighted me.

He nodded. "Miss Smiff said you would," he corroborated. "Miss Smiff said, 'Go and see the lady in 14 an' she will feel better.' So I came."

"That was very good of you," I observed, gratefully, staring at him with growing interest. So this was the Comforter. He looked the part. It was growing dark, but all the light in the dim room seemed to focus on his yellow curls, with the effect of a soft halo.

"I live here," he explained simply. "I live here all the time. I don't get lonesome. Some folks get lonesome. Then they cry. Then I come an' talk to them. That makes them feel better wight off," he added, modestly, crossing his hands over his plump little stomach with a capable air which was irresistible, and for which, I subsequently learned, the head nurse had been his unconscious model.

"Children cwy lots," he went on. "Sometimes when they have their eyes bandaged I hold their hands. Then they don't get fwightened in the dark. It's awful dark when your eyes is bandaged," he continued, settling in his chair as if for a long chat. "Some boys see lions an' tigers then, an' snakes an'—an' el'phan's." He paused a moment and regarded me anxiously as this last word fell from his lips. Observing that I received it with quiet respect, he continued with growing assurance:

"But when I hold their hands they just see engines an' turkey an' birthday cakes an' fishes in the water an'—an' nice things. An' we talk about them."

"That's capital," I said. "They must be very glad indeed to have you hold their hands."

He smiled. It was obvious that he was used to approval, as well he might be. The pain in my ear felt better; in fact, I had almost forgotten it.

"A little boy is in there,"—he indicated a room next to mine. "He's 7. His name is Willie Maxwell. He was awful sick. He's got mas—mas——" He struggled an instant with the word, then abandoned the effort to produce it, and hurried on. "He's got it," he added, "an' it hurts. His mother's wif him now, so he don't need me, an' he's better. One day we let the pho-no-graph play evewyfing it knew for him, 'cos it hurt."

I congratulated myself warmly upon the fact that my little neighbor was past the need of this particular alleviation of his suffering—a phonograph playing everything it knew in the next room was not, I felt sure, the solace that my injured ear required, whatever it might have done for Willie Maxwell. Then it occurred to me that I was allowing the burden of the present entertainment to rest entirely on my small guest. He had stopped talking, but sat before me wholly at his ease, his brown eyes touching other objects in the room from time to time, but always returning to my face. His hands lay folded in his lap. The rose on his breast rose and fell with his quiet breathing. From the top of his curly head to the sandals on his crossed feet he presented a soul satisfying picture of the ideal visitor to a sick room. Moreover, he had not asked once whether I felt a sharp pain behind my ear.

In return for all this what could I do for him? I had as yet no flowers to give him, no picture books to show him.

"Do you like stories?" I asked him.

He made one ecstatic bounce in his chair; then, remembering where he was, quieted down again and merely looked at me with shining eyes.

"Oh-h-h!" he cried softly. "You bet I do."

Even as the words fell from his innocent lips he stopped, his face flushing, and hung his head.

"I mean I do," he added, much abashed. "I'm not 'lowed to say 'you bet,' but sometimes it slips out. Do you know stowies? Can you tell any?"

"I know so many stories," I assured him, solemnly, "that if I began now and told you a story every day, you might be a big man with whiskers before I got through."

He leaned forward in his chair, drawing a long breath. "Oh-h-h!" he said again, and there was eloquence in the word. "Will you tell me one, please? Right straight off, 'thout waiting? 'Cause I can only stay till supper, an' it's 'most supper now. An' after supper," he added, with poignant regret, "I always have to go to bed."

I began with Jack the Giant Killer, to which he listened with breathless attention, interspersed by delighted gasps and gurgles at exciting crises in the tale. When I finished he was on the extreme edge of his chair, holding to it with both hands and pale with excitement, but he recalled himself sternly to the present, and, unpinning his flower, held it out to me.

"I'm going to give you my wose," he said firmly.

I hesitated.

"Please take it," he begged. "Take the pin, too, 'cause you haven't got any."

I thanked him warmly and pinned the flower to my nightgown, feeling like a prima donna receiving floral tributes as a reward for her art. My audience followed the operation with respectful attention.

"Can you tell one single 'nother stowy before I have to go?" he asked, after it was concluded. And he added, his head to one side, his smile shy and deprecating, "Just a little one?"

I told him the stories of Hop-o'-My-Thumb and Red Riding Hood, and finally, deciding that he needed something less exciting than these strenuous episodes, the old Andersen story of the little gray eyed mermaid who came to play with the land child. Toward the end of this he was so quiet that I knew he had fallen asleep. I went on talking, however, afraid that if I stopped he would wake, and using the opportunity to observe him more closely that I had yet done. As I studied him my heart sank, for I was beginning to realize why he "lived" at the hospital. His long lashes lay on cheeks which seemed waxen in the fading light, and his little legs, though plump, had the same pallor. Moreover, there were unchildish lines in his face when he was in repose—lines evidently etched there by pain.

Miss Smith came back while my heroine was vainly searching the shores of the B for the playmate who would never ret For an instant she stood at the door, looki at the tableau we presented, her cold f softening wonderfully. r she explained to me that Harry could ate with equal fidelity every doctor and in the hospital, but that no attention was ever paid to this rather questionable talent, so the child remained serenely unconscious of anything amusing in his frequent impersonations.

"I was going to give you my wose," Harry remarked at the conclusion of his "examination." "But you've got some of your vewy own, haven't you? You've got lots."

He came to my table and stood still before it, his brown eyes fixed on the great masses of roses the nurse had just arranged. Suddenly he was all child again.

"May I smell some of them?" he asked, eagerly. "May I put my nose right on them?"

I lifted the pitcher and vases in turn and held them before him while he buried his face in the flowers and stood very still, inhaling deeply.

"Sometimes woses come out of dirt, in pots," he observed, after he was perched on his chair. "But most times they live in water. Willie's got f'owers this morning, too," he went on, after I had acknowledged his botanical information. "An' Mrs. Gwey's got some down on the other side of the hall. Willie has pink woses, an' Mrs. Gwey's got wed ones. You've got white ones, too, haven't you?"

"Yes," I said. "I like white roses best. These are the kind that grow in pots. I like those that grow in the country and smell sweeter than any others."

"What's the countwy?"

I explained, and in a few moments more found myself deep in a description of a beloved old farm I had often visited. He listened in ecstatic silence, his brown eyes never leaving my face. Then, in his turn, he told me of his hospital life, his toys and friends, his favorite doctors and nurses. They all seemed to be his favorites. He spent, it seemed, much of his time in the wing which contained private rooms, and incidentally his own nursery. Every afternoon he took a long nap. But it was plain that any frightened child anywhere in the great building could have the Comforter in his hour of need, and twice a day, morning and afternoon, he went through the free wards, stopping at the different beds to chat with and cheer children and grownups alike. It was a strange life for a child, I reflected. But what it had made of him!—a man, at times, in tact and understanding, with the joyousness and simplicity of the child.

"I've never been in a boat," he said suddenly. "And I've never been to the 'Quarimum. But some day I'm going."

"The 'Quarimum?" I asked thoughtlessly.

"Yes. Where all the fishes are. They swim wound the glass places, an' you see them."

"O yes, the Aquarium. I'll take you for a boat ride some time, if you like, when I get well," I promised, "and to the Aquarium, too."

"Oh-h-h, will you? When?"

"Next week. Do you know when that is?"

He sighed. "It sounds a long way off. How many times do I go to bed before then?"

I reflected. The doctors had said I could leave in three days more.

"Only four times," I said. I took his small hand and emphasized the count on his fingers. "This time, and this time, and this time, and this time. Then we go."

He drew a breath of deep content. "It's soon," he said.

We were deep in the discussion of this delight when "Miss Smiff" came to take the Comforter away to some little girl with bandaged eyes, who seemed to be seeing "lions an' tigers an' el'phan's" in the dark. Harry answered the summons as a war horse responds to the compelling notes of the trumpet. In an instant he was off his chair and trotting toward the door, where, for a second only, he paused. "I'll come again," he promised, but I saw him no more that day.

It was not as casual a matter to pick up the Comforter and carry him off to the aquarium as I had imagined it would be. Indeed, I found my plan passed on from one high authority to another. The question of risking my life in the operating room could have been lightly and quickly settled, but to take the hospital's idol downtown for a pleasure excursion was a serious matter, requiring reflection.

At last, however, it was arranged. I was to call for my small guest in a taxicab at 11 in the morning and drive him directly to the aquarium, afterward giving him a luncheon suited to his health and tender years, and finally taking him around New York on the yacht which makes that voyage every afternoon during the season. These details arranged, the Comforter and I awaited with such patience as we could the eventful day of the excursion. But during the three days' wait, which seemed so long, the small boy never for one moment lost interest in his other friends, his daily rounds, or his duties toward his fellow patients. Every morning he came to see me immediately after breakfast, and through him, unconscious reporter that he was, I learned that Willie Maxwell had left the hospital "just as well as he could be"; that Mrs. Grey had "dreadful pains and groaned"; that there was a new little girl in 19, with her eyes all bandaged, and that Jimmie Murphy, a prime favorite of Harry's in the charity ward, had "gone to live with God."

Incidentally, besides playing his own small rôle to perfection, Harry became in turn the superintendent, the house physician, various nurses, and even some of the patients. Thus I was privileged to behold Willie Maxwell enjoying the phonograph, while the Comforter's impersonation of "Mrs. Gwey having a hard pain" greatly comforted that lady when she was well enough to witness it.

My farewell with Harry was highly dramatic; we were separating for twenty-four long hours.

"I only go to bed one more time before we see the 'quarimum," were his parting words.

That night I dreamed of the Comforter and I was back in the hospital before 11 the next day. With equal promptness my young friend presented himself, ready for the excursion. He wore a jaunty blue reefer, a blue cap, and a somewhat flamboyant tie, the latter pinned on him in a jocund moment by the nurse who had dressed him for his outing. The inevitable rose was on his breast. He had never before been in a taxicab, and as we rode away I was forced to give him a scientific explanation of how and why our cab went—an explanation which I realized at the time would always be a rosy memory to our chauffeur.

Of the Comforter in the aquarium I can show no fitting picture. But in memory I see him still, a flash of sunshine rimmed with blue, awestruck before the huge, sleepy alligators, thrilled to the soul by the green moray, fixed and ecstatic in front of the crabs that walked sideways when they were not fighting with one another, and drawing deep breaths of excitement over the fish that changed colors as one watched. He thought the turtles were the most wonderful things there, until he saw the swordfish, but the fascination of the swordfish paled in turn before the charm of the sea lions. In front of these he jumped up and down in such uncontrollable delight that every one within sight and hearing smiled in sympathy with him. Also he became at times Dr. Reynolds gazing at a seal and rubbing his chin; Dr. Murray twirling his mustache in deep reflection before the case of a giant shark, and Mrs. Murphy, a hospital scrub woman, surveying the eels with arms akimbo. Each pose was wholly unconscious, but I had seen his originals!

In fifteen minutes all the other visitors in the 'quarimum had forgotten the fish and concentrated their attention on the Comforter. In half an hour they were following him around, listening to his comments. Within an hour they had learned to love him and were extracting from me, by pointed questions, the simple story of his life.

It was hard to tear him away at 1 o'clock, but the charms of luncheon soothed his disappointment, and the boat trip was yet to come.

On the yacht the reaction came, after this high entertainment, and for the first half hour Harry sat quietly by my side, his eyes very big and bright, his cheeks pink with excitement, an occasional deeply breathed "O-h-h!" his only comment, as shore lines and buildings swept past. It was not long before other passengers began to talk to him, and I recall especially the gentleness with which a certain irascible old man conceded that a pink and gold cloud in the west might possibly be part of heaven, with Jimmie Murphy reposing on it.

Riding uptown in our taxicab when the day was over, Harry sat very close to me on the back seat, his head resting on my shoulder and his eyes closed. At first I thought he was asleep, but as he broke the silence from time to time with a murmured word about the fish, or the boat, or some other delight of the day, I learned that he was merely busy with the joys of memory. When we reached the hospital he was lifted out of the cab by a waiting orderly, and carried off to his nursery to have his evening meal luxuriously in bed, and as the two disappeared through the big front doors reminiscences of eels, sea lions, and alligators were still floating back to me.

Twice in the busy month that followed I saw the Comforter, making the long uptown journey to the hospital for an hour with the boy. Both times he was full of happy memories of our outing, of which I had given him, as a souvenir, a "'quarimum" of his own—a glass globe with three goldfish in it. We planned also another jaunt, which should include hayrides and hens laying eggs and a whole month at the old farm during the summer heat, but this was not to be.

At 6 o'clock one morning, a week after my second visit to the Comforter, I was awakened by the bell of the telephone beside my bed. When I took up the receiver the voice of Miss Smith came to my ear. It was low, but quite steady. Harry had died a few hours before, she told me, and she thought I might care to come up to the hospital and see him.

There was little I could say to her, except that I would come, but when I laid down the receiver and rose to dress I found myself facing a world which suddenly seemed appallingly empty because it lacked the presence of a little boy in blue rompers with bobbing yellow curls.

It was barely 8 o'clock when I opened the familiar hospital door and received the depressed greetings of the clerk at the inquiry desk, who knew why I had come, and of the elevator man, who took me up to my old floor. Miss Smith was leaving Harry's nursery as I reached it. Her features twisted as our eyes met. With a silent handclasp she turned and went back with me.

The room, usually flooded with sunshine at that hour, was darkened now by drawn shades. On the floor lay the Comforter's toys, just as he had left them the day before. A wooden hobby horse stood near the door. Two brave companies of lead soldiers, drawn up in battle array, stretched from the wall to the foot of his little white bed. A boat I had given him rode at anchor in a tin bath tub filled with water, and beside it was the "'quarimum," its goldfish swimming about in calm content. Outside the windows chirped the sparrows Harry had loved to feed. On the bed a silent, exquisite little figure lay under a white counterpane, covered with pink roses. Speechless, I bent over it, while Miss Smith gazed with wet eyes at her boy.

"We must think of how much suffering he has been spared," she said at last. "We must remember that we made him happy. We did make him happy," she added softly, "for we loved him, and he knew it."

She touched the little hands almost hidden by the roses.

"You knew, didn't you, Harry?" she whispered.

The sparrows still chirped demandingly, for it was the hour when Harry had fed them. Somewhere, far down the corridor, a child was crying—perhaps in terror of visions in the dark. But under his pink roses the Comforter slept on, a little smile puckering the corners of his mouth, as if indeed he knew.

RUTH of the U.S.A.

by

SYNOPSIS.

Ruth Alden, a stenographer, wants to go to France to work, but her mother and younger sisters are dependent on her, so she cannot. She is much interested in the arrival in Chicago of Gerry Hull, a famous young aviator, and happens to see him one afternoon as his motor is halted in the crowd. She asks him what she ought to do and he tells her she may be trusted to find that out. Later she buys a box of pencils from a beggar, and on opening it finds money and a passport. She decides to take advantage of the opportunity and go to France. The passport belongs to one Cynthia Gail, and Ruth learns from some papers in the package that she has been killed in an accident. She takes possession of Cynthia's room at a fashionable hotel and goes to a reception with Hubert Lennon, who easily accepts her as Miss Gail. Here she meets Gerry Hull again. They are mutually attracted, Ruth and this young airman. When Gerry begins to speak at the reception his eyes seek hers. He rails at America for not having been in the war long before. Ruth argues with him, and some of her remarks hurt him cruelly. Ruth leaves for France on the same ship with Lennon, Gerry, and Lady Agnes Ertyle. The boat is torpedoed. Ruth is terrified. Gerry Hull tries to reassure her. Later Ruth thinks he has been washed into the ocean, and tries to save him. She sees his face above her and knows he is safe. An American destroyer comes to their aid. They reach France in safety. Ruth manages to convince the officials that her passport is genuine. Hubert Lennon questions her about things that happened when Cynthia Gail was abroad before, and she thinks he is testing her. Ruth takes up the work assigned to her in Paris. One day in the church of Notre Dame a man gives her a message from the German government. She asks Gerry to have inquiries made about him, but cannot tell him how she has obtained the information. The man—Trevegnac—is arrested.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT.

ON THE BATTLE FRONT

SHE raised a hand and gently with her finger released one hand of his from her shoulder; he removed the other.

"What have we done with De Trevenac and the rest?"

"They're in a safe place for further investigation; nothing else, yet."

"But we're going to?"

"Give 'em a trial, of course; and then shoot some of 'em, anyway."

"M. de Trevenac?"

"Him pretty surely."

A shudder jerked her shoulders together in a spasm; he wanted to still her again under his hands, but he did not. He knew why she asked particularly about De Trevenac; she had seen him, heard his voice, perhaps; she could picture him standing blindfolded to be shot—upon her information. He would be her first slain.

Gerry had been a bit more brutal in his way of telling her than he had intended; indeed, now he did not understand himself. He had acted upon instinct to torment, rather than to spare her, to see how she took it.

She raised her head proudly. She's beautiful, he thought. The poise of that well shaped head always was pretty; her shoulders, even under the khaki, were pretty; they were well formed, firm shoulders. His gaze had dropped to them from her eyes, but now went back to her blue eyes again.

"Did you ever see—before—a man you had to kill?" she asked.

"A few times," he said.

"The first man you killed?"

"The first man I ever was certain that I killed was when I was in the foreign legion," he said. "We were advancing, using bayonets. The Huns weren't expecting an offensive there; it was the first year after they'd failed in France and were using their best troops in Russia, we found a landsturm regiment against us—middle aged men, married mostly, I suppose; fathers. I saw the face of one a second or so before I put my bayonet through him. A couple of times since, maneuvering for position in the air, I've got a good glimpse at chaps whom I was lucky enough to shoot down afterwards. I'd rather have not, you know," he confessed.

"I know," Ruth said. "But we're going to kill them—kill men, men, and more men! We have to. I'll not be too soft, don't fear! I've been all this month among women—girls and children, too—from the departments they've overrun! Not that they've told me much which I didn't believe before, but—well, getting it direct is different."

"Yes."

He was thinking, she knew, of their initial encounter; was she so pleased and proud of the tardiness of America now?

"I found out a remarkable thing from some Belgians," she said, half in answer to this unspoken challenge. "They told me that after the Germans took complete possession of their country and forbade them to wear Belgian colors or even rosette symbols, they took to wearing American colors. We were neutral then, and the Germans didn't dare stop it; so they all wore, as their symbol of defiance, our flag!"

"That was when every one thought always that we must come in," he rejoined. He was not thinking about what she was saying, but of her. "You've had more in your mind all along than just coming here to do relief work," he announced his thought aloud to her.

"Yes, I had."

"Can I ask what it is?"

"I can't tell you."

"But you've been doing some of it?"

"Some."

"You're going to keep at it?"

"If you'll let me."

"You mean by not making you tell how you found out about De Trevenac and by keeping you out of that?"

She nodded.

"But you must tell me anything else of that sort, you know."

"I don't know anything more of that sort except this. He had orders to see that some one be sent to the vicinity of Roisel to observe particularly dispositions of the British Fifth army—their reserve strength and whether there were signs that they will extend their front."

"That's absolutely all?"

"Absolutely all—except that I think that was a particularly imperative order."

"They'd be sending people all along that front," Gerry said. "We know they're going to try an offensive there where the armies join; the only doubt is when. I say, I'll tell for you that you just overheard something on the street; and I'll try to get past with it. If I can't, you'll see me here soon again; and soon anyway, if you don't mind, please."

"I wouldn't mind," Ruth said simply, "but I'll not be here. I'm leaving Paris in the morning."

"Ho! Where to?"

"I applied day before yesterday for field work and got it; so I'm going to Picardy."

"That's no address. What part?"

"Roisel."

"Hmm!"

Was he evolving—she wondered—the fact that De Trevenac's order to some one to go to Roisel had been delivered to her?

Gerry had not got that far. He was thinking that this strange girl, so much unlike any other one whom he had known well, was evidently determined to watch for herself the outcome about Roisel. He was thinking, too, that Roisel was decidedly an inconvenient place for him to visit. To be sure, it was in that direction that Agnes Ertyle would be at work, for the hospital units to which she was attached were caring for casualties from the Fifth army; but still she would be about that part of Picardy; he would have no errands likely to take him there. He wished that he had, or that this girl would soon again be where he could see her.

The days when he could be free from duty were few and brief now; and with the swift onset of spring they were certain to be fewer. For tremendous movements—the most stupendous in all human history—were clearly imminent; men, and women too, were certain to be called upon to die in number beyond all past calculation.

Gerry Hull did not think of himself as one of those certain to die; neither did he think of himself as one likely to live. Long ago he had attained that new imbuement of being, independent of all estimates of continuance of self, which was content with disposing of the present hours as best might be. So he had been spending his hours, whenever possible, with Agnes Ertyle; his next distant day was to be with her. And heretofore there had been no other desire to disturb him.

Now he was conscious—not of any inclination to spend an hour away from Agnes when he might possibly be with her—but only of concern for this blue eyed, light haired, warm, ardent girl from among his own people; concern which could not be satisfied except by seeing her soon again.

"I don't know what else you're doing, Cynthia Gail," he said both names as he had that time he had carried her, "but I suppose it dangerous. That's all right," he added hastily, "if the danger's necessary; if it's not—well, it's foolishness, you know. I wouldn't ask you to stop doing anything which could catch us another haul like De Trevenac; but that may be more than a deadly game, girl!" He held out his hand to her and, when she put hers in his, he held her fingers firmly. "Don't be foolish, please!"

"Don't you!" she pleaded to him in return; and the sudden broaching of the passion which had been below astounded her as much as it dumfounded him. "You take no regard for yourself—none, none at all!"

"That's—newspaper nonsense," he managed. He released her hand, but her grasp held him now and he could not break it except violently.

"It's not! I've talked to men who know you, who've flown with you! They all say the same thing, and they all love you for it; you've no regard for yourself, numbers against you, or anything when you've something you've determined to do! You do it! O, I wouldn't have you not—I wouldn't want you different. But the same need now doesn't exist!"

Her fingers had slipped from him and they stood back a bit, both breathing hard and flushed as they faced one another.

"We're outnumbered in France this spring as never before," he informed her soberly. "It's not generally—discussed; but, since Russia's absolutely out, that's the fact."

"I know," she said. "But what I meant was that you, and just a few others, aren't the only Americans here now. O, I've been able to understand why you've flown and fought as you have, why your friends are almost all fallen now and you, only by the grace of God, are left! I think I understood some of your feeling even before I knew you and heard you speak. You and your friends whom you thought I insulted—you, for a while, had to do the fighting for all America; a score or so of you had to do, you felt, for a hundred million of us who wouldn't come in. But we're coming now; a good many of us are here."

"Many?" he repeated. "A couple of hundred thousand among millions. And the German millions are almost ready to strike! Forgive me. I didn't mean to scold you ever again for America; but—O, you'll see! The husbands, and fathers, and the boys of France, the husbands, and fathers, and boys of England taking the blow again, giving themselves to the guns to save us all while our young men watch!"

She gazed up at him, but stayed silent now. Terror seized her that she done only harm, that she had stirred him to only greater regardlessness. His anger against her people, and whom she defended, had—as at that first time—banished his feeling for her. When he gave her his hand again, he barely touched her fingers, and he was gone.

Returning that night to his squadron at the front, he wrote her an apology, but after reading it over tore it up. His squadron was stationed far to the east and south of Roisel, and there was, at that time, nothing in the military situation to give him greater concern for that particular sector. Yet when news arrived, he scanned it quickly for report of operations about Roisel. However, though he twice got leave of a day, he did not on either occasion penetrate further into Picardy than the little city where Lady Agnes Ertyle now lived.

All along the front, from Switzerland to the sea, the calm continued; but few, on either side of that line, held illusions as to the nature of that calm. Then, as all the world knows, suddenly upon a morning the storm broke.

Gerry Hull received the bulletins which came over the military wire which brought him also his orders. These orders were for his squadron at once to move and report for service at the earliest possible moment at a certain point in Picardy—which orders, as orders usually go, were unexplained except as the news bulletins gave them meaning.

The news, however, left no loopholes for doubt. The great German assault, which had begun the morning before, already had developed a complete break through of the British front. The Germans, in one tremendous dash, had overrun the first lines of defense, the second, and the third; they were advancing now in open country with only remnants of an army before them; and the center of this huge wave of the enemy advance was what had been the French city of Roisel.

. . . .

The English guns began it. To the world the great battle started with the German onslaught of the morning of that Thursday, the 21st of March, but to Ruth the beginning was with the English guns—the guns of the evening before, rolling and resounding over the Picardy plain.

The night seemed to have embarked upon stillness in its earlier hours. The "line"—that dim, neighboring bulwark descending from the far indefiniteness of the North sea to approach closer to the little hamlet of Mirevaux, to seem indeed to point into Mirevaux but for a twist which turned it away and deflected it sweeping southward and east and south again toward the further fastness of the Alps—the line had been absolutely quiet. A great many airplanes had been up during the afternoon, Ruth had observed as she gazed toward the line from Mirevaux; their wings had specked the sky of the twilight.

When the afterglow was gone and the moon held the heavens the little colored lights flashed frequently before the stars of the east marking where many night flying pilots plied on their errands; but these signals seemed, at first, not to be for the guns. The moon illumined a drowsy Mirevaux, war ravaged but rewon and dreaming itself secure again behind that barrier of earth and men and guns and gas and airplanes over the slopes of the east which the English held.

And not alone Mirevaux so dreamed. Many persons of far wider information than the French peasants and without the French folk love of their own home farms to influence them also imagined Mirevaux quite safe, the hard headed and quite practical though also impulsive persons who made up a certain American committee for the restoration of war ravaged lands had moved and seconded and decreed in committee meeting that Mirevaux was definitely and finally removed from the zone of invasion and therefore that the committee's representative in Mirevaux should be authorized to expend for temporary and permanent restorations as many thousands of francs a month.

It was the useful expenditure of these sums which had brought Ruth Alden, as assistant and associate to Mrs. Gregory Mahew, to Mirevaux from Roisel in the first week of March and which, upon this quiet moonlit evening of that Wednesday, the 20th, detained Ruth at the cottage of old Grand'mère Bergues, who with her grandchildren—Victor and petite Marie—had outstayed the German occupation of Mirevaux from August of the first year of the war to the great retreat of February, 1917, when the enemy went back to the Hindenburg line, destroying unremovable property and devastating orchard and farm.

Grand'mère Bergues stood at the door of the little cottage which last autumn had been restored as well as obtainable materials permitted. The moon shone down upon what had been an orchard, but the Germans before their retreat had systematically sawed through the trunk of each tree till the trees fell. The French, as quickly as possible, had regrafted the top upon the stump and thus had saved a great many trees, and the new buds upon them, showing that these had survived the winter and would bloom and fruit again, brought to Grand'mère Bergues a sense of triumph over the boche.

Grand'mère Bergues needed all the triumph she could feel. Her son, Laurent, lay in one of those white crossed graves of the defenders of Douamont at Verdun; her own daughter, Mathilde, who had married a merchant of Carnieres, which was beyond Cambrai, had not been heard of since the first year of the war. Laurent's wife—well, she had been a young and beautiful woman and Grand'mère Bergues either told nothing of what had been her fate when the Germans came or else she told it again and again in abandon.

"They bound me to the bed post, and one said—he was a pink faced pig, with the pink—ugh!—all about his head through his close cropped hair—he said, 'Remove her.'

"'No, it is better to let her see. But keep her quiet!'

"So they stuffed in my mouth . . . ."

Ruth well knew the frightful facts; she knew that three years ago there had been little Laurent—a baby—too.

"These things," said Grand'mère Bergues, "you did not believe at first."

"No," Ruth said, "we did not."

"It is not to be wondered at," the old woman said simply. "The wonderful fact is that now you arrive!"

She trudged along beside Ruth through the ruin of the orchard and halted with her hand upon the bough of an apple tree which was one of those that the French had grafted and saved.

"I saw them cut this down; they measured so many centimeters from the ground; they start to saw; they cut so far through; the

Hardly had he caught step with her when e guns began—the English guns. The ing was heavy—no heavier, perhaps, than uth often had heard at night during the ys near Mirevaux, but tonight it seemed Ruth to have a more intense, more nerv-s quality.

"Box barrage, sounds like," Haddon-Sta-s volunteered when Ruthe stopped to dy the direction of the action. "Not ch on, I should say. Trench raid for in-mation, probably."

"When do you suppose they'll attack?"

They, of course, were the Germans. "O, y time. That's what we're out for a bit a line on tonight—naturally. Sooner they y it, the better, don't you think?"

"You're—we're all ready for them?"
th asked.

"Ready as may be," the Englishman rerned politely. "They've rather the adntage of us, you know—numerically. A od bit of a farm here again, isn't there?"
e shifted the subject, gazing over the level, nted fields.

Ruth talked with him about other things,
t her thought remained with those Eng-
s guns firing and firing, with the English nners serving them, with the English in-try raiding "for information" or lying wait for the certain coming attack of an emy having a recognized advantage—nurically. The reason that the enemy posed that advantage was, she knew, that America was not yet in force on the battle line. But for that tardiness she had not yet heard one word of censure from Englishman or from the French.

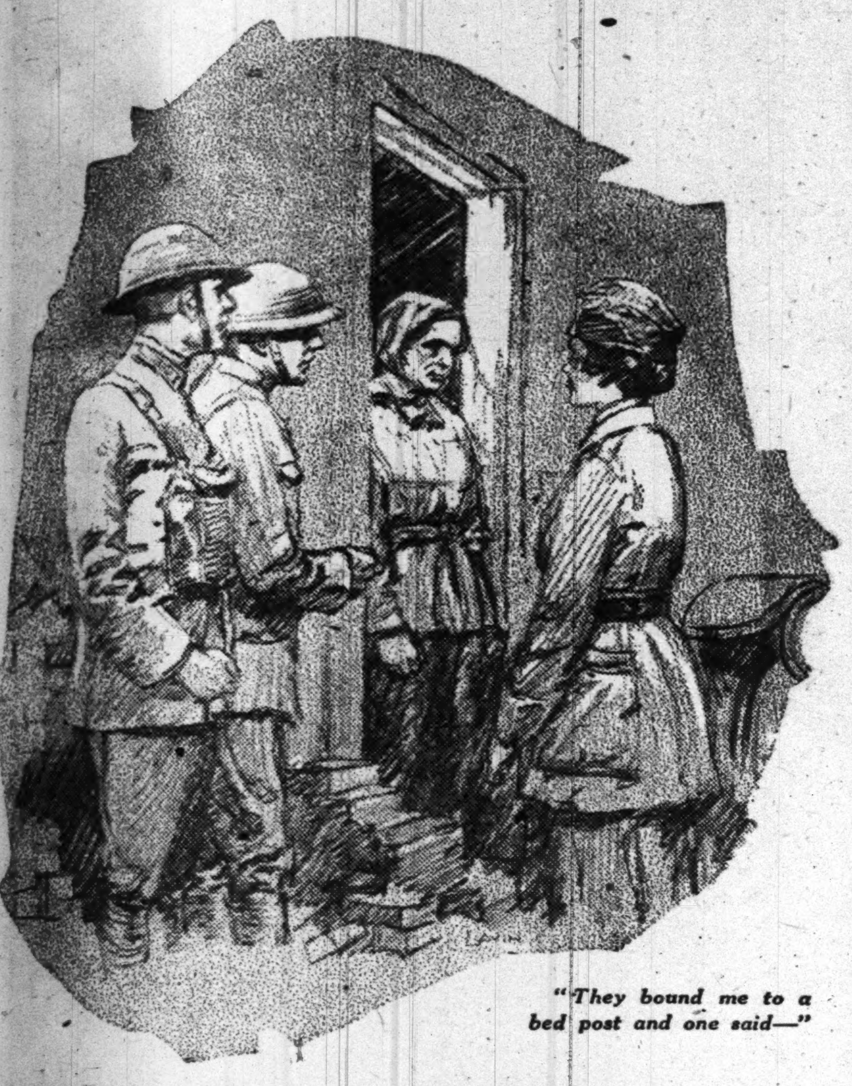
The guns were still going when she went to bed at half past 10—the English guns with the German guns attempting only ordinary reply. So Ruth slept until a quaking of the ground even more than the sudden, tremendous new impact of sound sat her up in the darkness awake. She gazed at her watch; it was half past 4.

German guns now were sending the monstrous missiles whose detonation shook and shuddered the land; it was the English guns which attempted the reply. Ruth went to her window and gazed out in the dark toward the lines until the gray of dawn discovered a thin gray mist over the ground—a mist of the sort making for surprise of attacking forces upon the forces defending, and that frightful fire of the German guns meant that, this morning at last, the Germans were attacking.



"They bound me to a bed post and one said—"

Ruth dressed, as Mrs. Mayhew and every one else in the house were dressing. The thunder of the guns, the never ceasing concussion of the bursting shells, rolled louder and nearer.

"That must be the start of their offensive," Mrs. Mayhew said. "Let them try; they'll never get through!"

"No," Ruth said, and she believed it. She thought of the German attacks upon Ypres in the early years of the war, of their failure at Verdun last year, and the slow progress of the allies when they had been on the offensive—the French in Champagne and the English on the Somme. The others also believed it.

"What will you be about today, dear?" Mrs. Mayhew asked Ruth.

"O!"—Ruth needed the moment of the exclamation to recollect. "I'm going to Aubigny to see that our last lot of portable houses got there all right and that the people know how to put them up."

"Then come with me; I'm going to Ham," Mrs. Mayhew offered, and during the morning, quite as usual, they drove off together in Mrs. Mayhew's car about their business of helping rehouse and shelter and refurnish the peasants of Picardy.

While they rode in the bright morning sunshine—for the mist was cleared now—guns, English guns emplaced far behind the lines and whose presence they had never suspected before thundered out; their concussion added to the trembling of the ground; and through the air swept sounds—swift, shrill, and ominous—not heard on the days before.

"Shells?" Mrs. Mayhew asked. "Those are shells?"

Ruth nodded. She had heard the shriek of the shells which had missed the Ribot and passed over. "Shells, I think," she said. They were passing peasants on the road now—families of peasants or such relics of families as the war had left; some, who had a horse, drove a wagon heaped high with the new household goods which they had gained since the invasion; some pushed barrows; others bore bundles only.

Ruth, who was driving, halted the car again and again.

"Where are you going?" she or Mrs. Mayhew asked.

"We do not know," the peasants answered.

Ruth drove on into the little city of Ham, where ambulances bearing the English wounded were arriving now in an endless line from the front. Mrs. Mayhew had seen wounded men—many, many of them—in the Paris hospitals; Ruth, too, had seen wounded—almost two score of people variously hurt aboard the Ribot. But here they came, not as blessés arrived in Paris, but from the battlefield, and, not by scores, but by hundreds, by thousands!

Ruth went sick—weakly sick she accused herself—when she saw them. She thought of Hubert, her gentle minded, sensitive Hubert, now helping to handle men so hurt. She thought of Agnes Ertyle when she saw English women, as well as English men, receiving the forms from the ambulances at the great casualty clearing stations where new rows of tents hastily were going up. She thought, of course, of Gerry Hull. She believed that he was far removed from his zone of battle; but she did not yet know—no one yet knew—how far the fighting front was extending. He might be flying at this moment over a front most heavily involved; she knew that he would wish to be; and how he would fight—fight as never before and without regard at all of himself to check disaster due, as he would believe, to the tardiness of his country. She saw a boy in the uniform of the royal flying corps lying upon a stretcher in the sunshine; he was smoking, but he took his cigaret from his lips to smile at her as she gazed down at him.

British troops—strong, young, uninjured men—marching in battalions; English guns and ammunition lorries; more English infantry and guns poured into the streets of the city, passed through them and on to the front and more came. The wounded from the front and the French folk from the farms and villages passed on their way to the rear; but no one else came back.

"The line is steadying itself; it's holding," the rumor ran in Ham during the afternoon. "The boche gained at first—every one on the offensive gains at first—but now we're holding them; we're slaughtering them as they come on." Then more alarming reports spread. "They've overrun the first lines at points, but the others are holding or are sure to. The boches are doing better than at Verdun. . . ." Then that was denied. "They're not doing so well . . . We're holding them now . . . They're coming on. . . . They're driving us back. . . ."

Not even the wounded and the refugees, still streaming from the front, brought reliable report; the battle was too immense for that. And into the battle English reinforcements steadily went forward. So Ruth was sure, that afternoon, only that the great battle, which the world had been awaiting, was begun; but she could know nothing of the true fortune of that first tremendous day. She was finding, however, that Mrs. Mayhew and she could not go about their work of restoration. They turned their car upon the road and, inviting in refugees, they carried the peasants swift miles along the roads which they had been trudging, let them off ten miles or so to the rear, and returned for more.

But they urged no one upon that day to flee; they simply assisted those already in flight and who would not be turned back. And that evening, which was more quiet than the evening before—or at least it seemed so in comparison to the day—they returned to Mirevaux. The worst was past, they believed; the line, the English and the French line which for more than three years had stood and held against the Germans, had re-formed and reëstablished itself after the first shake of the tremendous onslaught.

And so it still seemed to those in Mirevaux that next morning of Friday when, after breakfast, Ruth discussed again with Mrs. Mayhew what she would do that day They were agreeing that they should be calm and show confidence and go about their work as usual when they heard the hoofs of a galloping horse upon the road. The rider pulled up short before their cottage and Ruth, running to the door, saw "1583"—the English officer who had waited for her upon the road from Grand'mère Bergues the night before last.

"They've broken through!" he called to Ruth the alarm.

"Through!" Ruth cried. "The Germans!"

"We can't hold them! They're coming on! Fifty thousand of them! They've broken through—through! We couldn't hold them!"

Ruth recoiled upon the door. Mrs. Mayhew was beside her, calling out to the officer, but he, having given the alarm to one in that house, was going on. Ruth gazed vacantly over the smooth, replowed, replanted French fields and the rows of regrafted orchard trees toward Grand'mère Bergues', and her mind gave her in a flash vision of the broken dam of the English line with the German flood bursting through, and before that flood she saw again the refugees of yesterday in flight; she saw Grand'mère Bergues with petite Marie and Victor caught again, perhaps; she saw the wounded on the roads and in the tents of the clearing stations cut off by the Germans and taken; she saw the English troops—the strong, young men whom she had witnessed marching to the front yesterday—battling bravely, desperately, but shot down, bayoneted, and overrun.

"They've broken through. We couldn't hold them! They're coming on!"

Ruth gazed from the ground to the sky and she saw—not in her fancy but visually above her now—airplanes, allied airplanes flying in squadrons from the rear toward the front which she could not see but where, she knew, the line on the ground was broken and gone and where the Germans who were coming "on" must be pouring through. And her mind showed her in the pilot's seat of one of those airplanes—or in one just like them somewhere on that broken front—Gerry Hull. Vividly she fancied his face as he flew to fight and to make up, as well as one boy might, for the millions of his people who should have been yesterday and today upon that broken battle line where the enemy at last had broken through!

Ruth could not know then all that a break "through" meant; no one could know; for in all the fighting in France no army had broken "through" before. She could know only that upon her, as an American quite as much as Gerry Hull, was the charge to do her uttermost. But what was she to do?

Gerry Hull, arriving that morning at the airdrome to which he had been ordered, possessed the advantage over her of no uncertainty but of definite and imperative assignment to duty.

During his training and his service with the French he had piloted many sorts of machines. He had flown the reconnaissance and photographic biplanes with duty merely to bring back information of the enemy's movements; he had flown the bombing machines entrusted with destruction by aerial torpedo of batteries and ammunition dumps behind the enemy's front; he had flown the "artillery machines"—the biplanes with wireless by which he, or his observer, signaled to the French batteries the fall of their shots and guided the guns to the true targets; he had flown, as all the world knew, the swift, darting "avions de chasse"—the airplanes of pursuit—the Nieuports and the Spads in which, as combat pilot, he had dueled ten thousand feet up in the sky with the German combat pilots and shot some twenty of them down.

And it was while he was still in the French service that the flying men began to form new squadrons for strange service distinct from mere bomb dropping, from merely guiding guns or sending back information or from fighting other airplanes. Pilots of these squadrons started to attack, by bomb and machine guns, the enemy infantry and artillery and horse. They had special, new "ships" made for them—one seater or two seater biplanes mounting two or three machine guns and built to stand the strain of diving from a height and "flattening out" suddenly only a few yards from the ground while the pilot with his machine guns raked the ranks ot troops over which he flew.

The TEENIE WEENIES.

by WM. DONAHEY.

NOT far behind the shoe house there was a tiny ravine where the Teenie Weenies hardly ever went. It was a pretty place, but a family of toads lived there, and while the toads were friendly enough, they were so awkward the Teenie Weenies were always afraid of being hopped on and crushed.

But one day in November the Dunce and Zip, the Teenie Weenie wild man, made up their minds that it was so cold that the toads would be safely shut up at home, so they scrambled down into the pretty little place.

"Oh, l-l-l-looky!" cried the Dunce. "W-w-wh-what's in that bottle?" and he pointed to a bottle filled with dark liquid which lay on a bit of soft moss.

"Me say poison," answered Zip, as he went near the cork and sniffed. But the Dunce, who had been spelling out the label, gave a howl of joy. "P-p-poison nothing!" he shouted. "It's grape juice! And grape juice is the best stuff ever! We can't pull out the cork alone—l-l-lets get some of the others."

Back to Shoehurst they ran, and soon whispered the wonderful secret to the Clown and Gogo. On their way back they found the Chinaman resting outside his teapot laundry, and took him along, too.

"Me no like smell," Zip insisted. But the others told him grape juice was so good, he willingly helped them get into the bottle. The Chinaman, who always had plenty of string to tie up his laundry bundles, brought out a piece and helped the Clown climb up on the cork and tie the string tightly to it, while Gogo and the Dunce cut a sharp stick and passed it up to Zip, who got astride the neck of the bottle.

"One—two—three—go!" shouted the Clown. Zip pushed with his stick, the others pulled on the string, and pop! out went the cork! Gurgle-gurgle—out came the grape juice! But the Teenie Weenies were far from happy. They had been right in the path of the grape juice—it squirted all over them, and—it was spoiled! Such a horrid sour smell never was smelled!

When they had run far away they stopped and looked at each other. "We can't go home like this, the General would give us a dreadful scolding," said the Clown. "No—we go washee in cleek," said the Chinaman. And wash and scour themselves and their clothes in the creek they did, having to sit shivering in the late autumn sun while their clothes dried.

And even then, at dinner time, the Lady of Fashion, who sat beside the Dunce, wrinkled up her pretty nose and said, "Dear me, there's the worst sour smell somewhere around!"

"Me smell first—me say poison all time!" spoke up Zip. But the Dunce gave him such a kick under the table and the Clown and Gogo and the Chinaman glared at him so that he never said another word about it and no one ever suspected what had happened to the five little fellows, even when the Dunce and Gogo got very bad colds in their heads from sitting without their clothes such a long time.

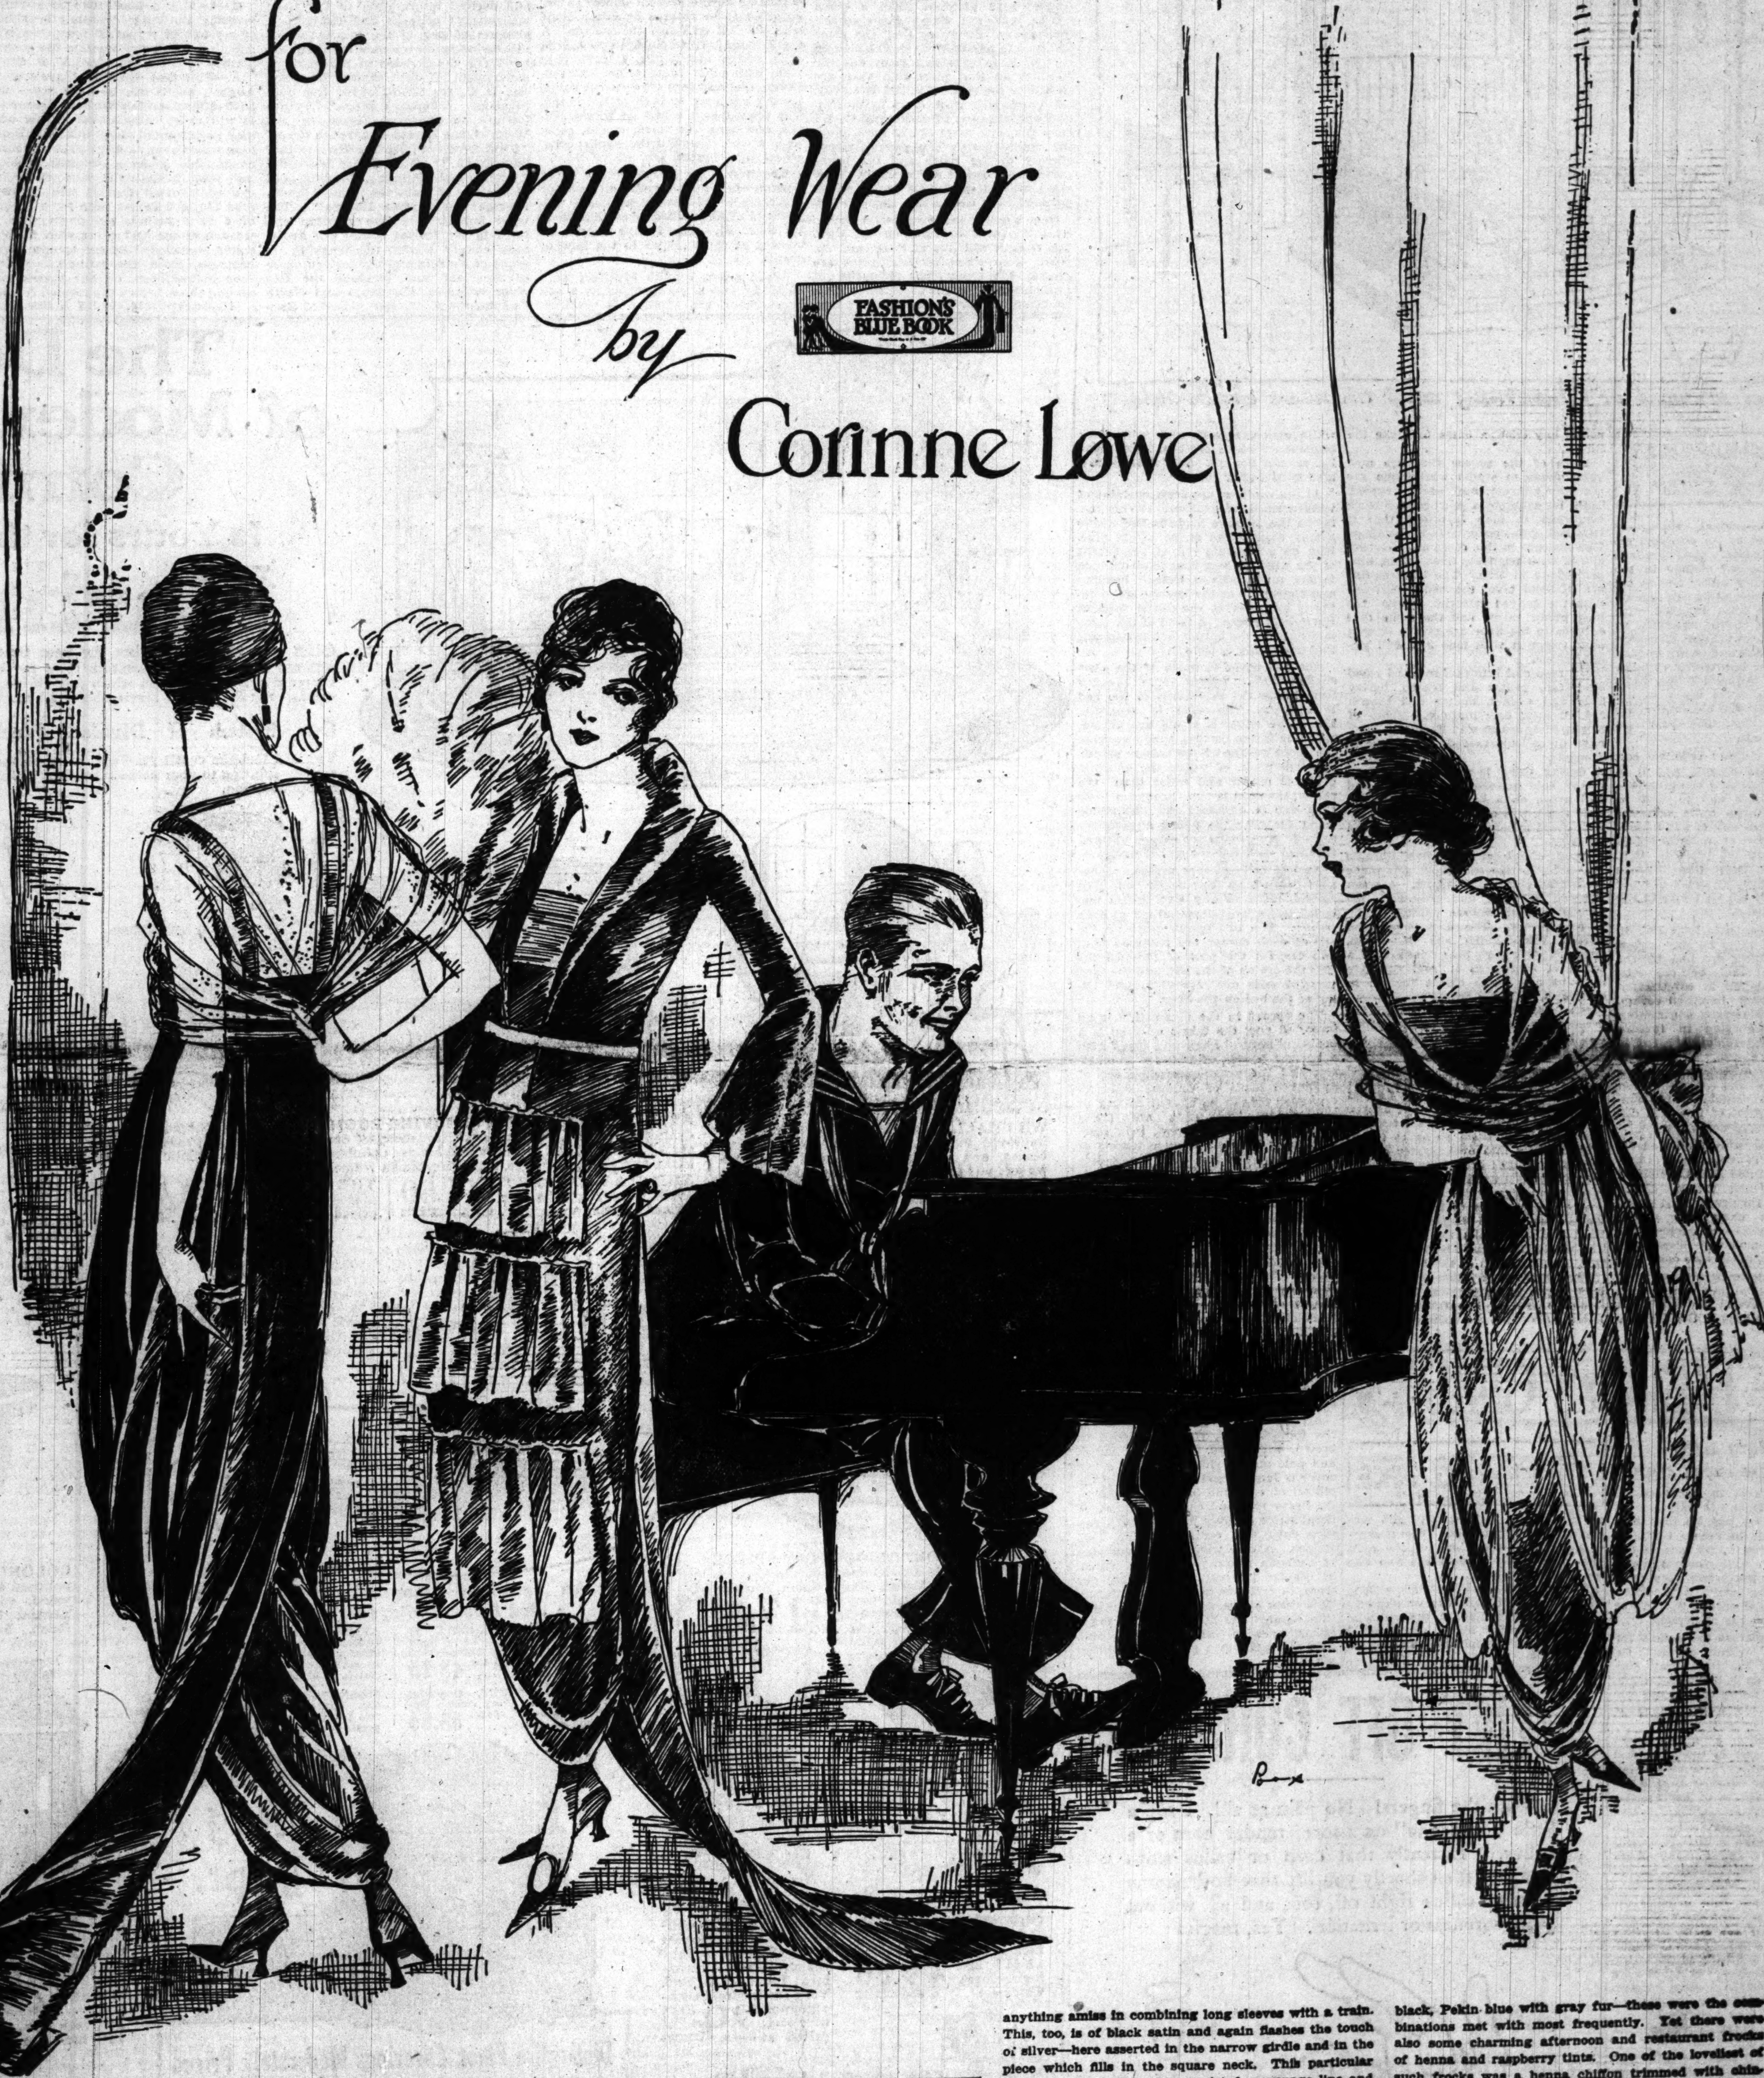
FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

by Corinne Lowe



This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

JUST to remind you that in these late fall frocks the news from the front is different from that in the rear, here in the center of the page is a black satin frock, long sleeve, long of waist, and distinguished by three Delphine blue velvet flounces on the front of the skirt to balance the train in the back. A narrow silver girdle and a filling in of silver at the square neck give the required touch of metal. At the left another black satin frock is combined with maline, held over the shoulders by silver straps and draped in a sling-like movement in front. At the right a youthful model of white satin is draped in twilight blue maline.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—New York is now like a great mirror with a mind of its own. The mind of New York is war and so it happens that everything which looks into that magic glass is not merely reflected. It is interpreted. All through the first three weeks of October, for instance, Fifth avenue showed not merely the familiar autumn image of gay shop windows, of glossy limousines, of a world of city fashion returning to its own. There, to be sure, were there, but they were all subdued by the giant spirit of the mirror. Under gallant fluttering flags, to the beat of constant bands, the great thoroughfare became the Avenue of the Allies. Our conquering armies, the Liberty loan, the president's visit—these exalted and transfigured every reflection seen in the New York mirror.

And Mme. Fashion, too! She may curtsy and nod to herself in the great mirror of New York, but she, too, catches more than the old meaningless charm of her own reflection. War has subtly transmuted fashion. Fashion has become now only a record of the times.

Thus, when one of the ablest designers gave his autumn fashion show last month he donated the high cost programs to a war benefit. And when the fashions themselves unrolled before us we said, "This looks like victory. These furs and velvets, this jet and lace, this gold and silver—we couldn't create magnificence like this unless we were sure of ourselves."

We are giving above three of the more elaborate toilettes from this New York designer's collection. At the left is a black satin with a shoulder drapery of black maline veiling, straps of silver ribbon. The feature of this frock is the sling-like movement of drapery which crosses the front of the skirt and which is balanced by the graceful train.

Next comes one of those new gowns which don't find anything amiss in combining long sleeves with a train. This, too, is of black satin and again flashes the touch of silver—here asserted in the narrow girdle and in the piece which fills in the square neck. This particular creator is fond of the long waisted moyenage line and here we find it combined rather startlingly with three flounces of Delphine blue velvet.

And, by the way, ruffles and half grown flounces are like the Serbians. Refreshed after a long absence from service, they are up and reconquering old territory. We have found echoes of the three tier skirt in the fall collections. Many skirts flank a straight front and back panel with two or three flounces at the sides. And tiny ruffles of lace or net are found on some of the dinner and restaurant frocks.

The last frock shown is a simple, charming model made on the most youthful of lines. Of white satin, it is draped in twilight blue maline which, with its fichu movement over the shoulders, its sash and its panniers, is reminiscent of the quaint Godey Book fashions of another year.

The colors favored by this American creator were rather somber. Midnight blue with black, brown with black, Pekin blue with gray fur—these were the combinations met with most frequently. Yet there were also some charming afternoon and restaurant frocks of henna and raspberry tints. One of the loveliest of such frocks was a henna chiffon trimmed with chinchilla, and with the familiar touch of silver.

As to the combination of black and brown, it was launched, you may remember, by Jenny at her fall openings. It was echoed in this New York collection again and again. Perhaps you might think it a little too much like a frown on a rainy day, but one look at some of these creations pitting glossy black against radiant golden browns and you go home a confirmed black and brownster. Brown furs on black, black furs on brown—it is really a lovely combination. Then, too, this designer has made for dinner gowns some stunning black satins veiled in brown lace.

One brand new note of this opening was the use of moire or taffeta in place of satin for combination dresses. Thus one finds among his things black moire with midnight blue serge. Alliances of velvet and moire in different tones of the same color are also among his offerings.

THE advent—revival, rather—of the day bed as an accepted article of furniture has brought about a marked change in the dressing of ordinary beds. Sedate old beds that as far back as we can remember have always been satisfied with white marseilles have suddenly, as though by their own volition, discarded the traditional white and begun to garb themselves in the bewitching raiment popularized by coquettish day beds. They remind me of so many rather "settled" mothers who bloom in sheer joyous sympathy when their daughters begin to blossom out.

If we can't have day beds we can at least have day covers, and it is such fun to concoct new combinations of stuffs and colors and to contrive coverlets and throws quite different from anything that any of our friends may have. No sort of material seems to be barred from the process. Silk, satin, calico, and rags (the French word chiffon is ever so much prettier than "rags," isn't it?) all figure in the new bed garmenting.

Fortunate women who have Paisley shawls are using them for day covers. Fresh, pretty effects are had by the use of English chintz or cretonne, figured, but made up in conjunction with plain colored linenized cotton, repp, or faille. Materials contrasting in color but harmonizing in texture are almost always employed. Satins are trimmed with brocade, brocades are trimmed with taffeta, armures are trimmed with soft silks, and most often the combination is repeated at the windows, in lambrequins of the solid colored stuff and figured draperies.

The type of furniture employed decides the style of coverings. Light pastel silks or printed linens are called for by the Fhench things, cotton stuffs by cottage furniture, hand tufted and hand woven cloth and simple stuffs by the colonial four posters, and sturdy fabrics, such as Elizabethan chintz or damask, by antique oak.

For the average modern room what is required is something simple with just a touch of novelty about it. Don't overlook this; on buying the fall draperies buy enough extra to make the covers.

Some of the covers that are now being made in studio workrooms are not only alluring, but easily copied. Take, for example, a pearl colored room furnished in blue furniture that is trimmed with cream colored moldings. The curtains in this room are of cream chintz with pagodas, trees, birds, etc., printed on in blue. The lambrequins are of solid blue; the bed is covered with the striped material, while the long pillow throw and the ruffle that extends to the floor are of the figured stuff trimmed with blue and dull yellow fringe.

Old rose and bronze, sand and royal blue, tan, yellow and brown, barley gray and scarlet, mauve and brown, are all good combinations. Spots of bright color are so well liked that they have quite superseded wishy-washy schemes.

A daring thing is an imported linen in big, bold pattern of dull cream and dull green on a brilliant red ground. This is used in a room with gray furniture and is combined with dull green velveteen.

About the least expensive, durable and yet effective combination is made of figured chintz and denim. A room papered in white and gray and furnished in light mauve painted furniture is pretty. The day cover and shaped lambrequins afe of denim, trimmed with dark blue fringe with a touch of orange in it, and the side curtains are white chintz figured in turquoise, yellow, orange, scarlet, and green. Little red candles are on the dresser; the day cover is full length of the bed and hangs straight at the angles. The pillows are put away in the daytime, so that the covering lies quite flat on the bed. If this is too severe, a single width of the figured chintz, trimmed with a band of denim, may be laid over the pillows, tucking over and under them so as to round them slightly into oval bolster shape.

Bolster frames are never used, but feather bolsters are substituted instead of pillows. The easiest way to make a day bed cover is to make it extra long—extra special long—and roll the head end about the feather pillows. The whole thing must be wide, falling well over the sides of the bed.

Here is the description of the sweet little room, unpretentious, but full of feminine grace. The furniture is of brown mahogany, the walls a pearl and white stripe, figured over with little bunches of coral, old blue, and green leaves and flowers. The floor is covered with a gray rug.

At the windows are draw curtains of wide striped seersucker, having between the puffings made in the weave a tiny unpuckered stripe of old blue. Run on a separate rod at the height of the windows is a flounce of old blue taffeta made with a French heading and shaped up at the lower edge, making it narrower at the center than at the outside edges. A band of the same taffeta faces the bottom of the curtains that come only to the sill.

The bed cover is made of the seersucker with a taffeta ruffle hanging from inside the sideboards of the bed to the floor. The ruffle is separate. The pillow cover is of old bue taffeta, gathered into a cording that measures the exact outline of the bolster pillow. The silk piece, of which the cover is made, is longer and wider than the pillow; the cord is run through a little tuck and is gathered in. The whole thing fits over the pillow almost like a hood. The edges are spread out and trimmed with narrow silk fringe.

An odd little feature makes a rather good finish for a four poster bed. The spread, made of any soft, silken material, has a long, diagonal slit at each corner. The two points made by the slit at each corner are trimmed with two tassels; the post of the bed fits into the crotch of the slit, and the long tasseled ends are crossed around the leg of the bed on the floor.

The spread in the illustration is an imported one; the fabric selected is a beautiful natural Shantung edged with a narrow border of Chinese embroidery, and the ornaments are made of appliqued disks of Chinese embroidery, such as can be bought at any of the shops. The ends are fairly weighted down with great, long scarlet tassels between smaller tassels of jade green. The bed itself, a complete novelty, has been made to order. It is on a dais and the foot, it will be noticed, has been cut down to allow the full display of the lovely spread.

Following the decorative scheme, the chairs are upholstered in Shantung and ornamented with embroidered disks. The walls are oyster green, overstriped in wide and narrow group stripes of dull blue. The furniture is made of Italian walnut, delicately polychromed at the carved edges. Lambrequins at the windows are of Shantung and embroidery over draw curtains of thin oyster green silk. All of this could be carried out in less expensive fabrics.

Among the striking combinations is the following: A room furnished in brown, with a Du Barry rose carpet and pale mauve side walls, has a bed cover (a long spread reaching over the pillow) of cretonne in wide stripes of Du Barry rose and chamois yellow. A floral stripe entirely in black and green runs down the center of the rose stripes. At the windows are curtains of chamois yellow voile, upon which, at regular intervals, rose stripes cut from the cretonne have been appliqued. This thick stripe, alternating with the thin against the light, gives an interesting variation. The suggestion could be worked out in a great many different ways.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

WHERE APPEARANCES COUNT.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Miss Mary King, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

A GIRL'S pride in her personal appearance is not only one of her greatest charms, but is a great asset to her in business. Without this pride, which induces her to appear always well groomed, a girl in the business world has very little chance of rising above a mediocre position, in spite of special training or unusual ability in her profession.

If you try to picture to yourself for a moment the woman of your acquaintance who has been most successful in business or professional life, I am sure that a figure of neatness and smartness presents itself to your mind's eye.

When a question of advancement for a business girl is being worked out by her superiors, one of the important items for consideration is the relative attractiveness of her appearance.

A plain girl may make herself attractive if she uses a little judgment and good taste in the choosing of her clothes, and wears only such clothes as are suitable or becoming.

I was on my way into an office the other day, and, walking down the corridor immediately ahead of me were two girls. One was the acme of daintiness; the other gave the opposite impression. The heels of her shoes were run down, her blouse showed beneath the belt of her skirt, which was on awry; her hair was untidily dressed, and her whole appearance was careless and unkept looking.

They both went into the office for which I was bound, and after I transacted my business with the woman in charge I asked her who the two girls were, describing them to her. She told me that they were intimate friends and that both had started to work for the firm at about the same time, one preceding the other by a few weeks.

They had been there for four years, and, while one of the girls had advanced during that time until she was now acting as confidential secretary to the president of the firm at a salary more than double that at which she started, the other girl was still poking along at the same old job she had in the beginning, earning only a few dollars more now than she was then.

The office manager told me that one of the girls was just as bright, capable, and good looking as the other, but while one took scrupulous care of her self and her clothes, the other was careless and shiftless about her clothes and all her belongings. Her desk was always untidy looking, and she was constantly losing things. When it came to advancing either one of the girls the more presentable of the two was naturally the choice.

As it is with these two girls, so it is with girls in offices everywhere—all other things being equal, the girl who is most particular about her personal appearance is the one to be chosen for a better job.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

With the fingers! No pain at all! Drop a little "Freezone" on a sore, tender corn or a callus. Instantly that corn or callus stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without pain, soreness or irritation. Yes, magic!

Why wait! Costs only a few cents! Hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and painful calluses on bottom of feet just loosen and fall off. Truly! You feel no pain when applying Freezone or afterward.

The SUCCESSFUL HOME GARDEN by J.F.H.Heide

No. 241.

POTATO SCAB.

J. W. L. writes: "I have used a space of about 60x70 feet in my garden for potatoes the last six years. Though decidedly successful with all vegetables, the potatoes (from home grown seed) were partly scabby last year. This year I bought seed potatoes from a clean source, but the crop was scabby throughout. Believing that the piece had been in potatoes too long, I planted part of it to corn last year, but the potatoes on that piece this year are as bad as the rest. The soil is clayey, but thoroughly worked up by cultivation and manure. Considering that I keep chickens, what can be done about the potato scab? The ground slopes slightly to the north and the lower part bakes hard in dry weather. How can I make it as friable as the upper portion? Will wood ashes improve it?"

Once a soil is inoculated with potato scab it cannot be cured in one year. The fungus will live in it at least six years, even when no root crops are grown. If a clean piece of land is not available, all thought of potatoes must be given up for a number of years. Meanwhile plow up the infected land every fall, using a mold board that will invert the slice of earth. If potatoes are planted elsewhere on clean soil, select one with better drainage than the lower part of the present site. Adopt a three or four year course of rotation and treat seed potatoes with formaldehyde till the disease is eradicated in the vicinity. No matter what is planted on the present potato patch, crops must be rotated or other plant diseases will establish themselves. A useful rotation for chickens would be corn, wheat, and lentils, a three year plan, with other catch crops between. Divide the land into three equal parts, sowing one part to each of the crops. The second year would be wheat, lentils, and corn; the third, lentils, corn, and wheat; the fourth, again corn, wheat, and lentils, etc.

The best thing to render the lower portion more friable under all weather condition is subsurface drainage. Tiling and other methods were described on Sept. 25. The incline should be plowed at right angles to the flow of water.

Wood ashes, though excellent as a fertilizer and of some value as a soil amendment, are alkaline in reaction, and as such would promote the growth of potato scab where the soil is already inoculated. It is not advisable to use it even on adjacent land.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—Whom could I write for reliable information regarding potato culture? What states are best adapted?—Mrs. C. F. H.

A.—Write for available publications and desired information to the state agricultural colleges and experiment stations of any of the important potato growing states mentioned in No. 2. Write the division of publications, department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for the following free publications: "Potato Culture," "Potato Culture on Irrigated Farms in the West," "The Potato as a Truck Crop," "Good Seed Potatoes and How to Produce Them," "Potato-Tuber Diseases," "Commercial Handling, Grading, and Marketing of Potatoes," and "Potato Storage and Storage Houses." The most important potato growing sections in the United States are Aroostook county Maine; the trucking regions of Norfolk and the eastern shore of Maryland and Virginia, the Red river valley of Minnesota and North Dakota, the Kaw river valley of Kansas, the Greeley and Carbondale districts of Colorado, the Twin Falls country of Idaho, and the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys of California. Wherever there is well drained sandy loam, with an abundant supply of water and a relatively cool climate, such land is particularly adapted to profitable potato culture.

Q.—Is this a good time to attempt layering the long, drooping branches of my hybrid perpetual rose, Coquette des Alpes? Can you describe the proper method of doing so?—Mrs. E. B. G.

A.—The best time for layering is August, but it can be done the latter half of October in favorable autumns. It will make callous over winter and may be separated about mid-May. Bend long canes over as close to the ground as possible, make a slanting incision half way through the cane, under an eye so situated that it will be covered 1½ to 2 inches deep for a length of 6 or 8 inches, pin down with a wooden crotch and cover with friable, sandy topsoil, letting the terminal end protrude above the ground. Mulch four inches deep, on the layers and around them, before the ground freezes.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. —Adv.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

EDITED BY JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

ESSENCES OF VEGETABLES.

ALTHOUGH an interesting book has been written on food flavors, the subject, to my mind, has never been adequately treated. While food flavor is such a fundamental and therefore practical thing as to be what constitutes the difference between a carrot and turnip or beet, an explanation of it takes us into rather high realms of reason and science. And the minute you get away from A and B and C in food there you lose the attention of the people you would most like to inform and could help face to face, but not through the written word.

There are food materials enough which might yet be salvaged from neglected war gardens to make flavors for months of cooking for a whole city—flavors for meats, for soups, for sauces. But few know how to make these flavors, although they do buy kitchen bouquets and flavoring powders which they would better make themselves from the fruits of their pepper, parsley, and celery plants and other vegetables.

Here are one or two easy things that anybody might do. There are still existent imperfect green tomatoes which will ripen in the house, even without sun, but they are not presentable for salads, though good for soups. The juice of these tomatoes contains sugar and precious minerals. If the tomatoes are cooked and this juice strained out of them, as juice is strained from fruit in jelly making, and then simply boiled down until it is like a sirup, it makes a delicious flavoring for sauces. It is not even necessary to add salt to get a product that will keep long and perfectly. It is dark, so helps in making the dark sauce.

The water in which celery tops are cooked may be boiled down until it is dark and will jelly. But this is a nicer task. The celery flavor, though seemingly postive, is volatile. You can brown it out of this water.

Iron in Celery Tops.

Something like this is made commercially, but is not much known. It is reduced celery water salted heavily and stiffened with sugar to make a vegetable bouillon cube. The reduction is probably accomplished in a vacuum, so the volatile element is not lost.

If this volatile element is lost in home reduction all is not lost, for the precious minerals, notably iron, are in this essence of the green celery tops. Though it may not give the celery flavor when added to a sauce, it does give a flavor, as garlic does when imperceptible as garlic, and one of similar value to the total product. The most perfectly flavored product is that in which the flavors are so blended that no one is distinguishable from the other.

If the tops from six large celery stalks in good condition are cut up carefully with their stems, any defects rejected, then cooked in about a quart and a half of water, this water cooked down to a half cup and salted rather heavily may be sealed for winter use. The cooked celery makes good salad, especially if seasoned with some turmeric in cooking, and this will not hurt the final essence. In fact, it may with careful treatment help to prevent the loss of flavor possible. If this water is to be used for soup—and it does make an excellent vegetable stock—the turmeric seems to set the flavor.

Some people cannot make a celery soup stock. They get something about as flat as tepid water. They need to be shown, but if they can get no one to do it they might try a little turmeric powder.

Essences Easy to Make.

Compound essences are easier to make than the single ones. Perhaps none of these is quite so easy as that of tomatoes, onions, and green peppers in equal parts. There is enough sugar in the onion and tomato to keep the essence. There is danger in adding salt at the start, because when boiled down the whole may be too salty, but some may be used at the end. In that case a sauce flavored with these should never be salted until after the essences are added.

By the way, the simplest of sauces to use with pot roasts, stewed egg plant, and many other dishes, is just the tomato, onion, and green pepper, stewed without water and somewhat reduced. It may also be used as a soup basis. Good soups of several sorts are nothing but essences, essences of meats, essences of vegetables.

Though many times solicited to do so, I have seldom written of flavors. Flavors are more something to be developed in foods rather than added to them. They are something to prepare at home rather than to buy in tins or bottles, although the spices of the east and the fruit of the pepper tree are substituted for much more desirable and wholesome resources coming from near home, as near home as our gardens.

Flavors are so delicate and volatile in many foods that some cooks never realize that they were ever present. The word flavor comes from a word meaning to blow and is so closely allied in meaning to odor that in Italian cookery it is the equivalent of the word which is constantly used to mean flavor. When a cake is made that has no nice odor it is likely to be flavorless. When a vegetable is cooked so that we do not get from it the gratification of smell, its flavor or flavors have been in part or entirely destroyed.

French Use Many Flavors.

To satisfy the luxurious tastes of humanity whole communities in the south of France have devoted almost all their labor to growing roses and extracting the essences from them. French cookery, when it was at its height, extracted essences and conserved for similar uses an endles variety of food flavoring. Just because they developed this art it became the basis of some of the famous food industries in which the French excelled the whole world. Their conserves of meats, of nuts, of fruits, of mushrooms, and truffle have many of them been for no other use than the enhancing of cookery through flavors. The pâte de foie gras is more used as a meat flavor than anything else. Out of so plebeian a thing as the liver of a goose did they make this—the goose of the peasant. Ultimately they left for the peasant's stew only the neck and wings and feet of the goose. The rest they conserved in one fashion or another.

The marron or conserved chestnut is another of the common foods of the peasant exalted through conserving. Whole communities of European peasants live half the year on chestnuts and chestnut flour cakes. The perfect French prune has as much flavor as the fresh plums and more pronounced because the fresh juices have been condensed or reduced. Wine itself is a conserve of the essence of the grape, and in French cookery is used endlessly as a flavoring material.

The greatest of French kings, Louis XIV., is mentioned in history as one "under whom cookery made prodigious advances, being one while employed to give zest to his glories and then again to console him in their decline. The name of his celebrated maitre d'hotel, Bachamel, a name as surely destined to immortality by his cause as that of Herschel by his star or that of Baffin by his bay, affords guarantee and proof enough of the discriminating elegance with which the royal table was served; and, as may be seen in the memoirs and correspondence of the time, Colbert, the celebrated administrator, and Condé, the great captain, were little, if at all, behind hand in this respect with royalty."

When Food Was Plentiful.

A story of this period which may recall to us the fact that onion soup is called soubise soup, also shows something of the extent to which essence making was carried in those extravagant days, while at the same time it was laying bases of industry for the most thrifty people in the world—the French peasants. This story is taken from an old magazine of 1835, which has an extended review of two books on food, one a cook book and the other the most famous book on gastronomy every written.

The Prince de Soubise also rejoiced in an excellent cook—a man of true science, with just and truly liberal notions of expenditure. His master one day announced to him his intention to give a supper, and demanded a menu. The chef presented himself with his estimate, and the first article on which the prince cast his eyes was this: Fifty hams.

"Eh, what!" said he. "Why, Bertrand, you must be out of your senses! Are you going to feast my whole regiment?"

"No monseigneur; one will appear upon the table: the rest are not the less necessary for my espagnole, my blends, my garnitures, my——"

"Bertrand, you are plundering me, and this article shall not pass."

"O, my lord," replied the indignant artist, "you do not understand our resources. Give the word, and these fifty hams which confound you I will put into a glass bottle no bigger than my thumb."

What answer could be made? The prince nodded, and the article passed.

The "espagnole" is a sauce containing as much essence of vegetables as essences of meats. Many dishes might be mentioned which owe their final perfection to the essences of vegetables.

In England people of refinement deplore the everlasting use the cook makes of the "browning" and the corals for seasoning. The first is some carameled or burned sugar dissolved in water. The second gives color to sauces, but strawy flavors.

Sugar in Vegetables.

Better than dried vegetables, or tabasco or curry are the essences we can make of vegetables or just the tops which would ordinarily be wasted. And these essences have the vegetable sugars and minerals that some carameled sugar has not. And today we may count this use of sugar wasteful.

A class in home economics is now studying war foods under a teacher who has been doing national work on foods, and she has been giving the class the subject of sugar in vegetables. Just how much there is we do not know in many cases, but the beet has considerable and some species of carrots have almost as much. These vegetables have much more sugar than have some of the substances out of which sugar in commercial quantities has been extracted. In eating them we satisfy our body need for sugar, although our palate may get no pampering. But a trained palate will recognize this sugar unless the cook has thrown it out in some cooking water.

We conserve vegetable essence by cooking our vegetables to perfection. Although it seems but a temporary form of conservation, it is permanent physiologically. The least expensive foods in our markets today are the vegetables. It is the time to use them in great abundance, for we can never forecast what will happen to food prices. We can get our sugar from them instead of dates, which have reached the absurd price of 65 cents a pound. Last year no end of conservation recipes prescribed dates. But we must use a substitute for this sugar substitute now.

In Massachusetts recently they decided that vegetable dinners were one of the most healthful meals of the season, a real remedy for influenza. This is entirely in accord with dietetic principles. The vegetables counteract acid formations whether from other foods or those made by our own human chemistry.

It is patriotic to eat vegetables today for about four reasons, and it is just as patriotic to conserve them in every serviceable fashion. Even the breweries are turning to this new task. The patriotic farmer grew them—O, well, it is a long story of patriotic endeavor. It is patriotic to appreciate and to utilize to the last stalk every vegetable in the fields or market. Even those seeded lettuce stems may be peeled, sliced thin, cooked, and served in a white sauce. They represent a health essence.

Wastrels of the garden: Leaf, stem, and tip of lettuce gone to seed make fine greens; radish pods for pickles; edible little buds grow on cabbage stalks which may itself be peeled, sliced thin, and cooked, put into white sauce, and served on toast.

Better Housekeeping

By Mary Bronson Hartt

MATTRESSES AND BEDDING.

THAT a heavy double hair mattress is a wabbly monstrosity to lift, to carry about at house cleaning time, or even to turn, housekeepers seem to agree. Opinions differ, however, as to the remedy. Some have the mattress made in two sections crosswise, two-thirds of the length in one part, one-third in the other. Others divide theirs in two lengthwise, and still others prefer three little mattresses, two side by side and a third across the foot. These small sections are easily lifted. They make it possible to turn and shift the wear so that hollows never develop.

Big or little, but especially if unwieldy, a mattress should be provided with handles, if possible stout leather ones. Who has not at some time attempted to engineer a ton weight of stuffed tick through a doorway, and had his finger nails nearly drawn in the process? By all means handles!

Unless there's a vacuum cleaner in the house to suck the dust from round the tufts, a mattress ought to have a washable outer cover, as nearly as possible dustproof. Unbleached cotton, stiffly starched, makes a good cover.

The sight of a white mattress tuft on the floor should be the signal for the first aid kit to come out. Loosening ties means mattresses gradually flattening out, hair lumping and breaking, uncomfortable nights, and by and by a bill for renovating. A regular mattress maker's needle, some string, and a little gumption put back tufts as fast as they fall.

A single mattress used on a permanent cot without a shadow of footboard is an uncertain quantity unless it be anchored. Strips of ticking stitched on at two diagonal corners serve to tie it firmly to the wooden frame beneath the wove wire spring. These ties are a nuisance when you want to turn the mattress; but anything is better than sleeping in a bed that skates gradually off toward the floor.

Careful housekeepers protect the pillow tick with a muslin slip that ties on under the outer case. Easily laundered, this protector takes any soil from damp hair in hot summer nights. Some people slip a thin quilted pad, scented wtih lavender, rose leaves, or verbena between the pillow case and the pillow.

Err on the side of too great length in sheets. If it were not a German custom we should think well of the plan of having sheets long enough to fold well down over blanket and comfort even when the bed is occupied, protecting these less washable things from contact with the sleeper's face. The Germans button the sheet down a foot or more onto the comfort with huge pearl buttons so it cannot get away.

If sheets are short enough to work out at the foot, pin a width of old sheeting firmly to the under side of the mattress and button the sheet to this with small buttons. Blankets which have shrunk may have stitched to the lower edge a generous breadth of sheeting to tuck in, leaving all the blanket for the top.

The most easily laundered of bedspreads is of white dimity.

An electric reading lamp beside the pillow is not only a comfort when reading one's self to sleep, but desirable when "seein' things" at night. All that is strictly necessary is a plug screwed into the electrolier, a length of wire, and a bulb lashed to the head of the bed within easy reach.

Even should there be no electric current in your house or your town the night light need not be dispensed with, for dry batteries can easily be installed at no great distance from the bedroom, supplying current enough for an emergency light. Lacking that, there is always the small electric flashlight to be kept under the pillow.

One way to warm a bed is to turn down the covers and iron the lower sheet all over with a hot flatiron. Not so poetic as a warming pan, but quite efficient.

If you suffer with cold feet, don't wait for somebody to give you bed socks for Christmas. You can make them yourself from eiderdown flannel in a half hour. Cut them roughly boot shaped, with a high ankle, so they won't work off.

For telling the time when wakeful in the night a tiny clock is made with a button which, when pressed, glows up a onecandlepower bulb to illuminate the dial. Tudor Jenks, ingenious man! suggests a simpler way of telling the hour. He says if you find out by experiments how many turns it takes to wind your watch, by twisting the stem in the night you know how time has sped. My watch, for example, winds in twelve turns, one turn for each two hours of the twenty-four. If, waking in the night, I find the stem will go around twice I know I've been in bed four hours.

The war has restored the art of writing letters. Sons have written beautiful love letters to parents; wives have had the old tale revived for them in husbands' letters from camp and overseas. Young war romances have brought forth love letters most beautiful. Even the small children share the glory of the revived art in the exchange of letters with the orphaned children of France and Belgium. Will you give us the privilege of considering yours for publication? The Tribune will pay $5 for every love letter published. No names will be printed. Letters will not be returned. Learn a Little and Save a Little Every Day

By Elizabeth O. Hiller

All measurements are made level in these recipes. A teaspoon of regulation size holds sixty drops. Three level teaspoons equal one level tablespoon. Sixteen level tablespoons equal one cup (one-half pint). The half-pint measuring cup is the standard measuring cup used in modern cookery.

VEGETABLES IN WINTER.

MANY of these vegetables will be found in the markets throughout the winter. In this department will be found recipes for their use that will furnish variety and in many instances they will be combined with small pieces of meats, which always imparts a most delicious meat flavor to what overwise might be flat and insipid as is found in plain boiled vegetables.

There are several varieties of endive, or chicory, or succory, of which the curled are found the most numerous. The green curled is crisp and tender, but the white curled is more so, but less hardy and quite scarce. The broad leaved Batavian—called by the French "scaroll"—is much cultivated, but used principally by the French. The leaves only are used in this country for salads and relishes. In France these leaves are used in making soups, stews, etc.

In its unbleached state, endive is bitter to the taste, and it must be bleached by tying the leaves together, or by covering up with earthen pots, or storing in a dark cellar, before it is fit to use for salads.

Chicory (succory or wild endive as it is called) is a plant belonging to the dandelion family and grows wild in many portions of the United States and in most parts of Europe. The young shoots and leaves are generally used in France for salads, sauces, and the like, and the green root is said to equal parsnips, when cooked in the same way. But the root has been more largely employed for use in adultering coffee or to make a separate beverage. A choice variety known at "Whitloof" makes a most delicious winter salad and is eaten usually with French dressing the same as lettuce. Or the leaves may be prepared the same as dandelion.

These vegetables are now in season and plentiful and inexpensive. They appear in September and continue until March.

Stewed Endive.

Wash thoroughly and remove all wilted leaves; separate the leaves, drain, and blanch one minute in boiling water, and drain again, put into a stewpan, add sufficient meat broth to prevent burning, and simmer until tender. Drain and serve with hot bacon sauce, made as follows:

Heat five tablespoons of strained bacon fat in a saucepan; add two tablespoons of flour, sifted with one-fourth teaspoon of paprika and one-half teaspoon of salt, and stir until well blended. Then add gradually one-half cup of hot water mixed with one-third of vinegar, stirring constantly until smooth. Remove from the range, add the yolks of two eggs slightly beaten, and continue stirring.

If this sauce is used cold it may be thinned with thin cream. Serve with endive, spinach, dandelion, chicory, etc.

Orange, Nut, and Endive Salad.

Remove the pulp from four large oranges (grapefruit may be used in place of oranges), cut each in eighths, and divide these in halves. Marinate half the measure of English walnut meats, using the halves (if the nuts are cracked at home, with care the kernels may be removed quite whole). Chill and just before serving toss both lightly together and arrange them in nests of well bleached, feathery leaves of crisp endive. Mask with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

Olive Oil Substitutes.

Replying to numerous inquiries relative to the substitutes for olive oil, for use in making salad dressings, I have this to offer: I have made innumerable experiments with many of the oils now offered as substitutes for pure olive oil and have found that there are new "made in America" vegetable and nut oils so carefully blended that Epicurus himself would have difficulty distinguishing these oils from genuine olive oil.

The best of these oils are almost flavorless, as is virgin or sublime olive oil, and they are 100 per cent pure fat, as is pure olive oil. For making mayonnaise dressing and its derivatives, French dressing, etc., these "made in America" oils have taken precedence over many so-called "pure imported olive oils" that have constituted the bulk of edible olive oil of commerce. They are available at almost any if not all of the department stores or grocery shops at a nominal price, and they are pure and wholesome.

It is not necessary for the lovers of salads to forego the pleasure of eating daily at least one of these delectable and essential articles of food, because of a lack of "imported olive oil." Look up these oils, try them, and be sure that you serve a green salad once a day, for there will be crisp "greenery" in our markets throughout the winter.

Eggplant.

This vegetable is called "guinea squash" at the south. There are several varieties, but the Black Beauty is best known to the consumer. It is of rich purple black color, large, smooth, and glossy, and is the choicest one for table use. There is a white variety that is much smaller, about the size of a goose egg, that is grown rather for ornament than for utility.

The egg plant is a relative of the tomato family and is in season from September to February. It has a slight food value, furnishing but 130 calories per pound. It furnishes variety, however, and is valued largely for the water it contains, which is 92.9 per cent. Much of this water, which has a bitter flavor, is pressed out of the plant before preparing it for use at the table. Used in combination with other food materials, egg plant makes palatable dishes.

Stuffed Eggplant.

Cut the eggplant in halves lengthwise and cook until tender in boiling salted water. Drain thoroughly, then remove the pulp carefully to preserve the thin shells. Finely chop one small onion and cook in two tablespoons of butter or dripping until delicately colored and soft; chop the pulp of the egg plant with six fresh mushrooms or the equivalent in dried mushrooms, previously washed and soaked in cold water; add the onion and three-fourths cup of finely chopped cold meat (nut meats may be used), season well with salt and pepper and refill the shells. Cover the filling with buttered crumbs, using butter substitute for this purpose. Cook twenty minutes in a moderately hot oven. Serve with tomato sauce. This mixture may be baked in a well greased baking dish or casserole, instead of the shells.

Crumb Eggplant.

Wipe a firm eggplant of medium size, pare, cut crosswise in one-fourth inch slices, and soak overnight in cold salted water to cover. In the morning drain, let stand in cold water for half an hour, drain, and dry between towels. Sprinkle with salt and touch lightly here and there with a peeled clove of garlic. Dip in flour, egg, and fine seasoned cracker crumbs and fry in deep hot fat. These fritters may be sautéd in a small quantity of tried out salt pork fat or dripping. Drain on brown paper and serve with roast beef, veal, lamb, or pork.

Leeks.

Leeks are a species of onion which does not form a bulb. It is sometimes called "flag onion" from the large, flaglike leaves that are thrown up from its small, fine roots. Leeks are used for their mild and delicious flavor; they are a valuable vegetable of unusual merit and are not half appreciated by the American people, while they are held in high esteem as a great favorite by many of our foreign population. The whole plant may be used in soups and stews. They appear in our markets in August and can be found throughout the winter.

Buttered Leeks on Toast.

Wash and trim off the coarse, imperfect leaves and remove the roots from some young leeks. Cut them in equal lengths and tie up in small bunches; cook them in boiling salted water until tender (about twenty-five minutes). Drain and dress them with butter, pepper, and salt if necessary. Dispose them on slices of hot buttered toast. They may be served in a cream or white sauce to which add one teaspoon of finely chopped parsley. Serve with roast goose, duck, pork, or veal.

Safest Way Out.

One evening after dinner I went out to our little garage to back out our new car and the kids followed me. I started the engine, but instead of backing out as I intended I became confused by the thought that I might run over one of them and butted out the end of the garage. Our neighbors heard the crash and came running over to learn if anybody was hurt. It certainly was my most embarrassing moment when I told them how it all happened.

Making Quite a Racket.

When I was about 17 a strange family moved into the apartment directly across the hall from us. There was a nice young man about the same age as myself—their son. This son spent most of his leisure time practicing on his violin.

One evening my brother Phil was out in the hall making quite a racket while the neighbor made equally as much trying to tune his violin. I went out into the hall and said in an authoritative voice: "Phil, for heaven's sake, quit that awful racket." The boy went outdoors and the incident was forgotten.

Several weeks passed and not a note did we again hear from that violin. After our families became acquainted I asked the young violinist why he played no more. He said: "Since I made so much racket, I quit at your request."

I didn't know his name was Phil, too, but I know it now, and of course I apologized and we now have a Phil Jr. and he is being taught how to "make a racket" on the violin by Phil Sr.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING TO WIN THE WAR?

CANTEEN WORKERS IN FRANCE.

Have you ideas on food, dress, and health conservation to pass along, or ideas on money saving and money raising? This department is an exchange for the women who are helping to win the war. For every letter published "The Tribune" will pay $1. Do you need advice on questions pertaining to this important work of helping win the war. This department will advise you gladly. Write on one side of he paper. No manuscripts returned. Address letters on this subject to Antoinette Donnelley, Chicago Tribune.

A FORMER Chicago girl who went over to the Y. M. C. A., in Paris, as a stenographer and canteen worker, writes of the need of hard workers, which she defines as "ordinary persons who will take whatever kind of work is handed to them and do it as well as they can, and who are willing to work long hours, even late into the night, and be able to wear a smile no matter how tired." She says:

Many girls who have arrived over here expect to be head stenographers at least. Of course, disappointment has been certain. What we want and need is just an ordinary woman who will take whatever kind of work is handed her and will do it as well as she can and is willing to work from 8:30 to 12 and from 2 until 6 every day, with an afternoon and Sunday off.

Most of the trouble with the women is that they want to do canteen work and want to do it at the "front." That is a vague place which I sometimes wonder the location of myself. Every one seems to want to "go to the front." I have wondered if there was really any one up there, wherever it is, because so many seem to be longing to go.

Office help has been so needed that every one who could possibly be used has been required to remain in Paris, and that did not suit many of them. I was one of the latter. I remained two and a half months, and one day things opened up so that I could get out, which I made haste to do, thinking I was about to attain the realization of my dreams, and I went out to a camp near Paris, which was just opening a new canteen, the "Y" having built a new hut there. I have just returned, after three weeks, and I am now of the opinion that office work in France is not to be sniffed at at all and that Paris is quite satisfactory.

What with supplies being short just now in the "Y" and not much of anything to work with; with it pouring rain most of the day and night, the roof leaking in almost every part, mud all over the floors so that the boys whose duty it was to clean out had literally to take a shovel every morning and go at it; with from 800 to 1,000 men expecting hot chocolate from 9 in the morning to 10 at night; with one caterers' boiler in which to make the chocolate, having also to heat water therein to wash the cups and then make the chocolate, remove it, and reheat water to wash the cups, having only 350 of them, which meant washing all of them at least three times a day; standing on my feet from 8 in the morning till 10 at night; no heat in the hut at all except that over which we boiled the water; having to be bright and cheerful and smiling all the day and evening every day, and Sundays twice as much so—well, I am glad to be back where I have regular hours, where I do not have to work so frightfully hard.

Sunday in a canteen is the hardest time, for there is more to be done in less time—more men around—and it kept us flying.

We had entertainments on about two nights a week—the entertainers to be met and, of course, made comfortable—and on other nights a movie. I enjoyed it all and am glad to have had the experience, but I shall not make any wild endeavor to get out again unless it be to the forward area somewhere, as, of course, that is the aim and ambition of us all.

There is a great demand for stenographers in the field now, too, and I suppose many of those coming over now will be sent out, although we are still in need of many here at headquarters, and the need will, of course, increase all the time. We have news that there are 2,300 arriving in England today, so that will help us considerably. Of course, many of them will stay in England, but the majority will come to France, and we shall probably be more nearly staffed than we have been for so long. Nearly all the women coming through the last three months have been entertainers or canteeners—about a dozen, in all, for office work.

Here in town we have our evening to do what we wish, and we remain chattering about the house, or we go to the theaters—there are many of them, the best an English theater with a good stock company, changing the bill once a week—and on Tuesdays and Saturdays we dance at the Canadian Y. M. C. A., or on Saturday at an aviation camp, where they send in for us in trucks—officers only.

You will want exactly the same clothes here that you would wear at home, excepting any extreme evening dress. You will want little semi-dress things to wear at the house and to dance in, and shoes—bring about twenty pairs, as French shoes are simply impossible, and you just walk and walk miles and miles here—never take a car anywhere—and as the streets are all uneven stone and cobble, shoes just simply fade away. Silk hose is high, so you will need lots of them and rubber goods and warm things of all sorts. There is a dampness in the air that is penetrating, and I imagine heat will be scarce. Those of us who have furs with us are using them and glad we have them. Gloves and underwear are quite the same price here, and also toilet articles.

Keeping a Pledge.

Before school closed we pledged 25 cents to the Red Cross each month, so to earn that we run errands for our neighbors, tend babies, and do anything to earn a few pennies. My sister is 9 years old and I am 11. Our uncle is in France and we want to help him and his comrades all we can to win this war.

Real Love Stories

HER HOME TOWN BEAU.

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake "The Tribune," Chicago.

UNTIL yesterday I had always regarded myself as a woman with a secret sorrow. I had always had that pleasant feeling that there was one angle to my heart that no one would ever believe. I felt that I was being gnawed by a romantic, unsuspected viper in the form of unrequited love.

Many years ago necessity, curiosity, and other evils of youth brought me from my small home town to the city. I came with the customary advice, tears, and admonitions. I left behind a youthful lover, to whom I was devoted. He was engaged in the eternal procedure of working hard to secure a raise, and I was merely to try my wings, think of him constantly, and fly to his enduring embrace the minute he managed to wheedle an extra $15 on his pay check.

I applied myself vigorously to my end of the bargain. I worked, I thought of home, and I cried in my handkerchief whenever I thought I wouldn't be caught at it. And right while I was working the hardest and thinking the oftenest, my home town paper came out with the bitter blow. Amid the usual orange blossoms and with the customary strains of Mendelssohn my home town beau had given himself in marriage to the daughter of the First National bank.

It was a nasty stab. Youth is so beautifully hopeful, so radiantly confident, that it seems wrong that it should ever be denied anything, even the things that are bad for its digestion.

"There will never be any one else," I assured myself pathetically. "I will work harder, and learn more, and never, never, never forget how lovely and wonderful he is!"

All of which was quite true. I did work hard, and I learned more and advanced farther than I had ever dreamed possible. And I never did forget how delightful I thought he was. My thoughts of him kept me from paying the slightest attention to any of the pseudo-romance that falls to the lot of every girl. My rosy memories established a nice balance with my hard work and provided me a perfectly natural, satisfactory life, and I went ahead in my calling by leaps and bounds. And I always regarded myself as a heroic creature making the most of a broken life, a wrecked future, a shattered ideal.

But yesterday I saw them both. Miss First National Bank has made my youthful lover into a crabbed, suspicious man with a queer quirk to the northeast corner of his mouth and a tendency to talk about payments. And my youthful lover has made her into a scared white rabbit who clears her throat nervously before she dares to ask him a simple question. And I—O, dear good fortune, how really and wonderfully kind he was to jilt me! I am a person free and untrammeled, with responsibilities and duties that interest me, and friends who amuse me, and toil that delights me!

Fate is no fickle jade—she is the best little traffic cop that ever steered a simple girl across a crowded intersection.

Mother, Your Child needs a Harmless Laxative.

If Tongue is Coated, Stomach Sick, or the Child is Cross, Feverish, Constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if the tongue is coated; this is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with bile and imperfectly digested food.

When listless, pale, feverish, with tainted breath, a cold, or a sore throat; if the child does not eat, sleep or act naturally, or has stomach-ache, indigestion or diarrhea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the waste matter, bile and fermenting food will pass out of the bowels, and you have a healthy, playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" sweet and wholesome.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of genuine "California Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," made by the California Fig Syrup Co., which has directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle.—Advertisement.

Determined.

> Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped, addressed envelope.

If you were born during the week beginning today you are a protégé of Scorpio, a fixed nocturnal southern sign that gives to you a moody, commanding nature in which determination is the strongest factor. You are fiery and persistent, but you often get strangely cheated and taken advantage of.

You are great at planning and scheming, but not always successful. You are impulsive, energetic, independent, extreme, and still, at times, the most sad and disheartened being in the world.

You have one strong characteristic which is common to Scorpio people and that is you are a deep and fearless investigator in the realms of occultism. You plunge into the labyrinth of mystery with absolute fearlessness, but you scare your friends sometimes. In fact, be you doctor, chemist, or theologian (and Scorpio can be this later you do not waste any time or effort in surface exploration. In your laboratory work you are going to find out all about the composition and nature of the substance in your hand, even if you get blown up. If a physician you look beyond physical symptoms in your diagnosis. If a theologian you dig deeply into first principles and question conceptions and formulations of faith in a daring way, such as frightens your fellow parsons but doesn't you.

You are not so hopeful so, enthusiastic as some others of your sign. If you meet with defeat you grow sad and get inside of yourself, hide yourself, like the scorpion, under a stone, and throw your sting if any one moves it. Kindness excites your gratitude, but you get little of it, as a rule, from others, and none from yourself.

Come out into the sunshine. Be more hopeful. If your efforts for the good of others do not meet with appreciation, don't relax them; pursue your course and wait.

You have musical ability, but with more of dash and weirdness than method. You despise technique. You get there in your own way, and according to your own ideas, or stay away. You are often misunderstood and often receive criticism and blame wrongfully.

You are secretive and not apt to pour out your soul to every one. But when one has won your confidence, and, what is far more with you, your love, he is apt to wonder at what lies underneath.

The most congenial companionship will probably be found with those born in Pisces, Feb. 20-March 21, and in Scorpio, Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Taurus, April 21-May 21, might also prove a congenial companion for you, and a union with Capricornus, Dec. 23-Jan. 2, is likely to be a happy one.

Your success in life would be greatest as an orator, chemist, surgeon, lawyer, clergyman, musician, or jurist.

The flower of this month is the scarlet carnation that seems to shout defiance to the approach of winter. Your colors are scarlet, golden brown, and black. The topaz is your birthstone. January and July should prove the most fortunate months for the advancement of all Scorpio interests, and Tuesday is the day of all days and most fortunate for you.

Just as They Are.

My most embarrassing moment happened one day when I went into a new grocery store to buy some strawberries which I saw on a shelf in the window. I picked up a box, and the box tipped and several of the berries fell on the shelf. These I picked up and put in the box and walked over to the clerk and asked the price of the berries, to which he replied, "Thirty cents a box just as they are." I told him I didn't understand what he meant by that, and he said that they did not allow people to take berries out of the other boxes to fill up theirs, whereupon I explained, and I also told him that I had always prided myself on not being "little," or picking up anything in a store, and that he could keep the berries and count them to see if there were more in that box than in the others, and I walked out. C. R.

He Sat in Her Lap.

My girl friend and I were coming home from work on the street car. We both had been standing quite a while, when a young woman whose seat was next to the window arose and left the car. A man who had been seated next to her arose to let my friend sit next to the window, as I suppose he intended to get off shortly. Thinking that he had given me his seat, I sat down next to her. The man must have been thinking of something else and did not see me, therefore sat down on my lap. The car was immediately filled with giggles, and I couldn't wait until I had reached my destination. L. F. M.

ETIQUETTE

By ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

> Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply, inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

OUR WAYS OF SPEECH.

Among the numerous expressions which so many of us pick up in childhood and often find difficult to lose upon attaining maturer years there are several particularly obnoxious to well trained ears.

Of these the all too prevalent substitutes for "yes" and "no," such as "yeah," "nope," "naw," "umhuh," and "unhunh" (such atrocities are almost as impossible to spell as they are unpleasant to hear), take the foremost place. A courteous "Yes, sir," in the case of employés or servants, and "No, Mr. Brown," to a friend or acquaintance is correct, and shows a knowledge of and interest in the ordinary civilities of life.

Next come those unnecessary injunctions, so common in everyday speech, in introducing sentences or conversations, particularly those of the telephone: "Lookit!" "Say," "Listen," and the unfortunate combination of the two latter ones. This use, or rather abuse, is really only a habit; one which ought to be overcome, and is by the true lover of his mother tongue.

And so it is with others as well as as these. No one can spare time in these busy days to become his brother's keeper; each one of us must look vigilantly to his own mistakes and their correction.

D. E. B.: Short gloves are considered smart with a tailored suit or long sleeved serge dress; dark ones for shopping; white or light ones for teas and matinées.

H. S. A.: It is the duty of the best man to keep the ring until the proper moment in the ceremony, when he takes it out and gives it to the bridegroom. He also orders the minister's conveyance to and from the church, the expense of which falls to the bridegroom.

* *

S. L. R.: The correct way to acknowledge an introduction is to smile, bow slightly, and say, "How do you do, Mrs. Smith?" or simply mention the name, as, "Mrs. Smith." "I am glad to meet you" and "Pleased to meet you" are provincial expressions, and as such are avoided by careful people.

Watch the Tongue of your Young!
Your little Pets need Cascarets

Children think Cascarets just dandy,
They are safe and mild cathartic candy.
Sell for a dime—"work" every time.

MOTHERS! Clean the clogged-up places. Do away with the bile, sour fermentations and constipation poison which is keeping your little one cross, feverish and sick. Children love Cascarets, because to them it is like eating candy. Cascarets act better than castor oil, calomel or pills on the tender stomach, liver and bowels. Cascarets never gripe, never injure, and do not disappoint the worried mother. Give harmless Cascarets to children one year old and upwards. Each ten cent box contains full directions.

CRANBERRIES
—Many Ways —Always

Cranberries can be used for a greater variety of purposes than any other fruit, except apples. Cranberry sauce gives just the right relish for poultry, game, and beef and is good to serve with other meats. It is a delicious relish whether the meat be fresh or corned, roasted, boiled or broiled. Always keep Cranberry Sauce on hand. As a filler for pies and tarts cranberries are delicious, attractive and economical. A variety of pies can be made by different methods of preparing the berries. As a sauce, a jelly, or a butter—cranberries make a delicious spread for bread, toast or cake. Cranberries are so moderate in price, require so little labor to prepare and to cook, and can be used in so many ways that this distinctive American fruit supplies the means to provide attractive, delicious dishes from inexpensive ingredients. The following sugar-saving recipes show how. Use them frequently.

Cranberry Sauce

No. 1—One quart cranberries, 1 pint water, ½ level teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar.

Bring the water and salt together to a boiling point. Pick over and wash the cranberries, put them into the pint of boiling water and cook rapidly for 5 minutes, or until the skins of the berries have broken. Cool slightly, add the sugar, bring to boiling point, and cook slowly for additional five minutes.

No. 2—One quart cranberries, 1 pint boiling water, ¾ of a cup of syrup, ¾ of a cup of sugar.

Boil the syrup, sugar and water for 5 minutes, skim if necessary. Add the berries, and cook without stirring until all the skins break—or about 5 minutes over a hot fire.

No. 3—Two cups cranberries, 1 cup water, a pinch of salt, ¾ of a cup of sugar.

Boil cranberries with water and salt until soft. When nearly cool stir in sugar. Enough to serve six persons.

Strained Cranberry Sauce

One quart cranberries, 1 pint water, ½ level teaspoon salt, ¾ cup sugar.

Bring the water and salt together to boiling point, add the cranberries and cook rapidly for 5 minutes. Cool and strain, pressing as much as possible of the cranberry pulp through the strainer. Add the sugar, bring to boiling point and cook slowly for additional five minutes.

Cranberry Butter

Three pints cranberries, ½ cup water, 2 cups sugar (or 1 cup of sugar and 1 cup of syrup).

Cook the cranberries and water until the skins of the fruit are broken; then press through a sieve, and cook this pulp until it becomes quite thick; add the sugar (and syrup if you use it), and cook for ½ hour over a very gentle fire, stirring constantly. When slightly cool turn into jars, and cover closely.

This makes a delicious and healthful spread on hot biscuits, bread, buttered toast, or cake.

Cranberry Pie

Have ready a partly baked pastry shell; pour in filling when cold, made by any of the four cranberry sauce recipes; put strips of pastry over top and finish baking in a moderate oven.

Old Fashioned Cranberry Pie

Line a pie plate with short pastry. Sprinkle over this a little sugar, then fill with raw cranberries. Pour over them molasses, in proportion of ½ cup molasses to each cup cranberries, and sift over top 2 level tablespoons flour. Wet edges of pie crust; cover cranberries with an upper crust and press edges closely together. Cut three slits in top and bake in moderate oven about 30 minutes.

Cranberry Jelly

Cook until soft the desired quantity of cranberries with 1¼ pints of water for each 2 quarts of berries. Strain the juice through a jelly bag.

Measure the juice and heat it to the boiling point. Add one cup of sugar for every two cups of juice; stir until the sugar is dissolved; boil briskly for five minutes; skim, and pour into glass tumblers or porcelain or crockery molds.

"Eatmor" Pot Roast

Cranberries cooked with pot roast and the cheaper cuts of boiled meats, make the meat exceedingly tender and delicious. To prepare a 3 lb. pot roast: brown the meat in 3 tablespoons of hot fat; when the surface is brown remove the meat from the pan and add 3 cups of water; stir until boiling; add 2 cups of cranberries; replace the meat in the pan with the gravy and cranberries, and proceed to cook in the ordinary way, adding flour, to thicken, also salt and pepper, to taste, when cooking is about half finished.

Cook cranberries in porcelain lined, enameled or aluminum vessels only.

Hair On Face
DeMiracle

Ordinary hair growths on face, neck and arms soon become coarse and bristly when merely removed from the surface of the skin. The only common-sense way to remove objectionable hair is to attack it under the skin. DeMiracle, the original sanitary liquid, does this by absorption.

Only genuine DeMiracle has a money-back guarantee in each package. At toilet counters in 60c, $1 and $2 sizes, or by mail from us in plain wrapper on receipt of price.

FREE book with testimonials of highest authorities, explains what causes hair, why it increases and how DeMiracle devitalizes it, mailed in plain sealed envelope on request. DeMiracle, Park Ave. and 129th St., New York.

40 YEARS OLD ----? OR 40 YEARS YOUNG asks Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Or, what is your beauty ill? Write it in to me. I have a tonic, a diet, an exercise, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, Chicago Tribune.

"IT isn't being 40 but looking it!" exclaimed the head of a big manufacturing concern where many women are employed when he was approached on the subject of the woman of 40 being an unpopular applicant at his employment bureau.

"More than 33 per cent of my women employés are of that age or near it, and I find them when they are competent more reliable and competent than many of the younger women. But the rule is the same with women as with men of 40. If they give themselves a run to seed look no employer wants them. But for that matter he doesn't want younger people with the same look.

"As a matter of fact," he concluded, "gray hair has nothing whatever to do with it. If a woman is quick and smart in her actions and looks and dress her chance is equal with that of her younger rivals. But of course that means she has to keep herself in extra good physical trim or she just isn't there!"

This question of the woman of 40 and her chances as an employé came out of the advice given by a head of a vocational desk in a federal employment bureau, who frankly suggested the dyeing of hair if a woman were gray haired and wanted a job.

She also advised that women getting on in years were apt to be garrulous. And employers give that as a reason along with the gray hairs for their wanting the younger women as employés.

Now, all one has to do is to look around to see the absolute folly of any woman of 40 being terrified over the possibilities of her days of usefulness being over. There are hundreds and thousands of women disproving the ridiculous theory. In every branch of work there are shining examples of the usefulness of the woman of 40. And the beauty of her, too, we may add.

But there is this fact which must not be overlooked: It is that care of the physical being in greater proportion is exacted in each year over the 30 mark! And the further fact that the successful women of 40 are the women who realize this early!

Thirty is the milestone which marks the road to a successful and beautiful 40.

If fatness is a tendency its indications are threatening enough at 30 to induce immediate reform to the woman who is going to be young at 40.

Fat makes women look their ages more than anything else! It has aging propensities on the girl in her early twenties even.

So, why be fat?

Caution in diet, as is preached continually in medical columns and beauty columns and magazine columns and so on and within the reach of the poorest of us, is the important clew for the woman looking for the appearances of youth. And exercise, daily, consistent and systematic!

There is a psychology about the consistent, daily care of the body which reacts directly on the mental state. Naturally with exercise you send good blood circulating through your body and the activity and development of the brain cells depends upon this healthy circulation. You just can't be physically trim without your brain sharing the joy of it all. And an active, healthy mental state leads on to one thing only, and that is success. If your diet is regulated your mind is infinitely more capable of activity than if you give it the blood from a clogged up heavy body to feed upon. Again, if you establish the habit of personal hygiene you will just naturally fall into the habit of greater pride in your clothes and altogether before you know it you will be looking and feeling years younger.

Every woman who wants to be young at 40 ought to give fifteen minutes religiously morning and night to exercise, the body bending exercise I recommend particularly, for that keeps the waist and back supple, and if you keep your waist and back supple you can't look middle aged. It's a simple brand of exercise and you know it, undoubtedly. Beginning with your hands raised above your head, inhaling a deep breath of fresh air as you raise them, bend the body at the waist, keeping knees straight, and touch the floor with the tips of your fingers. If you can't do this exercise you may be sure you're on the road to a stolid middle age instead of a youthful one.

There are a fund of other exercises to draw from for this daily rejuvenator, a couple of which follow and which I have chosen because they seem best to meet the demand of the youth seeking person of feminine gender.

Leg Raising Exercise.—Reduces thighs, abdomen, ankles, and waist. Stretched flat on the floor, with crown of head and heels resting on the floor, knees stiff and toes stretched to utmost point, slowly raise both legs as high as possible, then let them come back to the floor slowly while you count eight, always keeping knees stiff and toes stretched. Begin with five times. Rest a few minutes and do five times again. Then gradually increase the number of times daily.

Side Body Bending Exercise.—Reduces waist, side, bust, and the fat under the arms. Stand erect with knees stiffened and arms raised high over head. By bending the body at the waist only try to touch tips of your fingers to the floor on the opposite side to the hand you use. Alternate with the other hand. Begin with five times each and increase to fifty or seventy-five.

Squatting Exercise.—Reduces abdomen, thighs, calves, and ankles. Stand erect, with feet apart, hands resting on hips. Rise upon the toes, then sink the body to the floor, bending the knees sharply until the thighs and legs are doubled upon each other and the weight of the entire body is supported by the toes. The trunk must be maintained perfectly erect throughout the movement. Return to original position. Repeat five times to start with, gradually increasing to thirty or forty.

Deep Breathing Exercise.—With hands at sides and body erect begin to inhale a long, deep breath, slowly raising both hands as you inhale. Raise hands out and up as high as you can. Then lower them back to original position, slowly exhaling as you lower them. Repeat ten times at first, increasing gradually to 100 times.

These exercises develop as well as reduce.

Now, there are a few habits of mind that make people old long before their time. Garrulity, to be sure is the sin of the age ridden; reminiscing over back stretches of years not only makes others think you belong to a past era but, dwelling back there, you appreciate yourself much more forcibly that you "are getting on."

Living today and extracting all the good wholesome fun you can and accumulating all the worth while knowledge you can and keeping yourself everlastingly interested in the current topics will knock out the unwelcome birthdays with a pretty good batting average.

Now, there is such a thing as trying to be too young and kittenish for 40, which is as great a mistake on the other side. For instance, woman will dye gray hair a henna red, thinking to have drowned at least ten years in that particular dye pot. Which it doesn't do at all. The faces of these women invariably would be years younger looking were the hair left gray instead.

I am not in favor of dyeing gray hair at all. It can be done, however, by expert dyers using the henna dyes, which come in every shade, with some success, but in order that it be successful the operation must be repeated frequently, and it is costly in the upkeep.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be only too happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.
When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to "The Tribune," but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

To Finish a Quilt.

"Am a shutin and have pieced a beautiful silk quilt for the Red Cross and wish to piece more, but lack the material to do so. Would be so pleased if some of the readers would kindly send me silk and satin scraps, as I could do so much with them. W. B."

Won't you please help to finish the quilt for the Red Cross by sending all your silk and satin pieces to Mrs. W. B.? Write for her address, inclosing stamp.

Nothing Left for Toys.

"Has any one some toys they could spare? It seems as though nothing but sickness has been our luck this year; a new baby just coming added to our already large doctor's bill and debt. After the children get necessities there is nothing left for toys.
"G. B. B."

I hope this letter will attract the attention of children who are overstocked with toys and have some they would be glad to share.

Old Music to Donate.

"I have quite a collection of old music, which I would be glad to give to any one who would care for it. It includes several books of exercises and piano pieces from first to fourth grade. If any one cares to send postage, I will gladly forward the music.
"M. C. W."

Here is an alluring offer for some music beginner.

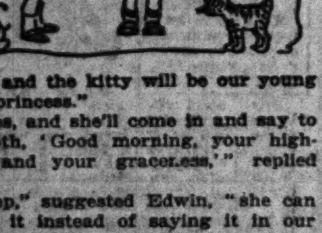
Bright Sayings of Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 in thrift stamps for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunt Bee, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

Edwin and May were playing in the corner with the kitten.

"Let's play we are kings and queens. I'll be the queen and you must say to me when I sit on my frone, 'Good morning, your highness,' and I'll say, 'Good morning, your grace.'"

"All right," acquiesced Edwin, adding, "and the kitty will be our young lady princess."



"Yes, and she'll come in and say to us both, 'Good morning, your highness and your graceness,'" replied May.

"Yep," suggested Edwin, "she can meow it instead of saying it in our language because she uses dif'rent languages." F. J.

My small daughter is studying at the Art institute, where she spends every Saturday morning. When she comes home for lunch she is always famished. The other day I said to her: "Peggy, I don't see how on earth you can eat so much!"

She answered: "I'd better eat all I can when I'm a little artist, for when I'm a big artist I'll have to live in a garret and eat rats." M. E.

A little friend of mine is quite a mischievous little boy, and after a day of play with the boys of the neighborhood his conduct is not always everything his mother could wish. But he is quite a lovable little chap, too, and was one day showing his affection for his mother in true boy fashion, with hugs and kisses. His father looked on approvingly and said: "That is good, son. That is the way I like to see my boy. Can't you always play nicely and be good?" The answer voiced the feeling of Young America: "Sure, I can, but I'd have to play by myself." M. I. S.

Camp Stories Contest.

Your son, your brother, your husband, or your sweetheart in the service undoubtedly has told you some amusing incident that has occurred in his camp. Undoubtedly, too, there are ever so many stories originating in camp that are still untold. This contest is especially open to the soldier himself if he has a good camp story to tell. It is open also to every one who has been told a good camp story of actual happening. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Camp Stories Editor, Chicago Tribune.

Up to Him.

Two colored soldiers were talking at Camp Dodge one day. One man said, "I think Uncle Sam will have a hard time making a soldier out of me; some way, I don't want to fight."

"Well," returned the other, "he can drill you, take you across to France, put you in the trenches, can't he?"

"Yas, I reckon so," admitted the unwilling recruit.

"Well, when you go up out of the trenches, cross No Man's land, and come face to face with the enemy, maybe then he will jest naturally let you use your own judgment." M. R.

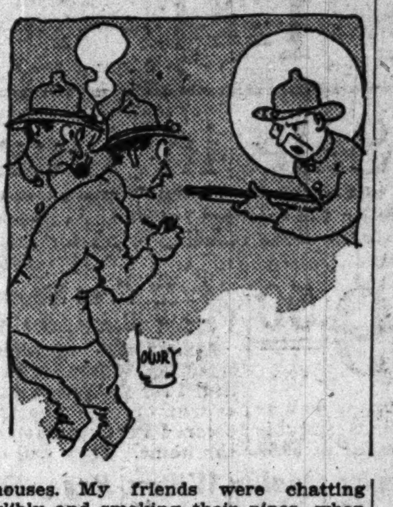
On the Safe Side.

An officer at Camp Taliaferro asked a private: "Let it be supposed that you are a captain in command of infantry; in your rear is an impassable abyss, on both sides of you there rise perpendicular rocks of tremendous height, in front of you lies the enemy, outnumbering you ten to one. What in such an emergency would you do?"

"I think, sir," said the private, "I would resign." E. J.

Go Up in Smoke, Perhaps.

One warm moonlight night a couple of friends and myself decided to take a walk around the camp. After walking quite a little while we gradually came near the little galvanized tin powder houses. My friends were chatting glibly and smoking their pipes, when suddenly we were commanded to halt by a rooky guard on patrol duty. We heard the click of the lock on the rifle and stood stock still. The next thing out of somewhere in the darkness of the night there came the command, "If you fellows want to smoke you will have to put your pipes out." E. B.



"A teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin each night at bedtime has done me a world of good, as I am 62 years old and was getting badly constipated. I had previously taken a lot of salts and pills without real relief." (From a letter to Dr. Caldwell written by Mr. A. Forester, Princess Anne, Md.)

Constipation is one of the penalties of age that should never be neglected—Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that relieves constipation in an easy, natural manner, without griping or strain, and is as positive in its effect as it is mild and gentle in its action.

A Beautiful, Comfortable Home

Is a Permanent Investment That Increases in Value from Year to Year as We Associate Our Happiness with It

How often have we happily thought of our childhood home. How often have we associated an incident of our youth with some particular piece of furniture. Possibly it is the large, comfy chair beside the open hearth into which we crawl, or perhaps it is the floral design carpet in the parlor, or the dining room table at Thanksgiving.

Whether our home was simple or elaborate in its furnishings, we fill with pride at the thought of it.

And we feel the same pride in our present home, we want it to be attractive—comfortable.

Go to any of the Spiegel stores and inspect their displays of real home-furnishings. The assortments are so large it is easy to find the needed pieces.

Then investigate the extended account system which makes it possible to extend the paying of a purchase over any time which might be convenient.

Women's and misses' winter coats at 49.50

Fur collared coats of rich silvertones, velour or pom pom cloths, in fashionable tones; the large collar of sealine nutria or natural raccoon. Also, coats without furs. All richly lined.

32 styles of misses' coats
—late winter models, including the four pictured below.

Coats for practically every type—for every occasion—at prices in every instance much below regular in many instances not to be duplicated later in the season.

Women's and misses' winter coats at 59.50

New, ultra smart, loose back, semi belted and full belted models, introducing novel pockets and collars of French seal (dyed coney); also models with large collar of natural raccoon or blended opossum. Plain or fancy silk lined and warmly interlined. Two models pictured. Fourth floor.

Women's and misses' winter coats at $75

Distinctively styled coats of rich bolivia, soft wool velour, silvertones and duvet de laine; newest colors. Also Yukon plushes in black or beaver shades. Many with high collar and cuffs of fashionable furs, and lined with peau de cygne or pussy willow silk. See the illustration.

40 new styles of women's coats are included in the annual sale. Four spirited models are sketched at the left; the other thirty-six are quite as distinctive.

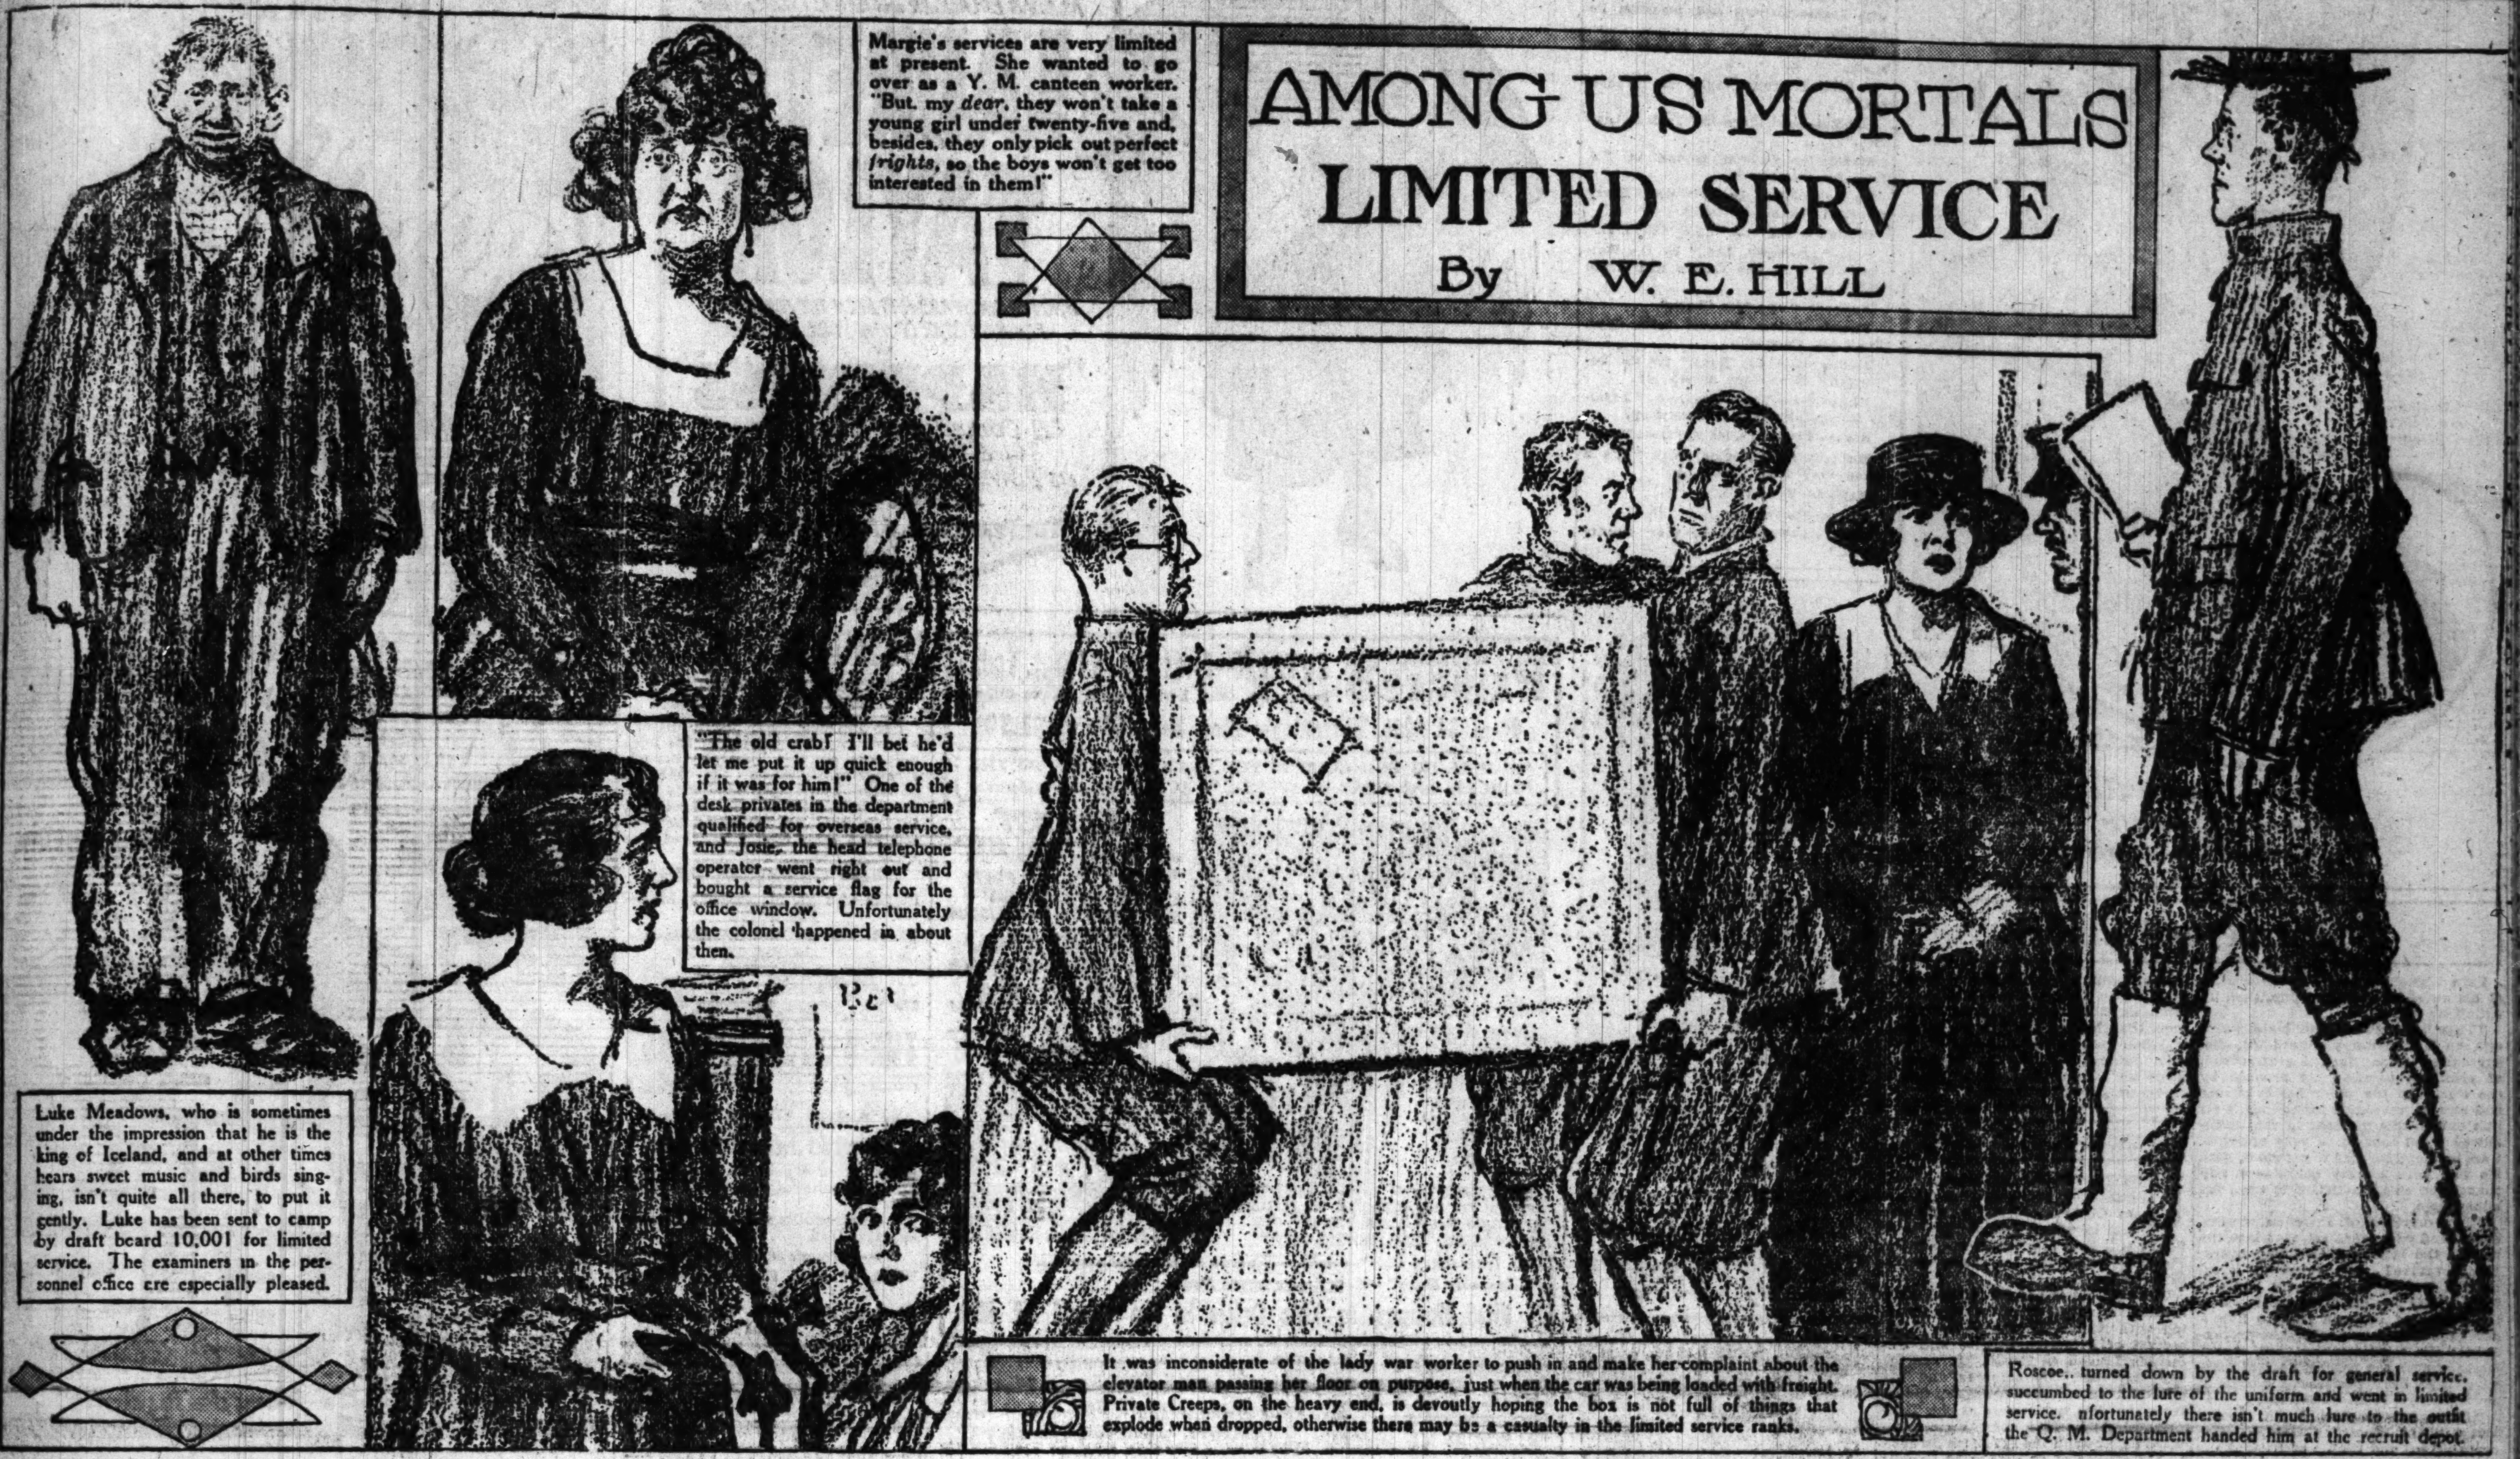
AMONG US MORTALS
LIMITED SERVICE
By W. E. HILL



Margie's services are very limited at present. She wanted to go over as a Y. M. canteen worker. "But, my dear, they won't take a young girl under twenty-five and, besides, they only pick out perfect frights, so the boys won't get too interested in them!"

"The old crab! I'll bet he'd let me put it up quick enough if it was for him!" One of the desk privates in the department qualified for overseas service, and Josie, the head telephone operator went right out and bought a service flag for the office window. Unfortunately the colonel happened in about then.

Luke Meadows, who is sometimes under the impression that he is the king of Iceland, and at other times hears sweet music and birds singing, isn't quite all there, to put it gently. Luke has been sent to camp by draft board 10,001 for limited service. The examiners in the personnel office are especially pleased.

It was inconsiderate of the lady war worker to push in and make her complaint about the elevator man passing her floor on purpose, just when the car was being loaded with freight. Private Creeps, on the heavy end, is devoutly hoping the box is not full of things that explode when dropped, otherwise there may be a casualty in the limited service ranks.

Roscoe, turned down by the draft for general service, succumbed to the lure of the uniform and went in limited service. nfortunately there isn't much lure to the outfit the Q. M. Department handed him at the recruit depot.

News and Comment of the Drama

By Percy Hammond.

NOW that the sanctuaries of the drama are aglow again and the players, made vagabond and frustrate by hostile circumstance, have come back, shall we set up three hearty cheers?

Has their absence made our hearts grow fonder, did we pine for their return? Did we miss the routine romance, the calculated wheeze, the egregious smile, the jazbo ballad, and the alleged punch in the third act or thereabouts? Did we yearn for traffic with the broker, or the affable negative from the box office when we asked for seats, fourth row on the aisle and near an exit?

We shall see this week what figure the beaded eyelash, the rouged physiognomy, and the extravagant deportment of the drama cut in our life. One friend tells me that the theater has lost its urge for him, since during the influenza he has found H. G. Wells, through "Joan and Peter," and he doesn't care, now, what the Hattons may be presenting at the Cort. Another acquaintance confides that he has missed the drama so much that he will kiss the next trained seal he sees at the Palace Music hall. Between the two extremes, the old boat will manage a profitable cargo, no doubt, and by the time Al Jolson takes the wheel there will be summer seas and trade winds.

MISS LAURETTE TAYLOR'S personality is penetrating and insidious. Although her appearances in Chicago have been minor heretofore, I suspect that she is to Chicagoans the major figure of the stage. She is a heroine of the small talk at the bridge and tea tables of the middle west, just as much as she is in eastern towns. I recall her initial exhibition in Chicago. It was in a spectacle called "The Great John Ganton," and Miss Taylor symbolized its general uncouthness by wearing the tennis shoes of the second act in the ballroom scene of the third. Mr. Ashton Stevens gave omen of her later celebrity by saying of her that she was "mildly forgettable." He had seen her in Spokane (or Seattle) for 20 cents on a midweek afternoon, and could not adjust her to the imposing environment of our union loop.

Encouraged by this critic's judgment, Miss Taylor came later as a star in "The Girl in Waiting," a [illegible] composition, though written by her brilliant husband, and she failed. She was liked by the few who saw "Alias Jimmy Valentine," and she made considerable of a deserved hit in a summer show called "Seven Sisters." Soon afterward she married an educated though expedient playwright, Mr. Manners, and since then she has been as important in the life of the New York City visitor as Grant's tomb or Reisenweber's. She is playing "Happiness" at Powers' because she gave her good play "Out There" to the Red Cross. I know nothing about "Happiness," but I'll gamble that "Out There" would get more money and do more good at this eccentric juncture than all or any of Mr. Manners' other conscientious opera.

LIFE'S whereabouts as we find them reflected at present in the theaters of Chicago:

"The Crowded Hour"—New York and France.

"Flo-Flo"—New York.

"Rock-a-Bye Baby"—New York.

"A Tailor Made Man"—New York.

"Happiness"—New York.

"Lombardi Ltd."—New York.

"A Cure for Curables"—New York.

"The Little Brother"—New York.

"Oh, Look!"—New York.

Does the drama not know that wronged men and weak women, faithfulness and adultery, virtue and naughtiness, valor and cowardice, song and dance, exist in Denver and Des Moines, as well and less conventionally than they do in Manhattan? I should like some time to take Channing Pollock or Augustus Thomas, New York authors, to Crown Point, Ind., upon a busy day, to show them the passion of the midwest gnaws and is as much gratified by the sanction of the law as it is in the East.

All of us Great Lakes critics have been rather awed by Mr. Selwyn and Mr. Pollock's title of their good play, "The Crowded Hour." How learned, we said, of them to know those appropriate words of Sir Walter Scott—

Sound, sound the Clarion, fill the fife,
To all the sensual world proclaim,
One Crowded Hour of Glorious life
Is worth an age without a name.

After Mr. Pollock and Mr. Selwyn had finished their drama they set about to find a title. "The Call," said Mr. Selwyn. "Reveille," said Mr. Pollock. "The Question," suggested Mr. Selwyn. "The Answer," answered Mr. Pollock, and then Mr. Selwyn said that he thought "The Clarion" would be a great caption. "The Clarion," Mr. Pollock retorted, is the name of a country newspaper, and Mr. Selwyn said let us go to the Century dictionary to learn what "Clarion" means.

So in seeking "Clarion" they found the perfect title for their drama, "The Crowded Hour." And, as Mr. Pollock says, there are a thousand other names just as good in Funk and Wagnalls or the Britannica as "The Crowded Hour."

The following is taken from a writer's comment on Elsie Janis, appearing in the London Daily Mirror:

"Miss Elsie Janis made a sly confession to me the other day. The conversation turned on ambitions. 'I do not need any great ambition,' she said, 'because my dear mother has always had enough for us both.'"

News and Comment of the Theaters

Robert Downing's revival of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" in New York is a great hit at the Fourteenth Street theater. Souvenirs the other night were miniature beer mugs.

Sam Sothern, last here in "A pair of Silk Stockings," has come from London to act with William Gillette in Barrie's "Dear Brutus." He "created" the rôle of Mr. Purdie in London.

"The Big Chance," played in New York by Miss Mary Nash, John Mason, and others, bears a similarity to Mr. Pollock's "The Crowded Hour." It introduces a group of moral derelicts—idlers and wasters of the Tenderloin—and shows how a sense of the immensity and the momentousness of the world conflict gradually creeps upon them, compels their interest, and enlists them in its service. The final act is in a regimental dugout with a raid in progress and the noise of battle in the distance.

The California Loyal league complains of Miss Geraldine Farrar's memoirs, "The Story of an American Singer," that they are pro-German in some of their contents. Particular objection is made to Miss Farrar's references to the emperor and the crown prince.

Miss Farrar and Mr. Tellegen, her husband, plan to sue one of the theatrical newspapers for $500,000 because it printed an article saying that he had left her and gone to the Lambs' club to live.

Miss Irene Bordoni, professing a passionate attachment for the United States, says in an interview that she will live here henceforth. "But," she adds, "I shall go back to Paris for my gowns."

Mr. Kaufman in today's New York Times says that:

Now that "The Big Chance" has succeeded beyond the perumba of a doubt, it is no longer an impropriety to reveal the identity of Grant Morris, the original author of the play. Morris is none other than Stuart Olivier, who, under the name of Stuart Fox, wrote and produced a play called "Backfire" a couple of seasons ago. The piece was, perhaps, the most celebrated failure of the season, but Mr. Olivier continued it here, losing $75,000 as a result. In addition to being a playwright, it should be explained, Olivier is the owner of the Baltimore Evening News.

It is no particular secret that "The Big Chance" has been thoroughly renovated by Willard Mack since it left the hands of Olivier. Its vicissitudes during the formative period were endless. The final act, for example, was written some six different ways and when the piece was played in Philadelphia was so far from what the program seemed to call for that an announcement had to be made from the stage that the program was in error. In [illegible] the play was a flat failure with both press and public.

At the dress rehearsal here last Sunday night Cyril Keightley, playing the principal male rôle, developed a temperamental streak and left the company. The name of the character was promptly changed from Bertie to Larry, and Mack, with two rehearsals, played the rôle Monday night, incidentally scoring the success of his histrionic career. Early in the week William J. Kelly, celebrated for the speed with which he can "get up in" a part, was engaged, and it is apparently the managerial intention to relieve Mack of the necessity of acting as soon as possible.

Jane Cowl, when "Information, Please!" has had its run, will not depart from New York, but will continue at the Selwyn theater in another play. The rumor is that this other play will be "The Crowded Hour," which Chicago is now finding greatly to its liking, but the success scored in that piece by Willette Kershaw sheds some doubt upon the rumor. It may be that Miss Cowl will play it in New York while Miss Kershaw is acting it in Chicago.

During the two seasons that "The Blue Bird" was played in this country, according to advices from Winthrop Ames' office, the gross receipts were in the neighborhood of $750,000, and Maeterlinck's share thereof a flat 15 per cent. Bernard Shaw gets either 15 or 20 per cent as his share, and Barrie probably as much. As for American playwrights, it is probably a rare one who can command so much as 10 without recourse to the sliding scale.

Something more than the usual interest attaches to the announcement of a play fashioned from the James Whitcomb Riley poems, and including such well known characters as Orphant Annie, Doc Townsend, Squire Hawkins, and the rest. The poet, so swears the press agent, approved the scenario of the play several years ago. Robert H. McLaughlin, well known in Cleveland and somewhat known here, has written the play, and William A. Brady is even now making the production.

Thomas Dixon, whose contact with the drama has been generally supposed to be limited to the films, has obtained the rights to an English play called "The Invisible Foe," and is reported to be on the point of presenting it in these parts. The piece, despite its title, is not a war play. H. B. Irving appeared in it in London with some success, and Norman Trevor once had some expectations of presenting it at the Comedy this season.

Leon Gordon, one of the authors and the leading player of the late "Watch Your Neighbor," is now engaged in dramatizing Samuel Merwin's novel, "Anthony the Absolute." Oliver Morosco, it is said, will make the produc-

Nietzsche and Europe

Says Wyndham Lewis in the preface of his novel "Tarr" just published by Alfred Knopf:

"This book was begun eight years ago, so I have not produced this disagreeable German for the gratification of primitive partisanship aroused by the war. On the other hand, having had him up my sleeve for so long, I let him out at this moment in the undisguised belief that he is very apposite. I am incidentally glad to get rid of him. He has been on my conscience (my conscience as an artist, it is true) for a long time.

"The myriads of Prussian germs, gases, and gangrenes released into the air for the last year obsessing everything revived my quiescent creation. I was moved to vomit Kreisler forth. It is one big germ more. May the flames of Louvain help to illuminate (and illustrate) my hapless protagonist! His misdemeanors, too, which might appear too harshly real at ordinary times, have, just now, too obvious confirmations to be questioned.

"Germany's leaden brain booms away in the center of Europe. Her brain waves and titanic orchestrations have broken around us for too long not to have had their effect. As we never think ourselves, except a stray Irishman or American, we should long ago have been swamped had it not been for the sea. The habits and vitality of the seaman's life and this vigorous element have protected us intellectually as the blue water has politically.

"In Europe Nietzsche's gospel of desperation, the beyond-man, etc., has deeply influenced the Paris apache, the Italian futurist littérateur, the Russian revolutionary. Nietzsche's books are full of seductions and sugar plums. They have made 'aristocrats' of people who would otherwise have been only mild snobs or meddlesome prigs; as much as, if not more than, other writings, they have made "expropriators" of what would otherwise merely have been Arsene Lupins; and they have made an over-man of every vulgarly energetic grocer in Europe."

"KING AND KAISER"

UNDER the above caption, we published some stirring verses by Clyde B. Wilson a fortnight ago in which he describes how Sousa will lead his "Stars-and-Stripes Forever" when the Americans march into Berlin.

The thought is not far-fetched. We recall that in 1902 or so we were standing with Nahan Franko at the intersection of Friedrich Strasse and Unter den Linden, in Berlin. It was Sedan day; and the emperor and his guard of honor were parading home from the gala maneuvers at the Tempelhofer field. The cortege came toward us, through the Friedrich Strasse, to the strains of Sousa's most famous march. Suddenly we heard another band, and observed a regiment of infantry approaching us from Unter den Linden. Their music, too, was "The Stars-and-Stripes Forever." The emperor's party stopped to let the others pass; and the two band leaders managed to get the American march into unisoned rhythm. Franko remarked—it was 1902:

"They have the best army; but we seem to have the best military marches."

Now every one is agreed that we have both.—Leonard Liebling in the Musical Courier.

TATTLE OF THE TUNEFUL

Guiomar Novaes

Miss Novaes, who comes for the week's concerts by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, visited Chicago last January for a recital, and again in the spring for a special performance at the University of Chicago. She reappeared a few days ago in New York City, where her playing again was the theme of high laudation in the press. She is a Brazilienne, is young, and is, from indications, more successful in having acquired a following than any other new pianist heard in recent years in the United States.

HAROLD BAUER'S cancellation of his recital booked for Kimball hall leaves today musicless, and confines the season's Sunday record so far to John McCormack's, in the days before the flu. Bauer's bill for today was a good one, with MacDowell's Celtic sonata a new item for his ears, and Moussorgsky's diverting and clever "Pictures at an Exposition" revived. Bauer was, I think, the first to play the latter piece in Chicago. He is not only in the Chicago Symphony's list of soloists in the Friday-Saturday schedule, but also is to come for a special concert by the Orchestra in aid of the fund for French musicians. Bauer is one of the pianists who deserve paid-in capacity as often as they may come.

The epidemic has taken from the season's plans thus far Caruso, Elman, and Levitzki, who would have been in the Orchestra's third week. A place may be found for him in a later program. He is one of the stars for the three recitals of the season under the Musicians Club of Women: his date is Feb. 3. The two others are Toscha Seidel, on Nov. 26, and Mary Jordan, contralto, March 17.

Seidel's program for this recital puts him into comparison with the other youngsters of Auer's in the playing of miscellany written or made over for the violin, with things by Vitali, Wieniawski, and Sarasate, and two of the venerable tutor's testing transcriptions—those of Chopin's nocturne and Beethoven's Turkish march. Seidel, in his playing on Friday with the Orchestra, exposed a live, vital quality through the overlay of foolish hoakum which made him a fantastic figure after the diffidence of Zimbalist and the calculated reticence of Heifetz; and this quality might be made into his best asset if he would discard the bunk. Kreisler, in the item of recital-manners, put across an appeal which none of these Russian boys has yet registered.

Galli-Curci discerns no reason for refusing an offer to go into the films. The notion is that she may do so next summer, when otherwise idle, and that a scenario having to do with Jenny Lind would be about right.

Numerous inquiries by mail are answered with the statement that, if Miss Henrietta Weber resume her "opera-evenings" in Fullerton hall, it will not be till after Mr. Campanini's season of opera. She gave a big quarter's worth in those entertainments; and I am not of the belief that she had proportionate encouragement.

Reinald Werrenrath's engagement with the Orchestra is for the concerts of Nov. 15-16. He will have three appearances therein. Vera Kaplun Aronson's is for the next week, when she will play Saint-Saëns' second concerto. What is usually called "the other one," Saint-Saëns' fourth, is to be used in this week's concerts by Guiomar Novaes. It was last played by the Orchestra for Fanny Bloomfield-Zeisler, in March of 1917: she has not since then been heard in public in Chicago. Henri Rabaud, who takes up this week his new job as conductor of the Boston Symphony, will get into the Chicago répertoire for the first time in the concerts of Nov. 22-23, when his second symphony will be played.

Rabaud says he is eager to get acquainted with the work of American composers. "You understand," he tells the Boston newspapers, "that I don't believe in musical chauvinism, or in nationalism in the narrow sense of the world in my art. But I am curious to know if there is in America a sign of a school of composers who, without being local or narrow about it, will try to develop a music unmistakably representative of the spirit of their country."

The Orchestra's first Pop of the season will be Thursday night, Nov. 14, and the second two weeks later.

Maggie Teyte's listed songs for Tuesday night's concert by the Civic Music Association are Duparc's "l'Invitation au Voyage," Leroux's "The Nile," and the principal sentimental aria from Thomas' "Mignon," "Knowest Thou the Land?"

Lieut. John Sousa, laid up since the close of his tour for the Fourth Loan, expects to report for duty tomorrow at Great Lakes, and make ready for the trip of the Battalion Band into Canada in aid of the new Victory loan. "Touring in the conditions of a loan campaign is hard work for everybody," he says; "but everybody is well repaid by the repeated evidence of the jackies' value as patriotic propaganda."

Herman Bellstedt, who left Sousa years ago to establish a band of his own in Cincinnati, has been engaged to organize one of 300 players, the Bullets and Bayonets, for Camp Grant. The soldiers there are confessedly envious of the Battalion Band of Great Lakes, and wish to have something in kind. Sousa once described Bellstedt as "the greatest cornet-player on earth." The latter is to be commissioned a first lieutenant for the purposes of his new duties. F. D.

The Week's Music

THE third program in the interrupted schedule of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra will be played Friday afternoon and Saturday night, under Mr. DeLamarter, with Guiomar Novaes, who will use Saint-Saëns' fourth concerto. This is her first engagement with the Orchestra. Other matter in the bill is Grieg's overture called "In Autumn," Mozart's "Jupiter" symphony [it is numbered 551 in Köchel's catalogue], Louis Victor Saar's suite called "Roccoco," and Dvorák's Scherzo-Capriccioso. Mr. Saar will conduct his suite, which is new in the répertoire. Miss Novaes will play in the post-intermission.

The Orchestra on Tuesday afternoon, at 4:15 o'clock, will give a concert in Mandel hall, University of Chicago.

TODAY.

3:00 and 4:15—Chicago Concert Ensemble, under George Dasch, resumes series with the third program of season. Fullerton hall, Art institute.

TUESDAY.

8:15—Annual "festival" of the Civic Music Association of Chicago, with Maggie Teyte, soprano; a children's chorus of 600, and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. DeLamarter. Orchestra hall.

GOOD OLD DAYS BACK AGAIN.

By Mae Tinée.

AT LAST here's a Sunday that seems like the good old Sundays of long ago! To begin with, it feels like peace. Then, they lifted the ban on gas and we can go a-riding—if we have anything to ride in—without having to graduate from a medical college first. Last, but not least by any manner of means, the picture theaters are again going full blast. Life begins to take on color and meaning. We have something to do besides having the flu.

The brief closing of the theaters, however, probably did nobody any harm. A good many people gave their eyes a much needed rest. Busy theater managers when time hung heavily on their hands got busy and fixed up plumbing, ventilation systems, decorating, etc. And doing without our great national pastime has made us realize just how much we do bank on it as a means of relaxation.

Maybe we didn't exactly appreciate our little blessing until it was flown, but now that it has winged its way back to us—O boy, watch us!

June Elvidge and Montague Love are doing a bit of touring these days, making personal appearances in a number of theaters.

"If you can keep your audience guessing," says Charles Sarver of World, who writes photoplays for World, "you have a successful picture." Granted. And the hardest thing on earth is to keep a Yankee audience from guessing.

Dorothy Dalton says she is not going to be married. Well, we never said she was.

It doesn't sound reasonable, but they do tell me Geraldine Farrar always insists on having a sewing machine in her dressing room upon which she performs most creditably and enthusiastically in the long wait between scenes.

Herbert Rawlinson is to support Billie Burke in "Good Gracious, Annabel."

We are soon to see Elizabeth Risdon in the screen version of the stage success "The Hypocrites." She has been directed in it by her husband, George Loane Tucker. This is a combination of direction and acting that is sure to prove a great success.

Did you read "The False Faces," by Lewis Joseph Vance? If you did, the announcement that you are to see Henry B. Walthall, under the direction of Thomas H. Ince, play it for the screen will be of interest.

House Peters is back again. Under the auspices of a new film producing organization that will release under the name of Sunset Pictures.

A new series of twelve two reel pictures under the general title "For Life and Liberty" is announced by the division of films, Committee on Public Information. Each picture will take up some vital war activity and illustrate how successful results are obtained.

John Bowers, who has supported many of the screen stars in the past, has been engaged to play leads opposite Madge Kennedy. His first work with her will be done in "Primrose," which was written for her by Cosmo Hamilton.

Little Mary has been called from San Francisco, where she was resting after her work there in the fourth Liberty loan drive, to the bedside of her sister, Lottie Pickford Rupp. Mrs. Rupp is seriously ill at a hospital in Los Angeles. Her trouble is a double mastoid abscess and threatened pneumonia. Mrs. Charlotte Pickford was summoned from New York.

William S. Hart didn't intend to stay in town all last week, but, not being able to get railroad accommodations, he was obliged to. So he got those stockyards scenes after all, for the sun was obliging and shone brilliantly one fair day. Yes, said she, I was with him.

Eugene Pallette, one of the cleverest of the younger character actors, is a cadet aviator and he made his last appearance in motion pictures for the duration of the war at Metro's coast studio in Hollywood the other day. He did a "bit" in Bert Lytell's newest production, "The Spender."

They've made up their minds that comedy is the proper caper for Mabel Normand and news from the Goldwyn studios announces the fact that until peace is proclaimed she will be seen in funny pictures only.

Jones, Linick & Schaefer are preparing a bronze tablet for the men formerly in their employ who have joined the colors.

"Don't call me Fritzi any more," is the wail of Fritzi Brunette. She wants to resume her real name of Florence. Three guesses why.

Selig has been commissioned by the Y. M. C. A. to film a war picture which will be called "The Red Triangle." In the cast, it is said, will be over 2,000,000 people—most all of them soldiers, sailors, and marines. The Y. M. C. A. will use this picture in its united war work campaign. A special film of two reels is being made for each locality, the big idea being to present the "home boys" at their places. To do this over 100,000 feet of film was necessary.

Caruso, now turned motion picture star, is spending his honeymoon at the Fifty-sixth street studio of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation in New York, on his second Artcraft picture, "Prince Cosimo."

"Sic 'Em, Sam," will be the name of Douglas Fairbanks' Liberty loan picture. He starts immediately "Maple Leaf Forever," a propaganda picture, to be used during the fifth Canadian victory loan.

I am told that in "The Heart of Rachael," the Bessie Barriscale picture soon to be released, "real society folks" appear in the big mask ball scenes. Though masked, can it be possible that their genuineness will be so marked that we can spot them through their disguise? The picture is taken from the book of the same name by Kathleen Norris.

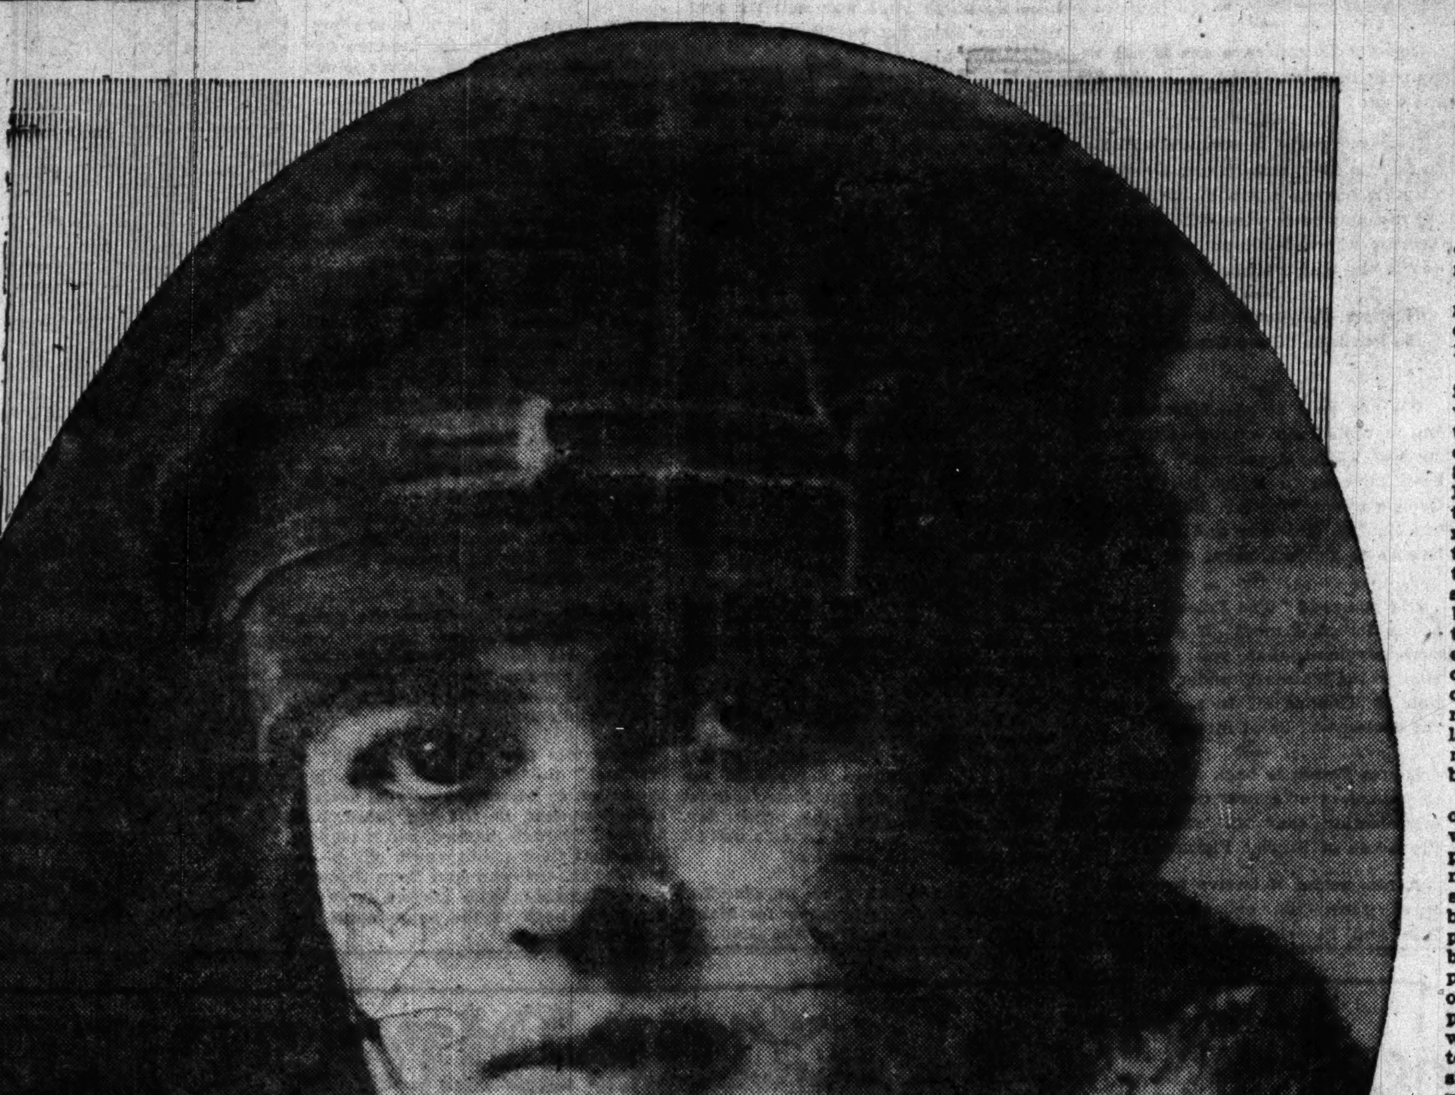
She Was Married to Navy Lieutenant Yesterday



Mrs Robert Haviland Thompson

Miss Clara Cary, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Cary of 2536 Prairie avenue, was married to Lieut. Robert Haviland Thompson, U. S. N., yesterday at high noon in the First Presbyterian church. The wedding was simple and the bride's only attendant was Miss Lolita Armour. Louis Heyl Cary, a brother of the bride, was Lieut. Thompson's best man. Lieut. Thompson formerly lived in Honolulu, Hawaii, but is now stationed in New York, where he and his bride will be at home after Dec. 1 at 308 West Eighty-second street.

Backing of Opera Helps to Celebrate Winning the War

By Mme. X.

VICTORY seems near at hand. Peace is probably just around the corner. Our enemies are scattering before the wind of our righteous wrath like autumn leaves in a gusty November day. How shall we celebrate our triumph over the greatest peril that ever menaced this cherished civilization of ours?

If the present outlook is borne out in respect to an early conclusion with victorious peace, we Americans will have had such a miraculous escape from the burden of anguish borne by our allies that to us the ending of the war will give opportunities for whole hearted brilliant rejoicings quite impossible to England, France, Italy, Belgium, and Serbia, whose wounds will continue to bleed for years to come.

There are many directions in which our gratitude and exultation can express themselves. We can found a new order of human relationship. We can build monuments of marble and stone, but emotion must have a still more brilliant and clamorous vent. The ancient Hebrews, Greeks, and Romans celebrated their victories by blowing golden trumpets, clashing cymbals, banging drums, singing, and dancing.

Here in Chicago we have the most perfect instrument in the world to express our passion of triumph, joy, pride, and hope, and that is our grand opera. With what a splendor of melody, color, motion, and artistic genius we can greet the return of peace to the world!

Best in the World.

For ten years this company has been a-building. Founded largely by the energy, enthusiasm, and generosity of one woman, Mrs. Harold McCormick, in coöperation with such public spirited men as Charles G. Dawes, Samuel nsull, John J. Mitchell, George Porter, and R. T. Crane Jr., it has in this decade grown to be the best opera company in the world. This is no exaggeration.

In Mme. Galli-Curci we have the greatest soprano of the age, as well as the most intelligent. In Lucien Muratore we have that rare combination, a great tenor who is also a great artist. There is not his equal in certain roles—even in New York. The Metropolitan opera has nothing quite so perfect as Mary Garden in "Le Jongleur," or in "Pelleas and Melisande." Rosa Raisa in "Francesco da Rimini" and other operas is a distinguished and unforgetable figure. Particularly in baritones is our opera company rich, including on its roster, as it does, such men as Dufranne, Vanni Marcoux, Maguenat, and Baklanoff, while among the bassos are Arimondi, Journet, and Huberdeau.

Brilliant Season Ahead.

To the man who has labored since 1910 to bring this unmatched company together, to Cleofonte Campanini, especial credit is due, because for the last four years he has been working against constantly increasing odds, in spite of which he now offers to Chicago the most brilliant season of opera, taking it altogether, ever presented to a musical public. It includes twenty-two novelties and revivals, including Verdi's "Otello," Halevy's "La Juive," and Mascagni's latest, "Le Maschere," together with twenty-five well established favorites.

And what is Chicago's response? The seats are selling well, the boxes are not. The people who should be supporting one of Chicago's most valuable and distinguished institutions are failing to do so. It is not merely for their own pleasure and satisfaction that Chicago's wealthy and prominent citizens should be represented in that crimson, double horseshoe of boxes. It is for the honor and glory of their city.

One of City's Choicest Treasures.

It will sound to many like heresy to say that, should the Germans come over and destroy the new Field museum, or the Art institute, or the Orchestra hall and its musical records, it would hardly be a more serious catastrophe than for us to allow the opera to fail. But the contention does not look so preposterous when you realize that we have not the finest museum, the most distinguished art gallery, or, perhaps, the best symphony orchestra in the world, but we have the best opera company in the most acustically perfect hall, and we should cherish the combination as one of our choicest treasures.

It adds a certain luster to Chicago that nothing else does. Should it collapse through lack of support from our rich and representative class it would never be reassembled in our time. New York stands ready, eager to gobble up our artists.

New York's appreciation of our company is testified to by the fact that last spring Gothamites deserted their own opera and mobbed the theater where the Chicago Opera company presented its programs; nor did they confine their attendance only to the stars; they flocked the nights of the lesser notabilities, when the completely artistic quality of our company really shows at its best. Already the advance sale for the February engagement there triples last year's.

Opera in Wartime.

Those people who say that we should abandon opera during the war know not whereof they speak. Are we quitters where Paris, London, Milan have held high their standards and maintained their opera under the hideous strain of night air raids? England's death toll of over 700,000 since last January—larger than that of all the rest of the allies put together—has not taken the heart out of her. Not only in London, but even in Glasgow they had their opera season last spring. In Paris their singers sang, their dancers danced, during the darkest hours of that beautiful capital's supreme agony, and the men back from the trenches loved to go and forget the squalid and hideous realities of war in the brilliant and tuneful artificialities of grand opera.

If they could "carry on" in these years of extreme stress and suffering we ought to be able to do so in this brilliant dawn of a new and splendid day.

Prices Lower This Year.

Without opera Chicago will drop back to the rank of provincial cities, a position from which, since world's fair days of 1892-3, we have been striving to rise. Once there again, we may never emerge.

The prices of boxes have been lowered for the duration of the war. It seems, from the present outlook, safe to say that this will be the only season, Mr. Man with the big bank account, that you can get a box for the fifty scheduled performances for $500. If you don't care to use it all the time take it for the honor of your city and devote it sometimes to the pleasure of the men and officers who will be invalided home.

To House Wounded Here.

Chicago has been assigned a large quota of the wounded. The new Field museum on the lake front is being remodeled inside to house 4,000 of the men on our casualty lists, and will be dedicated to this service from now until 1921.

No Chicago woman doing war work in France has had more thrilling adventures or more hairbreadth escapes than Mrs. Harriet Herrick, who went over last spring to do canteen work. She was at a canteen station in a French town behind the lines during the German drive in June. Although many air raids had made her and the two women working at the same station somewhat callous, there came a storm of shells one night, accompanied by such a crash of falling masonry, that they hurriedly took refuge in their extremely shallow cellar, where they cowered from 1 a. m. to 8 a. m. Then, creeping forth, they found what the night before had been a populous village was now a deserted wilderness of ruined houses, theirs being the only building that had escaped the iron hail.

A nearby sentry told them that every one else had cleared out and that they would better follow suit as soon as possible. Wounded and unwounded men were straggling through the disheveled streets, and reported that the boche were coming on fast. Hastily putting two or three things in a small bag, Mrs. Herrick joined her companions, and, after waiting through another tempest of shells, they found places on a camion going to the rear, which carried them to safety. They took a train which dragged them by slow stages to the outskirts of Paris, where they had to wait hours until one of the worst German air raids was over.

Two hours after they left their canteen the Huns took the town, and looted and destroyed the place, leaving it nothing but a heap of smoking ashes. Mrs. Herrick's entire year's supply of clothing—shoes, sweaters, warm underwear, fur coat, etc.—was lost in the loot or in those ruins. She had only the clothes she wore and the comb, toothbrush, and nightgown she had hurriedly tucked in her bag. Fortunately, under her jacket was a little sweater which Miss Jane Addams had knit for her.

Back from France.

Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, who has been doing war relief work in France since last May, arrived in this country last Monday and is now at her country place near Cooperstown, N. Y. She will open her house here in Lake View avenue later in the month. She will have the Rosecrans Baldwins and the Hugh McBirneys as her near neighbors. The former are occupying Capt. Abram Poole's charming house, while the McBirneys have leased for the winter the young Ambrose Cramer's little gem of a home.

People seem to be always coming or going. John McCutcheon has his passports and passage engaged to go to France to represent the W. G. N. He expects to leave Chicago in a few days to go to sit on the seashore, as all would-be voyagers must, and wait for the mysterious sailing whose day and hour no man knows. Mrs. McCutcheon will "hold the fort" with young John in East Schiller street until her husband returns, which will be some time in the spring (d. v.).

At the Khaki and Blue.

Have you visited the Khaki and Blue club now that it is really complete and in running order? It is certainly the smartest, prettiest refuge ever put up to give shelter, cheer, refreshment, and the glad hand of fellowship to our soldiers and sailors. Mrs. John Carpenter's decorative scheme is most effective. The stunning grouping of flags at either end of the big assembly hall thrill one as would a burst of martial music. The "lounge," or writing room, especially delights the men, with its open fire, comfortable chairs, well stocked writing desks, its tables all spaced off for chess or checkers, and its general air of welcome and freedom.

The canteen service, which from Miss Temple to the youngest waitress is all voluntary, is particularly popular. Griddle cakes, sandwiches, coffee, and ice cream—all of the best—can be had at bedrock prices. There's no profit in the Khaki and Blue canteen.

Nothing has been more admirable than the way our theatrical folk, shut out of their engagements here by the rulings of our health board, have freely given their time and talents to the entertainment of our men in uniform. Last Sunday evening Frances Jordan of "Jack o' Lantern," Lavinia Wynne of "O, Boy," Mabel Bunyea of Walker Whiteside's company, and Lora Hoffman all took part in the capital musical program the sailor boys organized. There are an amazing number of good musicians and singers among our bluejackets.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Winterbotham, Mrs. Arnold Chapman, Miss Edith Blair, and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hammond were on hand that evening to look out for any stray boys who might like a friendly greeting. Many a Jack brought his Jill, however, which seemed sufficient company for both.

Fellow citizenesses, arise in your might, turn out next Tuesday, and cast your vote for the proposed tractoin ordinance! If we go on much longer wtih our present methods of transportation we shall qualify to join those bands of long armed apes that haunt the jungles of interior Africa.

Youth Craft is what you need to induce a more vigorous growth of hair on your head.

Don't be deterred by reason of past failures in the form of counterfeits of Youth Craft, purporting to be the same as Youth Craft, but in reality nothing of the sort. Youth Craft for the hair and scalp certainly does remove dandruff and restore the hair to its original color. Surely that interests you. It is a fact which can be demonstrated by personal use. If your hair is falling, you will have to try Youth Craft sooner or later. Don't lose time. It only means losing more hair.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Two Great Chicago Charities Ask for Aid on Tag Day

By Janet A. Fairbank.

TWENTY-SEVEN years ago a lying-in dispensary of two rooms was opened in the heart of the Ghetto. Today there is a splendid new 127 bed hospital in Fifty-first street overlooking Washington park and there are two important free dispensaries where 3,000 cases are cared for each year, one in the same location as the original dispensary, the other in the neighborhood of the stock-yards.

This dispensary work is performed in the poorest homes in the city, and yet, in spite of the most adverse conditions, out of the 25,000 women cared for exclusively by the Lying-In hospital, there have been only fourteen deaths. This is the world's record for mortality in obstetrics.

Our service to the women who come to us for care does not end with the confinement. The nurses for a fortnight go each day to bathe the baby and to instruct the mother in caring for it. The hospital social service worker investigates the family condition and does what she can to improve it. There is a milk fund which provides milk for destitute cases, and the dispensaries keep on hand a stock of second hand clothing so that families may be outfitted when necessary. This work is done at a cost to the institution of $4.98 a case.

Splendid as this charitable work is, it is the less important side of the work done by the Chicago Lying-In hospital. The students from the Northwestern Medical college and the Physicians and Surgeons' college receive their entire training in obstetrics at the Chicago Lying-In hospital and the training school for nurses graduates 100 nurses each year. In the fine new operating rooms at the hospital, equipped with every modern surgical device, all the abnormal cases from the dispensaries are taken for operative work, thus giving students a unique opportunity for training in both normal and abnormal work, and the men graduated are competent to fill important positions.

The hospital is doing an important war service. At the beginning of the war the American Red Cross appealed to the hospital to care for the wives of enlisted men who found free treatment necessary.

In spite of the fact that the shortage of nurses has made all hospital work difficult, that the call for internes at the front has left their work undone behind them, the Chicago Lying-In hospital keeps every bed full and has so far managed to meet its indebtedness, although, as the institution has practically no endowment, it is necessary for it to meet a deficit of about $40,000 a year.

It is in order that the hospital budget may be met and the highly important work of the institution may continue that a tag day for the benefit of the Passavant Memorial hospital and the Chicago Lying-In hospital is to be held tomorrow.

By Anna W. Coleman.

THE history of the Passavant Memorial hospital is written into the history of Chicago. The Passavant service to the community dates from August, 1865. At that time Dr. W. A. Passavant, keenly alive to the need for a hospital where the poor immigrants might be cared for, with the support of the mayor of the city, William B. Ogden, opened a small house in North Dearborn street, near Huron, for that purpose.

The furniture and modest equipment were donated; the first nurses were from the Order of Protestant Deaconesses, and in the beginning the institution was called the Deaconess hospital. It faithfully served the poor of the city, although so high was the quality of the nursing that well known physicians commenced to send patients there at a time when hospital care for people of means was not so well accepted as it is today.

The fire wiped out the first building. The work was stopped for a few years until 1885 when the present site at 192 East Superior street was given, the present main building was erected, and Dr. Passavant again opened the institution, calling it the Emergency hospital.

The name of the Passavant Memorial hospital was only adopted after the death of its founder in 1894, thus perpetuating the name of one of the pioneer philanthropists of the country. For many years, however, the name of the Emergency hospital seemed to cling to the place, for so many cases had been brought to its always open doors in time of sudden stress and need.

The hospital accepts patients irrespective of race, creed, or color. By means of the social service department its work is extended into the homes of its poor and needy patients.

The Passavant spirit has always been one of service and economy. The hospital does an enormous amount of good on a small income from endowments. For fifteen years its volunteer superintendent served without pay; many distinguished surgeons and doctors and women prominent in the social life of Chicago have given of the best of their service to the institution. There are today no high salaried positions in the hospital.

Formerly we were able to take fully 50 per cent of charity or nonpaying cases. Our usefulness is now sadly limited by lack of funds. Not only service and food but every item connected with the running of a hospital has increased largely in price. Our friends have been faithful and generous, but we need a wider assistance which we feel the generous spirit of Chicago will render. Tomorrow is our first tag day. We are asknig the public then to remember as generously as they are able to do so the needs of this institution which, so far as its means made possible, has ministered faithfully to so many generations of our citizens.

WOMEN IN WARTIME

At the food conservation bureau and demonstration station at 28 South Wabash avenue lectures and demonstrations will be given tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Peanut Rice Loaf with Tomato Sauce and Rice Croquettes and Cheese Sauce," and at 2 p. m. on "Cream Soups," by Miss Winifred Philleo; on Tuesday at 11 a. m. on "Sugarless Desserts," by Dora Duff and at 2 p. m. on "The Use of the Fireless Cooker and How to Construct One at Home," by Miss Elizabeth Lange; on Wednesday at 11 a. m. on "Meatless Mince Pie and Sugarless Pumpkin Pie," by Miss Mildred Taber and at 2 p. m. "The Use of Rough Cuts and Extra Meat Portions," by Helen H. Downing; on Thursday at 11 a. m. a conservation demonstration by Miss Elizabeth Mace and at 2 p. m. "Marketing and the Food Regulations," by Sol Westervelt; on Friday at 11 a. m. "Stuffed Onion, Hominy Crescents, and Celery au Gratin" and at 2 p. m. "Corn Flour Recipes," by Mrs. Helen Ruggles; on Saturday a baker will demonstrate patriotic cakes and breads.

So successful are the Food for France Fund shops now operating in the loop that arrangements are being made for the formation of an allied shop to be operated by women of America, England, France, Belgium, Italy, and Poland. A Negro shop to be located on the south side also is in course of organization. Miss Carita Spencer, national chairman of the food for France fund, will come from New York on Nov. 14. On that afternoon at 3:30 the organization will give a reception in her honor in charge of Mrs. William J. Chalmers at the Blackstone hotel. Miss Spencer will speak on the work of the organization. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Frank W. Garvin, national secretary. Miss Spencer and Mrs. Garvin will be house guests of Miss Miner at 100 East Chicago avenue during their stay in the city.

The Christmas cartons are ready to deliver to those presenting Christmas package labels at auxiliary 46, 1305 East Sixty-third street.

More than 100 young women are serving the Red Cross bureau of conservation as captains in the drive for salvaging typewriter spools and ribbon boxes. Each box will be marked with a Red Cross salvage stamp. They will be separated according to the manufacturers' names by a committee of volunteer workers headed by Mrs. A. E. Hallett. Tuesday of each week will be salvage day at the bureau. Tin foil is being received there also, and juniors are urged to continue the collection of foil of all kinds, as it is much needed by the government. Pewter articles and platinum are desired and may be taken to the bureau at any time.

The Tuesday Art and Travel club entertained 400 boys at supper last Sunday night at the Khaki and Blue club. A fund has been established by the club to provide suppers for a certain number every Sunday night.

Miss Jeannette I. Berolzheim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Berolzheim of 4643 Michigan avenue, has received an appointment as a reconstruction aid in occupational therapy and will leave this evening for Camp Sherman, Chilicothe, O.

Mothers of the 250 boys serving in France in Northwestern hospital unit No. 12 will meet tomorrow at 2 o'clock in the lecture room on the third floor of Marshall Field's.

More than 1,000 little French orphans whose fathers have been killed in the war were adopted during the last month through the Chicago office of the Fatherless Children of France committee, room 741 Fine Arts building. This adoption means the sending of enough to keep each child at the rate of 10 cents a day, so that they may be supplied with food and clothes while their mothers care for them in their homes in France. The organization hopes to secure the adoption in this district of 20,000 orphans before Jan. 1.

The Children of the Frontier committee, of which Mrs. Halstead G. Freeman is chairman, has a picture sent from France which shows a family of five little refugee children who had been living by themselves, without parent or guardian, in a cellar at Grouy, where their mother had been killed by a bomb. When they were rescued by the Children of the Frontier committee they showed bruises over their bodies and were wild, untamed, and uneducated, though devoted to each other and clinging together. The committee assumes the entire support of such children, which means $72 a year per child. Inquire at the office, 500 Powers building.

Leonard A. Busby, president of the Chicago surface lines; D. F. Kelly, general manager of Mandel Bros.; Martin A. Ryerson, state director of the war savings stamps committee, and Lloyd B. Wadell, Cook county chairman of war savings stamps, will be the head professors in the new school of salesmanship which is open to women who wish to sell Liberty bonds and war savings stamps. The school will be under the direction of Miss Agnes Foreman, 417 Conway building, and classes will be held, beginning tomorrow, every Monday and Thursday for five weeks. For information regarding the hours and for registration apply to Miss Foreman or to Mrs. W. D. Harvey, course of instruction department, woman's committee, Council of National Defense, 120 West Adams street.

The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, 58 East Washington street, is holding letters addressed to Miss Irene Sullivan and Miss Ethel Austine.

The woman's committee, Council of National Defense, announces that evening classes will be started in occupational therapy if there is enough of a demand. Women applying for this work must be 25 years of age. They may apply to Mrs. W. D. Harvey, 120 West Adams street.

Miss Helen Gilbert, director of the speakers' bureau of the Chicago chapter, American Red Cross, announces that her bureau has resumed its bookings. Speakers—returned soldiers or civilians—who have witnessed the work of the Red Cross overseas, are in demand.

Mrs. George H. Hixon, secretary of the Stage Women's War Relief, has sailed for France as an entertainer in the service of the Y. M. C. A.

At the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Navy Red Cross auxiliary the following officers were elected: Chairman, Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss; first vice chairman, Mrs. William Wrigley Jr.; second vice chairman, Mrs. Daniel Peterkin; recording secretary, Mrs. Carrie D. Kuhnert; chairman wool department, Mrs. A. M. Mount; chairman surgical dressings, Mrs. Charles Packer; chairman hospital garments, Mrs. H. W. Richards; chairman civilian relief, Mrs. William Blake; chairman kit department, Mrs. M. B. Pittman; chairman supply department, Mrs. John D. Black.

All the women's war activities in Chicago are represented on a bulletin board installed at the war service bureau of Marshall Field & Co. Each organization has its own card, with its insignia, in color, its address, phone number, and chairman. Below this is ample space for special announcements, which the organizations supply, sometimes daily. Women in war work are finding this board a convenience, as at a glance they can get the news of the various activities in which they are interested. The organizations are finding it a splendid way to reach women.

A special appeal is being sent to all the federated women's clubs of Lake county to assist in the publicity for the Illinois training farm for women. The government is calling for 300,000 women for land service, and it is necessary for more women to take up dairy work, a branch of land service, if Illinois is to do its part. Apply to Mrs. Tiffany Blake, 112 West Adams street.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS.

Stanley Johnson of the National Security league will address the Chicago Woman's club on Wednesday at 2 p. m. on "The Seditious American Newspaper." The philanthropy department will give a luncheon tomorrow noon in honor of the new members of the department, and at 2:15 p. m. the philosophy and science study class will meet. On Thursday at 12:30 p. m. the art and literature department will have a luncheon to welcome its new members. Following the luncheon will be a program.

The regular weekly Friday afternoon teas will be resumed at the College club from 4 to 5 o'clock. Carl B. Roden, librarian for the public library, will speak on "Books and Citizens." The hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. Edward F. Bryant and Miss Dorothy I. Smith. Dinner, which was discontinued at the club during the epidemic, will be served daily from 6 to 7 o'clock. Red Cross workrooms are open daily.

The Brownleigh club will give a luncheon and card party on Saturday for the benefit of the Christmas fund for soldiers, for comfort kits, sac de surprises, etc., to be sent to the trenches. The club will celebrate its fourth anniversary on Thursday. A special luncheon will be given.

The educational department of the Political Equality league will study war measures on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the clubrooms, 1102 Stevens building. Mrs. Ira Couch Wood will talk on "Child Welfare as a War Measure." Further discussion of the subject upon the "Effect of Proper Feeding on the Subnormal Child" will be presented by Miss Louise Montgomery. The regular monthly book news review will be given by Miss Pearl Field.

The Tuesday Art and Travel club will hold its annual matinée party on Wednesday at the Woods theater, to see "The Crowded Hour." The chairman of the day is Mrs. Edward Sylvester Smith.

Miss Marie L. Shedlock of London, who has told folk stories in many of the courts of Europe, will tell the stories of the allied countries Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Recital hall, Fine Arts building. The proceeds will go to the fund for bringing kindergarten students from France to study methods in the United States. The International Kindergarten union has sent a number of units of teachers to France to help in the teaching of French children, and it is now its plan to bring young French women to this country, that they may learn methods here and themselves be the ones to teach their own little countrymen. Tickets may be obtained through the Chicago Kindergarten institute, 701 Rush street, or at the hall on Tuesday. Miss Helen Dwyer of the institute is chairman of arrangements.

The Daughters of Indiana will hold the round table meeting at the Congress hotel on Tuesday at 2 o'clock. Better American speech will be discussed by Prof. James F. Hosic.

The Woman's Protective association will meet on Friday at 2:30 p. m. in room 1102 Stevens building. Miss Mary Bartelme of the Juvenile court will speak on "The Work of the Juvenile Court, Particularly Among Girls."

Tomorrow afternoon a special meeting of the Independent German-American Woman's club will be held at the Morrison hotel. Ald. Capitain will speak for the traction ordinance and Ulysses S. Schwartz against. A parcel post sale will be held at the home of Mrs. Paula Graff, 846 Judson avenue, Evanston, Wednesday afternoon.

The Woman's Advertising club will meet Tuesday evening in the Advertising Association building. Henry E. Williams will speak on "Ideals in Advertising" and Miss Agnes Pilney on "Women in Advertising." At this meeting the club will be presented with an honor flag from the women's Liberty loan committee.

Chapter A, Illinois P. E. O., will meet tomorrow in the Auditorium hotel at 1:30 p. m. "The Story of Illinois" will be told by John F. Voight.

HELP AMERICA GET RID OF THE BEAST

The YELLOW DOG

COME AND SEE FOR YOURSELF WHO ARE THE YELLOW DOGS OF AMERICA

You'll have the time of your life—you'll see real life on the screen. You'll say "That's true!" to your neighbor—and laugh. You'll mutter under your breath—and scowl. You'll feel so indignant you'll be uncomfortable—and so happy you could cry. You'll learn to spot any Yellow Dog within earshot. You'll learn how America is getting rid of the Beast that spreads lies unthinkingly; discourages a neighbor's loyalty carelessly; knocks the Government whole-heartedly—and you'll see to it that one never barks anywhere near you in the future. For real solid photoplay enjoyment and entertainment—see the picture that is making 100% Americans wherever shown—"THE YELLOW DOG."

FUTURE EVENTS.

Now that the influenza ban is being lifted society folk will be busy, for during the next few weeks there will be many charity affairs. Dates are being set for the parties that had to be postponed because of the epidemic and the calendar for November looks as if it would be a full one. The Arts club, which has been moved from the Fine Arts building to 608 South Michigan avenue, is being decorated and put in readiness for opening about the middle of the month. The exact date for the opening, which will be a loan portrait exhibit, has not been announced.

The annual benefit festival of the Civic Music association will be given on Tuesday evening in Orchestra hall. Claudio Muzio will be the soloist; a chorus of 800 children under the direction of Herbert E. Hyde will sing folk songs of the allied nations; Thomas J. Kelly will lead community singing, and the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Eric DeLamarter will play. Among the boxholders for the festival are Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson, Charles H. Wacker, Mrs. T. B. Blackstone, Mrs. William R. Linn, Mrs. John Borden, Julius Rosenwald, Mrs. John Hardin, Miss Helen Birch, Mrs. James Simpson, Charles Deering, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Thomas Lyon, and Mrs. Frederic W. Upham.

There will be a Junior league meeting at the Casino on Saturday at 12 o'clock. Following the meeting luncheon will be served.

The first Monday morning reading class, which meets at the residence of Mrs. John J. Glessner, 1800 Prairie avenue, will be held a week from tomorrow.

Owing to the influenza epidemic the Playgoers' club was unable to give its opening tea last Sunday, as originally planned, and has postponed it until Sunday, Nov. 24.

The annual entertainments for the benefit of the Stock Yards Day Nursery association, under the direction of Mrs. Burton Hanson, will be given on Tuesdays, Nov. 12, 19, and 26. The first will be a musical at 8 o'clock in the evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Rosenwald, 4924 Woodlawn avenue. The second will be a reading at 10:30 o'clock in the morning at the residence of Mrs. John Grassell, 4944 Woodlawn avenue. The third will be a patriotic program with music and addresses at 8 o'clock in the evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stuart, 4850 Woodlawn avenue.

The War Relief club, which provides a French Red Cross military hospital with supplies and money, will benefit from a recital to be given at the Playhouse on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 24, at 3:30 o'clock. Rudolph Reuter and Mrs. William Mack Baxter will furnish the program. Mrs. Archibald E. Freer is chairman of the club and among the patronesses for the recital are Mrs. Frederick Elijah, Miss Cecile Murphy, Mrs. Austin Selz, Mrs. Caswell Alan Sharpe, Mrs. Hoval Smith, and Mrs. Russell Willson.

The North End club will give a card party on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 12, at the residence of Mrs. Henry P. Kransz, 6027 Sheridan road.

Saturday, Nov. 23, is the date set by the allied arts hostess committee for the benefit card party which had to be postponed on account of the influenza epidemic. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Joseph B. Long, 48 Banks street, telephone Superior 2949.

PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell, who have been at Lake Geneva since returning from a motor trip through the east, will return tomorrow to their apartment at 223 East Delaware place.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham of 6 Scott street has returned from New York, where she visited her daughters, Mrs. Ernest Poole and Mrs. Thompson Buchanan.

Mrs. Edward Tilden of 5020 Woodlawn avenue is home from a few days' stay at Delavan, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin are planning to leave their Lake Geneva residence on Tuesday. They will be at the Blackstone until their town residence at 2541 Michigan avenue is put in readiness. The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William C. DeWitt and their daughter, Mrs. Sawyer, are visiting the Junkins in Lake Geneva. Dr. DeWitt is dean of the Western Theological seminary.

Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor, who closed his residence in Lake Forest about a month ago, has gone to California for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Boisot have closed their Lake Geneva residence and are at the South Shore Country club, where they will be until the first of the year, when they will leave for Chandler, Ariz., to spend the rest of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Benno F. Nell of 4836 Dorchester avenue, who have been spending a few weeks at French Lick Springs, are now in Pelham Manor, N. Y., visiting their daughter, Mrs. Scott Donahue.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Maloney and daughter, Mary Louise, who spent the summer in Winnetka, have returned to their apartment at 3556 Pine Grove avenue for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. McClellan and Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Lingle have moved from the Congress hotel to the Shore Crest. Mr. and Mrs. Ward Favorite, who spent the summer at their place on Fox river, have also taken apartments at the Shore Crest for the winter.

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

NOVEMBER

NOVEMBER.

THE good brown earth and the good gray sky—elements in every aspect of the greatest human joviality, jovial because they are not luxuriant, because they connote if not impose conditions in which man lives by his own effort and not by a natural beneficence—are now asserted in the decay of things which have sprouted, bloomed, had their day and passed along.

We love what we create and in the luxuriance of a benevolent nature which gave shelter by not giving inclemency, which gave food by making starvation impossible, which gave everything needed by making nothing needful absent, there would be for folk spiritualized as our folk are a complete deadening of life.

Out of the close gray sky soon may come spits and scurries of snows, tumults of inclemency, which merely make more ruddy the inner comforts which are man made. The good brown earth is rich with the seemly odors of the decay of everything that was productive and it was productive only as the time and trouble of man went into it. We ask no benefactions, only the song of the chickadee to the gray morning, the last touch of the wild aster in a brown field, the crackle of a log on the fire, and such comforts from the flesh pot as we have won under such shelter as we can maintain.

The dead leaves are a carpet under foot and illusion walks over them as lightly as it walked over fields colored with fox grass at the end of an August day.

Von by von the Teuts have tumbled,
  Tottered, tattered, week by week;
Old Doc Bethmann-Hollweg stumbled,
  Kuehlmann was the next fall geek;
Vat's his name, the herr professor,
  Hung on for a little space,
Hertling then went hurtling, yessir!
  For to save the kaiser's face.

Ludendorff the long line enters,
  Hindy, too, we hear may go;
As the grip of vengeance centers
  Will it get the kais? Yea, bo!
Also put, we trust, moreover,
  That old Cherman Gott in flight;
Then, with all the world in clover,
  Junker tyranny, good night!

Von by von the Huns are running,
  Von by von the boche skiddoos;
Even Heinie's gone a-gunning

See them drop their "grab it" habits!
  Hear them falling, von by von!

KlearflaX LINEN RUGS

For Every Room in the House

SOLID colors are the tones advised for floor coverings. They are the tones of Klearflax Linen Rugs.

Dainty shades of rose and grays and blue—darker notes of taupe and black and greens and browns. Colors for every room in the house—because they are rugs for every room in the house.

Klearflax Linen Rugs save wool and cotton needed for war. They are made of American grown flax which no Government need requires. Made in a factory where water power saves coal. 80% women workers release men for service.

Reversible, dust-resisting, moth-proof, thick, flat-lying, and richly colored, Klearflax Linen Rugs are war-time, all-time rugs for every room in the house as well as for contract work.

THE GOVERNMENT

are preaching from the same text

The government requests that everyone practice Thrift and Economy.

The government requests that retail selling be placed on a cash basis.

It is the plain, patriotic duty of everyone to comply with these requests.

Thrift is the natural sequence of cash trading

Paying cash benefits you and the community in which you live.

Since 1896, the now nationally popular S.&H. Green Stamps given as a discount for cash, have induced millions to trade in this profitable, sensible, business-like way.

Today, these stamps are a symbol of Thrift in millions of homes, in thousands of cities and towns throughout the nation.

In encouraging this beneficial method of buying, S.&H. Green Stamps place within easy reach of everyone a most practical system for co-operating with the law of the land—Sensible Conservation and Practical Thrift.

The popular S.&H. Green Stamps and Thrift are synonymous. Twenty years ago these tokens blazed the trail followed today by millions.

Soldier and Sailor Asked to Sign an Abstinence Pledge

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

WORLD'S temperance Sunday today will be observed throughout the United States more truly in a world sense than any previous temperance day has ever been observed. Cards have been sent to the soldiers and sailors in vast numbers requesting from them the signing of the total abstinence pledge The request has been for all to sign whether total abstainers or not, in order to relieve the impression that only drinkers are signing.

The following message from Gen Pershing has been widely circulated

> There was a time when it was a natural part of a soldier's existence to drink and carouse. That day is past with the soldier sworn to defend his country's flag, and representing the power and dignity of the nation. Strong muscles, clear brains, high ideals in the soldier increase the fighting efficiency of the army, and these qualities of the citizen insure the permanency of our institutions.

The pledge signed is called a patriotic pledge and bears the name of the Lincoln-Lee legion, for it is one of the remarkable facts coming to us from the civil war that the two greatest men, north and south, Abraham Lincoln and Robert E. Lee, were total abstainers and temperance advocates.

A ratification chart has been furnished which will be displayed today which gives a list of the fourteen states which have already ratified the national prohibition amendment and providing stickers for the placing on the chart of other states as they join the ratification ranks. It is expected enough states to complete the total of thirty-six needed will ratify before Feb. 1.

The national convention of the Anti-Saloon league, which will meet in Columbus, O., Nov. 19-22, is expected to take definite action in launching a program for world prohibition.

A call will be made in many pulpits that in the selection of representatives and senators to the Illinois legislature the ratification of the national amendment will be kept in view by voting only for dry candidates.

A war service will be held today at 11 o'clock at the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Atonement, 5749 Kenmore avenue. Bishop Charles P. Anderson will preach. The flags of Belgium, Italy, France, and Great Britain, which will be carried in the procession by officers of the allied armies, will be blessed. The Rev. F. S. Fleming, rector of the church, will be in charge.

The Rev. M. G. Dickinson, for the last five years pastor of the Calvary Baptist church at Trenton, N. J., will preach as pastor his first sermon this morning at the Ravenswood Baptist church, North Seeley and Sunnyside avenues. He succeeds the late Rev. F. B. Neel. He was educated at New York university. One of his theological instructors was the father of Charles Evans Hughes, candidate for the presidency in 1916.

The Rev. Thomas Fulton Campbell

The Rev. Thomas Fulton Campbell is pastor of the Seventh Presbyterian church, Sangamon street and Eightieth place He has led in gathering a men's Bible class of 108 members and this afternoon at 3 o'clock the class will hold its first big rally.

An address will be made by the Rev. R. R. Bigger, the newly elected superintendent of the adult department of the Cook County Sunday School association. A banquet had been arranged, but was postponed because of the epidemic. A group class picture will be taken today in connection with the rally.

Mr. Campbell became pastor of the Seventh church last March. In September he began soliciting members for the Bible class. In preparation for the ministry he studied at the University of Chicago, McCormick and Chicago theological seminaries, graduating from the latter institution.

The board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church will meet this week at Wallace Lodge, Yonkers, N. Y. The board of foreign missions will meet at the same place immediately following.

The Chicago Church federation, through its secretary, Dr. W. B. Millard, sent to 6,000 pastors in Illinois an appeal in behalf of a favorable vote on the good roads bill and the calling of a convention to provide for a new constitution for Illinois. The pastors are expected to make mention of these subjects to their congregations today, as the voting takes place on Tuesday. These provisions, it is felt, will facilitate church work as well as good citizenship.

Lombard Avenue Baptist church, Oak Park, has welcomed to its pulpit the Rev. E. R. Fitch, who came from Waterford, Ont., Canada. Last year he was president of the Interprovincial Baptist Young People's Union of Ontario and Quebec. He received the degree of M. A. from McMaster university, Toronto.

The woman's board of missions of the interior, representing the Congregational churches of the nation, will celebrate the golden jubilee of its founding in the First Congregational church December 1-4. The date originally set was Oct. 29-Nov. 1. The postponement was occasioned by the influenza. A pageant entitled "Daybreak" will be held in Orchestra hall Dec. 4 as a part of the celebration.

In preparation for the war welfare drive for $170,500,000 which begins officially Nov. 11, the statement comes from headquarters that an oversubscription is positively needed. The army is double the size it was when the budget was made up. If peace comes the need of the oversubscription will be much greater than even in the midst of war, because, it is urged, peace will relax to a degree the discipline demanded in war and more rather than less money will be needed for religious and recreation purposes. If peace comes soon, the welfare work will have to continue until demobilization takes place which will require more than a year and may take two years. No drive in the world's history has been so interdenominational and nonsectarian including, as it does, Catholics, Jews and Protestants.

Services will be resumed this evening at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall. The speaker will be Prof. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell college, Grinnell, Ia., on the subject, "In the Front Trenches of Civilization." Prof. Steiner was born in Austria, educated in Pilsen, Bohemia, and in Heidelberg, Germany, and is the author of many books, among them "The Trail of the Immigrant." He is regarded as a high authority on all racial and social questions. Albert Borroff will sing the solo part in the chorus rendering of "The Soil Triumphant," by Tertius Noble.

The Jackson Boulevard Christian church, Jackson boulevard near Western avenue, celebrated last month its forty-fifth anniversary. It is the oldest of the Disciples of Christ churches in Chicago now active, and the second one to be founded, the first church, called the Central church, having been disbanded. The Rev. Austin Hunter has been pastor of the church ten years.

A One Hundred Religious Study club is being formed at the First Congregational church, Evanston. Work will begin as soon as the full quota of 100 is reached. It is expected the first meeting will be held next Wednesday evening under the direction of the pastor, the Rev. Hugh Elmer Brown.

The St. Mark's Reformed Episcopal church, Washtenaw avenue and Da Tamble street, which has been without a rector for several months, has now received as rector the Rev. Edwin W. Maxfield Johnson, former rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Detroit. Dr. Johnson is a graduate of the University of Georgia and St. Paul's School of Theology. He also graduated in medicine at the American Medical college, New York. Regular services, which were suspended in part, will be resumed today. There will be holy communion at 11 o'clock.

Do You Know That We Will Repair Your Corsets?
Third Floor—Center

The government requests every woman to make her corsets last as long as she possibly can. Our Corset Repair Section has shown many women how they can get added wear out of a corset by having it repaired. Why not let us repair your corsets? For the women who need new corsets we feature for tomorrow again—

The Celebrated NEMO Corsets

Nemo corsets have won the endorsement of so many of our leading physicians and surgeons because they do so much to aid the health of every woman who wears them. Each Nemo model is specifically designed to help some style of figure—not alone to smart, fashonable lines, but to comfort and health—and can do so if properly fitted, for the best model in the world may not be your model. Why not have one of our corps of experienced corsetieres, the best in all Chicago, fit you? For the fittings no charge is made. The woman now doing war work, probably more strenuous than she has done in the past, will particularly find the Nemo corset a wonderful help, for it aids in preventing you from overtaxing your strength by taking the strain off the body and preserving its natural symmetry.

NEMO CORSETS here in complete variety of styles and sizes at $4 to $10

THE ISSUE—SHALL CONGRESS BECOME A RUBBER STAMP?

President Wilson's Plea

The president issued from the White House ten days ago an appeal to the people to elect Democrats to congress. He said:

My fellow countrymen:

The congressional elections are at hand. They occur in the most critical period our country has ever faced or is likely to face in our time. If you have approved of my leadership and wish me to continue to be your unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad, I earnestly beg that you will express yourselves unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both the senate and house of representatives.

I am your servant and will accept your judgment without cavil, but my power to administer the great trust assigned me by the constitution would be seriously impaired should your judgment be adverse, and I must frankly tell you so, because so many critical issues depend upon your verdict. No scruple of taste must in grim times like these be allowed to stand in the way of speaking the plain truth.

I have no thought of suggesting that any political party is paramount in matters of patriotism. I feel too deeply the sacrifices which have been made in this war by all our citizens irrespective of party affiliation to harbor such an idea. I mean only that the difficulties and delicacies of our present task are of a sort that makes it imperatively necessary that the nation should give its undivided support to the government under a unified leadership and that a Republican congress would divide the leadership.

The leaders of the minority in the present congress have unquestionably been pro-war, but they have been anti-administration. At almost every turn which we entered the war they have sought to take the choice of policy and the conduct of the war out of my hands and put it under the control of instrumentalities of their own choosing.

This is no time either for divided council or for divided leadership. Unity of command is as necessary now in civil action as it is upon the field of battle. If the control of the house and senate should be taken away from the party now in power an opposing majority could assume control of legislation and oblige all action to be taken amidst contest and obstruction.

The return of a Republican majority to either house of the congress would moreover be interpretative on the other side of the water as a repudiation of my leadership. Spokesmen of the Republican party are urging you to elect a Republican congress in order to back up and support the president, but even if they should in this impose upon some credulous voters on this side of the water they would impose on no one on the other side. It is well understood there as well as here that the Republican leaders desire not so much to support the president as to control him.

The peoples of the allied countries with whom we are associated against Germany are quite familiar with the significance of elections. They would find it very difficult to believe that the voters of the United States had chosen to support their president by electing to the congress a majority controlled by those who are not in fact and sympathy with the attitude and action of the administration.

I need not tell you, my fellow countrymen, that I am asking your support not for my own sake or for the sake of a political party, but for the sake of the nation itself in order that its inward unity of purpose may be evident to all the world. In ordinary times I would not feel at liberty to make such an appeal to you. In ordinary times divided counsels can be endured without permanent hurt to the country. But these are not ordinary times.

If in these critical days it is your wish to sustain me with undivided minds I beg that you will say so in a way which it will not be possible to misunderstand either here at home or among our associates on the other side of the sea. I submit my difficulties and my hopes to you.

WOODROW WILSON.

"OUR ONE GREAT SLACKER"

The New York World, chief newspaper organ of the Wilson administration, printed on Oct. 19 the following editorial on the present congress, which is controlled and absolutely directed, particularly in the house, where the revenue measures originate, by the Democrats, whose election Mr. Wilson urges as necessary to the nation's welfare:

No matter what congress may or may not do in regard to a recess until after election, the fourth Liberty loan, which closes tonight, is beyond its power either to help or harm. The war revenue bill, under desultory consideration since last spring, may have an influence for good or evil upon the fifth Liberty loan, but the present financing must end, and promises to end successfully, with the people largely in the dark as to the extent and character of the taxation that they will have to meet.

Discreditable to congress as this situation unquestionably is, the response of the country to the loan, the largest ever made at one time, has been commendable in its enthusiasm and generosity. Already there are more individual subscribers for comparatively small sums than took part in the third borrowing, when the whole number exceeded 17,000,000, and it is confidently believed that today's final response from the well to do and wealthy, upon whom the uncertainties of taxation have reacted most sharply, will be gratifying.

The delinquency of congress in this emergency is so regrettable in every way that public attention should be directed to it sharply and unceasingly. If, as is now promised, but only promised, it manages to perfect its tax bill by Christmas it will have been engaged upon that measure for seven months. In less than seven months miracles have been wrought elsewhere.

A victorious German army has been thrown back upon its inner lines, more than a million of American soldiers have joined overseas the hundreds of thousands who had gone before, Bulgaria has made peace on the allies' terms, Palestine and Syria have been liberated, and two Turco-German armies captured or scattered, and Germany and Austria-Hungary have been suing for peace on the president's terms, both promising the democratization of their governments.

In all of the achievements of war, manufacture, transportation by land and sea, finance, shipbuilding, equipment, and medical and social activity by which these mighty works have been brought about, most men have been operating in new fields. In the matter of taxation congress has followed familiar lines. Its indecision has not been due to inexperience but to indifference, or to caution born of timidity, or to demagogy, or to sheer indolence. It is the one agency of government which has failed to meet promptly and courageously a momentous issue.

Taxes are just as necessary in war as bond sales or selective drafts. If legislators are rightly inspired, taxation need not be a juggle or a political maneuver. To lay taxes justly, no matter how heavily they may rest upon the people, there can be no excuse for indecision that cannot be pleaded everywhere else along the whole line of war activities. If the hesitation that we have seen in this respect had been visible in the field we should not have today the glorious records of Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel, and the Argonne. In war, delay is always costly and frequently disastrous, and that is as true in civil as in military circles. Our one great slacker is congress. While all other Americans, with supreme confidence in themselves, have been fighting and paying, it alone, with its stupid eyes on the November ballot boxes, has been doubting and dallying.

In a later editorial the same newspaper, commenting on "Congress and Party," said:

In truth it must be said of the present congress that few if any of its predecessors ever exhibited less of party spirit. It has been nonpartisan in its faults as well as its virtues.

On several occasions Democrats as well as Republicans, in numbers too large, have figured as obstructionists or demagogues, chiefly in the senate, but most of these mistaken gentlemen have been properly dealt with by their constituents at the primaries.

It is to be remembered, however, that even in that body (the senate) some of the president's most loyal supporters have been Republicans, like Nelson and Borah, and some of his most unreasonable antagonists Democrats, like Chamberlain.

When this congress met, a year ago last March, the house of representatives was so evenly divided politically that its organization became a personal rather than a party matter. If Mr. Mann could have commanded the votes of all Republicans and independents of Republican leanings, he and not Mr. Clark would have been speaker.

Considering the fact that the great majority of Republicans and Democrats in both branches have sustained the administration in all its war measures, the necessity for the reëlection of a Democratic congress as such and solely for the purpose of war is not apparent. It is true that a Republican congress, bent and twisted by Theodore Roosevelt and the patriots of protection and privilege, determined upon an economic war after the peace, would be a calamity, but a Republican congress generously inspired need not excite apprehension.

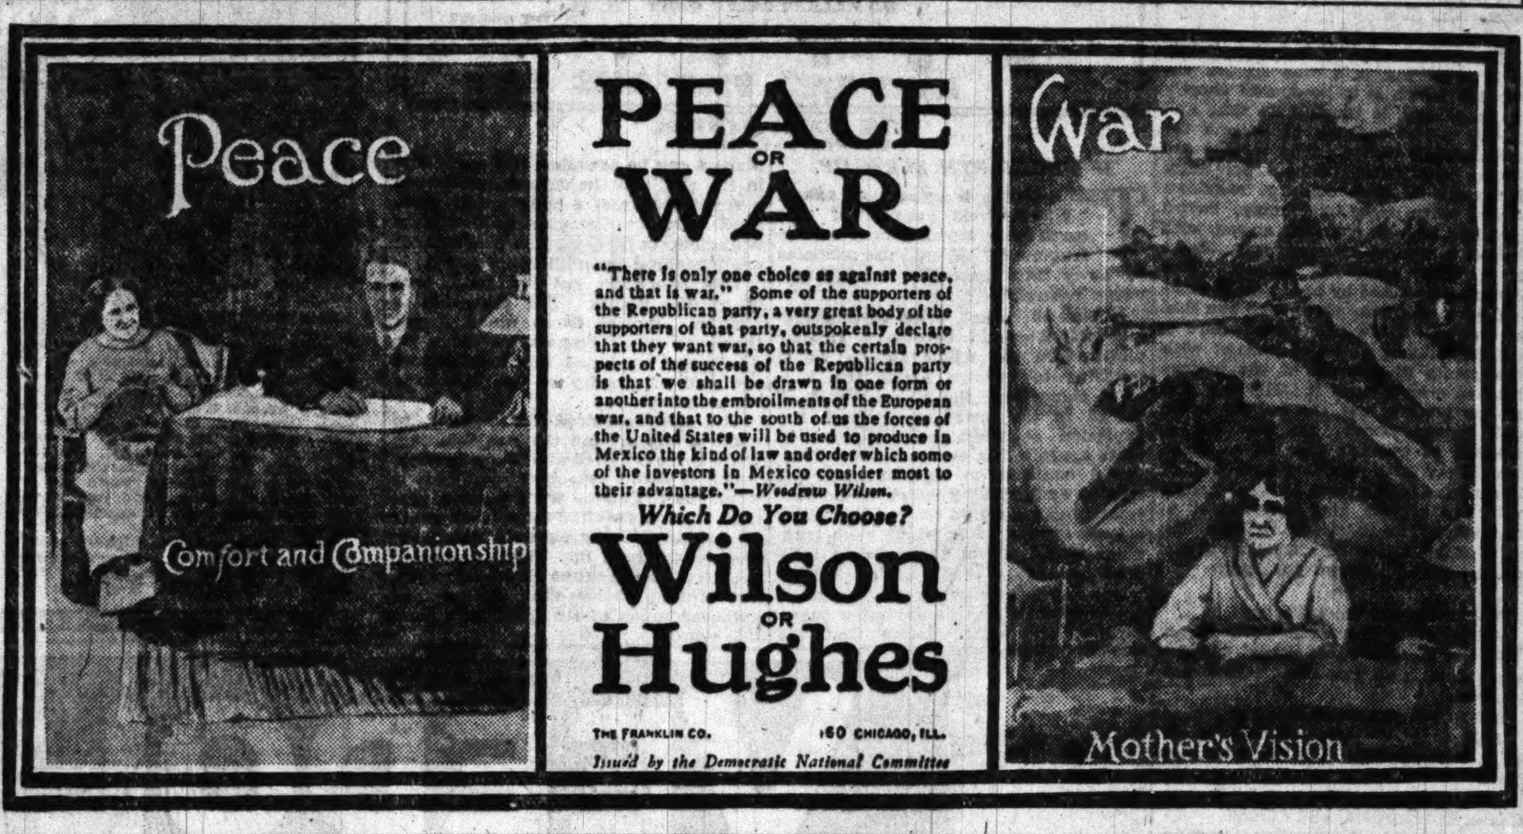
For example, if such a thing were possible, who should care if faithful Republicans were elected as successor to Kitchin of North Carolina, Van Dyke of Minnesota, Randall of California, and Huddleston and Dent of Alabama? Randall is a Democratic pacifist-prohibitionist; the others are Democrats of the strictest sect, and yet Kitchin, as chairman of the ways and means committee, has announced a purpose, well illustrated in his leadership, of levying taxes sectionally. Dent was so strongly committed to pacifism that as chairman of the house committee on military affairs he had to surrender management of the great army bills as they reached the house of representatives to Julius Kahn, the ranking Republican member.

If by their votes next Tuesday the American people express a purpose to be represented at Washington during the ensuing two years by a Republican congress, we should say that their determination was based not upon any weariness of the war, not upon any lack of faith in the president, and not upon any approval of Rooseveltism and reaction in the interest of trusts and monopolies, but upon certain well grounded objections to the performances of the present Democratic congress.

The World has no fear of a Republican congress except as it may fall under the influence of the Roosevelt demagogy and the high tariff plutocracy. It would welcome a Democratic congress purged of anti-Democratic fanaticism and sectionalism more or less mixed with classism. Neither of them would fail in the war.

LOOKING BACKWARD TO 1916

Democratic Campaign Committee Flooded the Country with This Appeal—the Same Committee That Is Now Circulating Mr. Wilson's Appeal to Voters to Support Democrats "to Back Up the War."



PEACE OR WAR

"There is only one choice as against peace, and that is war." Some of the supporters of the Republican party, a very great body of the supporters of that party, outspokenly declare that they want war, so that the certain prospects of the success of the Republican party is that we shall be drawn in one form or another into the embroilments of the European war, and that to the south of us the forces of the United States will be used to produce in Mexico the kind of law and order which some of the investors in Mexico consider most to their advantage."—Woodrow Wilson.

Which Do You Choose?

Wilson OR Hughes

THE FRANKLIN CO. 160 CHICAGO, ILL.

Issued by the Democratic National Committee

Here Is the Way They Size Up "My Fellow Countrymen"

President Wilson has solemnly urged his "fellow countrymen" to vote for none but Democrats for congress. He fears if Republicans are elected there will be a lack of unity in the support of measures intended to hasten the winning of the war.

So far there have been half a dozen great measures before congress which have a vital bearing on the war. The vote on some of them has been declared by the president himself to be the acid test of loyalty and determination to defeat German autocracy.

Below in parallel columns is printed the record of the votes on these great issues of some Democratic and Republican leaders in the lower house of congress.

These Are Some of the Men the President Asks You to Vote For Champ Clark, Mo., speaker—Voted against an increase in the navy. Voted against the Kahn bill to raise a great army by selective draft, declaring that "there is mighty little difference between a conscript and a convict."

Claude Kitchin, N. C., chairman ways and means committee, Democratic floor leader—Voted twice against increasing the regular army, voted against an increase in the navy; voted against the declaration or war with Germany; voted against the bill for a selective draft army; voted against woman suffrage amendment, which President Wilson declared "essential for successful prosecution of the war."

S. Hubert Dent Jr., Ala., chairman of committee on military affairs—Voted twice against increasing the regular army, voted against increasing the navy, voted against the bill for a selective draft army, voted against woman suffrage amendment.

Lemuel P. Padgett, Tenn., chairman of committee on naval affairs—Voted twice against an increase in the regular army, voted against an increase in the navy, voted against the bill for a selective draft army. Paired against woman suffrage.

Ashton C. Shellenberger, Neb., member military affairs committee—Voted for McLemore resolution that Americans should keep off the high seas, voted twice against an increase in the regular army, voted against an increase in the navy, voted against the bill for a selective draft army.

Henry D. Flood, Va., chairman foreign affairs committee—Voted twice against increasing the regular army, voted against an increase in the navy, voted against woman suffrage.

Edward W. Pou, N. C., chairman committee on rules—Voted twice against an increase in the regular army, voted against an increase in the navy, voted against the bill for a selective draft, voted against woman suffrage.

Edward Keating, Colo., member committee on labor—Voted for McLemore resolution that Americans should keep off the high seas, voted twice against increasing the regular army, voted against an increase in the navy, voted against war with Germany, voted against the bill for a selective draft army.

Denver S. Church, Cal., member committee on alcoholic liquor traffic—Voted for McLemore resolution to bar Americans from high seas, voted twice against an increase in regular army, voted against increase in navy, voted against war with Germany, voted against the selective draft bill.

C. C. Dill, Wash., chairman committee on mileage—Voted twice against an increase in regular army, voted against an increase in the navy, voted against war with Germany, voted against the selective draft bill.

Charles O. Lobeck, Neb., member committee on war claims—Voted for McLemore resolution barring Americans from high seas, voted twice against increase in regular army, voted against increase in navy, voted against the bill providing for a selective draft army.

Henry A. Barnhart, Ind., chairman committee on printing—Voted twice against an increase in regular army, voted against the bill providing for a selective draft army.

Pearl D. Becker, Mo., member interstate and foreign commerce committee—Voted for McLemore resolution barring Americans from high seas, voted twice against an increase in regular army, voted against an increase in navy, voted against war with Germany.

These Are Some of the Men the President Asks You to Defeat

James R. Mann, Ill., former speaker and Republican floor leader—Voted twice to increase the regular army; voted to increase the navy; voted for war with Germany; voted for the selective draft bill; voted for woman suffrage.

Frederick H. Gillett, Mass., Republican floor leader, ranking Republican member appropriations committee—Voted against McLemore resolution to bar Americans from high seas, voted twice to increase regular army, voted for increase in navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for bill for a selective draft army.

Julius Kahn, Cal., ranking Republican member committee on military affairs—Voted twice to increase regular army, voted to increase the navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for and led fight in the house for the selective draft bill at President Wilson's request after Democratic Leader Claude Kitchin had announced he would oppose it, voted for woman suffrage.

Joseph W. Fordney, Mich., ranking Republican member appropriations committee—Voted against McLemore resolution, voted to increase navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for selective draft bill, voted for woman suffrage.

George W. Fairchild, N. Y., member ways and means committee—Voted against McLemore resolution, voted twice for increasing army, voted for increase in navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for selective draft bill.

Martin B. Madden, Ill., member committee on postoffices and post roads—Voted twice to increase regular army, voted to increase navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for bill for selective army draft, voted for woman suffrage

Nicholas Longworth, O., member ways and means committee—Voted twice to increase regular army, voted to increase navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for selective draft army.

George W. Edmunds, Pa., ranking Republican member committee on claims—Voted twice to increase army, voted to increase navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for selective draft act, voted for woman suffrage.

James P. Glynn, Conn., member committee on insular affairs—Voted against the McLemore resolution barring Americans from high seas, voted twice in favor of an increase in regular army; voted to increase the navy; voted for war with Germany; voted for selective draft bill; voted for woman suffrage amendment.

William S. Greene, Mass., member committee on merchant marine and fisheries—Voted against McLemore resolution, voted twice in favor of increasing the regular army, voted for increase in navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for selective draft act.

George M. Bowers, W. Va., member committee on expenditures in treasury department—Voted against McLemore resolution, voted twice for an increase in regular army, voted to increase the navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for selective draft act, voted for woman suffrage.

Lindley H. Hadley, Wash., member merchant marine and fisheries committee—Voted against McLemore resolution, voted twice to increase regular army, voted to increase navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for selective service act, voted for woman suffrage amendment.

John A. Peters, Me., member naval affairs committee—Voted against McLemore resolution, voted twice in favor of increase in regular army, voted for increase in navy, voted for war with Germany, voted for selective service act, voted for woman suffrage amendment.

WHAT WAR COSTS

"FIFTEEN HUNDRED CASUALTIES FROM OTTAWA WEEK END
Total for June Has Now Reached Close on Eight Thousand."

Those are the headlines of the Montreal, Canada, Daily Star, June 26, 1916, at the top of a solid page of names of young Canadian dead. That's for only one month for Canada alone, mind you, before the "great drive" in France claimed its bloody grist in which 400 young men of Winnipeg, for example, fell dead in a few minutes at the storming of the single village of Courcellette.

But this record, ghastly as it is, pales into insignificance in comparison with the MILLIONS UPON MILLIONS who have died in all the warring countries in the past 26 months, and the MILLIONS UPON MILLIONS who have been blinded or maimed for life.

For the first 10 months of the war alone, the French ministry of war officially computes that France, England, Belgium, Russia, Germany, Austria and Turkey lost 5,290,000 killed and 6,478,000 wounded—the equivalent of more than one-tenth the population of the United States killed and maimed in 10 months! Since then, the foregoing figures have been enormously multiplied. The German casualty lists to the end of June, 1916, total 3,112,637 for Germany, without including naval and colonial losses. Now that the Balkans are engaged, the lists of killed and wounded will enormously increase.

Do you want to contribute a father, son or brother to the bloody shambles of war? Woodrow Wilson thinks not. Hughes represents the party which asks you for your contribution of young, throbbing, human life.

It's up to You!

IF YOU WANT WAR, VOTE FOR HUGHES
IF YOU WANT PEACE, ELECT WILSON

Colonel Roosevelt's Reply

In a speech before the Republican club in New York last Monday night Theodore Roosevelt replied to President Wilson's appeal to the voters of the nation, irrespective of party, to elect a Democratic congress. Among other things he said:

"If the president of the United States is right in the appeal he has just made to the voters, then you and I, my hearers, have no right to vote at this election or to discuss public questions while the war lasts.

"If his appeal is justified, only that faction of the Democratic party which accepts towards the president the rubber stamp attitude of complete servility is entitled to control congress, and no man who is a Republican and no man, whether a Republican or not, who puts loyalty to the people ahead of loyalty to the servant of the people, is to have a voice in determining the greatest questions ever brought before this nation.

"I am glad that Mr. Wilson has now cast off the mask. His appeal is now to pure partisanship. By his actions (since he announced that politics were adjourned) he had already repudiated his words, for he had already interfered for purely political reasons in the election contests in Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, and many other states.

"Now he openly and by formal announcement repudiates all pretense of putting the public welfare above party.

"Now he declares that this is a party war, and that the Republicans, although he admits that 'they have been unquestionably pro-war,' are to be excluded from any share in controlling the war.

"Nor is this all. He makes his appeal on behalf of the Democratic party.

"He in no way discriminates between Democrats who are pro-war and those who are anti-war. He asks the exclusion from congres of the man who is anti-administration, without the slightest reference to whether he is pro-war or anti-war, loyal or disloyal, patriotic or unpatriotic.

"The one test he imposes is loyalty to himself. The president of the United States repudiates the position of being president of all the people and substitutes for it the position of partisan leadership of one political faction.

"Contrast with this the position of Abraham Lincoln. In the darkest days of the civil war Lincoln declined outright to make any party appeal or to apply any party test or any test save that of loyalty in the prosecution of the war and loyalty to the union and to liberty.

"In March, 1863, he advocated sending to congress only 'unconditional surrender supporters of the war,' making no reference to any party; and in June of that year, in answer to some correspondents who signed themselves 'Democrats,' he expressed his regrets as they had not called themselves 'American citizens,' saying, 'In this time of national peril I would have preferred to meet you upon a level one step higher than any party platform,' and in August, in the only political letter he wrote that year, he appealed to 'all those who maintain unconditional devotion to the union,' and in this appeal he explicitly included his own political friends with those of his political enemies 'whom no partisan malice or partisan hope can make false to the nation's life.'

"Lincoln made no party test. He appealed to all loyal men of all parties. He asked that the test of fitness for congress be, not adherence to his personal administration, but unconditional support of the war.

"Mr. Wilson applies the most rigid party test. He explicitly repudiates loyalty to the war as a test. He demands the success of the Democratic party and asks the defeat of all pro-war men if they have been anti-administration. He asks for the defeat of pro-war Republicans. He does not ask for the defeat of anti-war Democrats.

"On the contrary, he supports such men if, although anti-war, they are pro-administration. He does not ask for loyalty to the nation. He asks only for support of himself.

"There is not the slightest suggestion that he disapproves of disloyalty to the nation.

"I ask all patriotic Americans to consider just what is meant when the president says that in the present congress 'the leaders of the minority, although unquestionably pro-war, have been anti-administration.'

"These leaders supported the administration when a declaration of war was needed. They supported it when there was a demand for the draft. They supported it when we sent the army overseas. They supported every demand for money, whether by taxation or by loan.

"They supported it or gave it initiative and guidance on every issue where it stood for vigorous prosecution of the war, and they supported it on these issues when half the leaders of President Wilson's own party opposed him when he had committed himself to war measures—and yet President Wilson now makes a partisan appeal in favor of the Democrats who opposed the war measures and against the Republicans who supported them.

"President Wilson says that Republicans are not good enough to serve the republic in congress at this time. But they are good enough to die for the republic in the army and navy. They are good enough to pay taxes and subscribe to the loan.

"We have sent our sons and brothers to spill their blood like water overseas under the flag, we have given our strength and our money without stint to serve the country at home, to float the loans, to back up the war activities of every kind; and now we are told that the blood of our sons, and the money saved at the expense of our wives and little children, do not entitle us to any word in saying how the war is to be waged or what are the terms on which peace is to be made, or what shall be our places after the war.

"Mr. Wilson says that this is no time for divided councils. Yet the constitution of the United States says that he must counsel the congress of the United States. It is mere insolence for the servant of the people to say that he will not counsel with those other servants of the people whom the people have elected for the express purpose of giving him counsel.

"The president says that this is his war, not the people's war, and that the half of the people who have been most resolute in favor of the firm and efficient prosecution of the war are hereafter to be excluded from all share of its management and from all say-so as to the peace which is to crown and justify it.

"The president says he is anxious about the effect on Germany and our allies of the election of a congress which would follow the present Republican leadership of the house and senate.

"He need be under no anxiety. It would be clearly understood abroad as at home. Our allies would know that it meant that America was determined to speed up the war, to back her own army and the armies of the allies to the limit, to tolerate no corruption or inefficiency in waging the war, and to insist on Germany's unconditional surrender.

PEACE

(From the North American Review's War Weekly.)

The congress to be elected on Nov. 5 will not assemble till March 4, 1919, and will continue in existence till March 4, 1921. Long before the latter and possibly before the former date the war almostly surely will have ended. Even though hostilities should continue for a portion of the time, no questions involving partisanship can arise. The course of the nation is fixed and unchangeable.

The great task of the new congress is bound to be readjustment of the old order to the new, reorganization of the great forces of industry and transportation, reconstruction of the multifarious elements that constitute the basis of the living, the happiness and the liberties of the people.

Which of the two great parties is the better equipped to solve these mighty problems intelligently and justly? We are unable to see how a shadow of doubt can blur any thoughtful mind.

What an opportunity was that of the dominant men of the south to revive the fine old traditions of the statesmanship of their fathers and make them to live and breathe again, to the honor of their section and the pride of the nation! One would think it incredible that the very obligation to meet the requirements of a world cataclysm should not have impelled noble ambition, inspiration, vision, breadth, generosity, courage, patriotism. Instead, it has brought to light only the avarice and greed and meanness of narrow and vindictive spirits. "The east got us into this war, let the east pay for it," has been the common saying, with sublime unconsciousness on the part of those who uttered it of the plainly implied confession that in their hearts they themselves had been unwilling to join in the great battle for the freedom of mankind.

And they have fulfilled their threat with a vengeance, with the vengeance that actuated it. Wherever they could cripple industry, they have crippled it; wherever they could smash production, they have smashed it; wherever they could impair prosperity, they have impaired it; wherever they could crush trade they have crushed it; wherever they could paralyze credit, they have paralyzed it; unsatisfied with incomes, wherever they could mulct capital they have mulcted it without pretense of justice, fairness, decency or even prudence. . . .

Not the east alone; the west, too, became a rich field for punitive harvesting. In the guise of "war measures," perhaps justifiable or even essential war measures, they enacted bills fixing maximum prices for wheat, for wool, for coal, for iron and steel, for copper, for oil, for food—but not for cotton.

Cotton was sacred and cotton, in congress, was king. Its normal price in 1913 was 12.2 cents; in 1914 the closing of the continental markets drove it down to 6.8 cents and the growers appealed to the federal government for succor; in 1915, it went to 11.3 cents; in 1916, it rose to 19.6 cents; last year it leaped to 27.7 cents; on August 1 of this year it reached 32.2 cents; today it is nearly 40 cents a pound—three and one-half times its normal cost before the war.

Sept. 21 the discrimination had become so flagrant that the president announced that the government would fix a fair price on cotton as on other necessaries and would take charge of its distribution. But he quickly discovered that the Democratic congress, in this matter, had ceased to be a rubber stamp and he was compelled to reverse his position.

The Democratic congress has failed wretchedly in every respect. . . .

Let "its stupid eyes now fixed on the November ballot boxes" be opened! We unhesitatingly call upon all intelligent citizens, regardless of party, to unite in determination to—

Boot the Democratic congress out of existence!

'A Spanish Patio' Feature of Artists' Guild Exhibition

Purple shadows crowd the pool,
  Flowers mock flowers in its deeps,
Over the sun kissed marble wall
  A spray of glossy ivy creeps—
And higher yet, above it all,
  A tassellated poplar peeps.

There is no beauty here too rare
  For eye to miss its wonder;
A bit of fairyland was dropped,
  Its gauze wings smote asunder,
And all its wealth of blossoms left,
  Because of some Pan's blunder.

Darker the shadows in the pool,
  Slowly the summer twilight creeps
From the magic wood where the nightingale
  His bubbling, liquid chorus weeps,
And in its frame of sun and flowers,
  See—a Spanish garden sleeps.

AT the exhibition of paintings which is now hung in the galleries of the Artists' guild there is no lovelier canvas than the water color by Edmund S. Campbell, "A Spanish Patio." In its wealth of suggestion, beauty of color, and warmth of feeling it far surpasses the sincerest effort of pen to describe. There are certain scenes that refuse themselves to print and of such scenes this is one.

There are in this exhibit more than in any other that at this moment comes to mind pictures which remind one either of definite other paintings or of work by different artists. For example, the large canvas by T. Bernstein, "In the Elevated," brings vividly before one's eyes the etching by Zorn that hangs in the Art institute. Zorn, it is true, has pictured his scene in an omnibus, but when all is said and done there is not much difference between the average omnibus interior at the evening hour and the elevated.

In both are found the same types of people. The woman loaded with bundles and the man buried in his paper, the young mother grasping a slippery child, and the young man that sits while others stand until (sometimes) public opinion forces him to his feet. The light is dim, split into partial brightness as the sudden sway of the vehicle sends the current of flame higher, or with a jolt and jerk a wire twists and the interior is plunged into nearly total darkness.

But though these pictures may be likened the one to the other, yet there are distinctive features that separate them for the conscientious witness. It is of such distinctions that the joy of the critic is made. But in this case it is a joy which this critic refuses, with the mild suggestion that a personal comparison of the two works will be of more value to the one interested than any amount of professional debate.

It is a wistful eyed, sober little boy that Pauline Palmer introduces to us as "Freckles." He is yellow haired, blue eyed, and dressed in a rough brown coat, under which, and lapping over, there is a red sweater that opens to show a blue shirt which repeats the blue of his eyes, and deepens again into the blue of the smooth background. The whistling boy of Whittier says himself over and over in this little fellow. One knows without being told that bare legs spell bliss, and that nothing really matters if only school could be out forever.

"Mary," by Anna L. Stacey, is the portrait of a charming, old fashioned girl in pale pink and blue. A green garden hat hangs on her back, caught by two blue streamers that, the one, is held in her left hand, and the other twines itself negligently about her arm. A rebellious curl lies tantalizingly abrupt against the soft edge of the pink ruffle which rings her soft neck. Above, two gray eyes twinkle in sympathy with some secret that the sober lips refuse to reveal.

"Sunshine and Shadow," by Irma Kohn, is easily recognized as being a scene straight from the quiet loveliness of Provincetown. It is very like the pictures by F. Gerhardt Schwarz that were shown last spring at the Art institute. A grass-grown village road winds down to the sleepy village, where the little cottages, white in the sun, cling and embrace and will not let it go. Probably the road ends there. Any other behavior on its part seems incomprehensible. For, when one has reached the best in life, why go further? At all events, the low roofed village slumbers like a cat in the sun and its silence is unbroken save where two comfortable, friendly women converse in undertones before starting, basket on arm, for market.

"Richland County Fair," by Eda Sterchi, is the country, too, but a different country—a country of merry-go-rounds and ice cream cones, of penny whistles and toy balloons. It is a jolly, noisy scene and excellently depicted.

Another type of picture is "The Lady of Shallot," by Jessie Arms Botke. Among a grove of slender trees where the grass is gay with young blossoms there walks a princess in robes of night blue. Beyond her are the ruffled waters of a dark lake, and beyond the lake rise the towers and marble walls of a great castle. It is an exquisite illustration for a child's story. But why, if the title has any concern with Tennyson's poem, does the fair lady roam the banks of the lake? Surely, always, she sat in her room, weaving and watching in her mirror for the knight to come riding to her deliverance. Even when she did rise—don't you remember—

"She left the web, she left the loom,
She took three paces across the room."

That, to the best of my memory, is as far as she got. Then why does she stroll, once more we ask, so carefree in this painting?

There are many more canvasses in this exhibit that are more than worth mentioning. Among them are "Woodland Path," by J. Eliot Enneking; "Morning on Jar Creek," by O. H. Travis, and "The Landmark," by Margaret Baker. It is a repesentative exhibit and one that should be visited.

Occasionally the camera does something so much more beautiful than anything any one ever expected that one must hold onee's breath in amazement. Of such a kind is the picture of water lilies made by William A. Guyton Jr., and to be seen with the other prints comprising his exhibit at the Chicago Camera club. The water lies so dark and so still that the mystery of the golden throated lilies does not yield itself to any explanation. Green pads, velvety smooth, float on the dark, still stream, and between and from them rise the blossoms. Each petal is perfect. The fragrant perfume that is the water lily's alone seems to float like incense from the yellow cups. It is a wonderful print.

The other pictures are interesting, but not particularly unusual. In several effects the mark of the Japanese work is plain. A gnarled tree against a stormy sky stands like a withered spirit of evil. There is a fairy dance of leaves, the tree yellow as a plum of fire in the sun, that is beautiful. A tumbling sea churned to white foam strikes again and again at the great blocks of stone that bar its passage to land. But of all these, and of the others left unmentioned, the most striking is the scene of the lilies.

Guy Arnoux, the clever French artist whose talent was so well represented at the recent exhibition of French war pictures at the Art institute, has illustrated a jolly little sketch of "Papa Joffre." The little book is in English and is an interesting account of the great general.

The most important exhibition of the year will open on Thursday at the Art institute. It is the thirty-first annual exhibit of American oil paintings and sculpture. It promises to be exceptionally fine.

The Palette and Chisel club, while it is preparing in a way for an exhibition which is to be opened shortly in its gallery, is turning its time and talent to the making of targets for the training camps. The targets are large, beautifully finished paintings. Some are of open country, meadows dotted with trees or lumpy, brown boulders, and others show streets with houses in various stages of ruin. There is a wide range of subject. The canvases are used by the soldiers without harm to them. Over each one that is erected on the rifle range there is placed another sheet of canvas with the points of interest of the picture marked clearly upon it. The men aim at the picture, but the bullets strike the canvas above. So the end is reached of training men to be excellent shots with the least amount of harm done to the work of these artists who are serving the government in this way. The Palette and Chisel club is working under the direction of the committee of pictorial publicity.

Save Heat and the Coal Will Save Itself

EVERY householder is wondering how he is going to get through the winter. Coal dealers are permitted to deliver only two-thirds of the amount used last year. The other third is uncertain. And the two-thirds would be enough if every householder would save heat by fitting his house with

Storm Windows and Storm Doors

The Director of Conservation of the Fuel Administration says: "The National Fuel Administration realizes that a large amount of coal can be saved by the installation of storm doors, storm windows" . . . "and advocates such installation the same as we do proper firing methods and proper attention to boilers."

Storm windows and storm doors keep out the cold and keep in the heat. They keep the house comfortable and healthful by permitting perfect ventilation at all temperatures, by eliminating cold floor drafts—and they make it possible to keep the house warm in the severest weather.

Storm windows and storm doors stop the heat leaks so effectively that a house equipped with them actually requires from one-third to one-half less coal—a saving that pays for them in one or two seasons.

If every house were equipped with storm windows and storm doors the fifty million tons of coal that must be saved would not be missed.

Your local lumber dealer or building-material dealer will give you complete information. See him now and be ready for winter.

DRAWN BY S. F. MAXWELL

IF THE EARTH BLEW UP.

THE question is sometimes asked, "What would happen if the earth were blown into a million fragments? Would the particles fly away into space like comets and never return?"

Not at all. Each piece of the original planet would become a smaller planet, and the whole swarm would continue to revolve about the sun. Once every year the pieces would all return to the exact spot where the explosion occurred, and attempt to unite again into a compact body. They would continue to do this until the friction and grinding which would necessarily ensue would scatter them into a loose swarm, after which each fragment would travel along as an independent member of the sun's family.

The sun is so much larger and more powerful than any of the other members of the solar system that the planets can be considered as mere dots in the sky, and the difference between a small rock and a body a few thousand miles in diameter is absolutely negligible in space, where distances are measured by millions of miles.

This is almost but not quite true of all the plants. The exception is Jupiter. Jupiter is so much larger than the other planets, as large as all the rest combined, that it influences the pull of gravity of the sun to a slight extent.

The time required for Jupiter to make a trip around the sun is eleven years three hundred and fourteen days, which is about two days less than it would be if Jupiter were a mere particle. As a result Jupiter can come up behind its tiny asteroid neighbors and sweep them in. There are great gaps torn in the ranks of the asteroids, and it is probable that Jupiter has gathered much of its great bulk from this source.

SLAMS OF LIFE
By J. P. McEvoy

"MORE TANDY!"

When I come home all wearied through
From grabbing off the daily sou,
What does my little daughter do?
She meets me at the outside door,
But doesn't kiss me as of yore,
Oh, no, she hollers o'er and o'er:
"More tandy!"

It's quite a blow I'd have you know
To fetch her up as she should go
And then to have her treat me so,
To have her flout my hug and kiss
And scorn the greetings that I miss
And always hear her yell like this:
"More tandy!"

It wouldn't be so bad, you see,
If but occasionally she
Would say them awful words to me,
But in the morning when I leave
As well as in the dewy eve
Them words at me she's sure to heave:
"More tandy!"

No fond goodbye, no waving hand,
No look that I might understand
As hinting of affection grand;
Just one bald phrase that's yelled at me
Each morn and eve by Dorothy,
It's all she knows that I can see,
"More tandy!"

The plan is simple; you send $19.50 with your order, use the battery 10 days, and if for any reason you are not satisfied, return it and your money will be refunded without argument. You are the sole judge.

These are brand new, highest quality batteries—never used and come direct to you from the manufacturer. Hundreds of war trucks in France are equipped with the same make and quality batteries—thousands of car owners claim it the best battery made. You receive the battery complete, ready to use. Don't wait! Car owners welcome this new plan—it offers a big saving; not a few cents, but several dollars.

Any battery station can give service on it; it is standard. Repair parts are always procurable. Why pay all the middlemen's profits? You pocket their profit, without risk. Order today. Send money order or draft for $19.50, state make and model of your car, and your battery will be expressed at once. Orders are filled in the order of their receipt, so don't put this off. Remember, you are given 10 days to finally decide.

VEEDOL
REDUCES FRICTION CARBON SEDIMENT
Lubricants Resist Heat

19 places where sediment damages your engine

WHEN your motor knocks and the car bucks at low speeds, when you find you are using up gas too rapidly, and the car begins to need frequent visits to the repair shop, the chances are that the cause of all this trouble is sediment in your oil.

The intense heat of the engine—from 200° to 1000° F. breaks down ordinary oil into black sediment that has no lubricating value. Ten hours fast running will often produce enough sediment to cause serious trouble.

Sediment is the most common cause of engine trouble. It crowds out good oil on the bearings and fast-moving parts. It breaks the film of oil which keeps the metal surfaces apart. Without this film of oil, they would quickly seize and cause serious damage.

Critical point of lubrication

On the cylinder walls, where this oil film is subjected to high temperatures, the slightest break causes trouble immediately. Power is lost, piston rings may be broken, cylinders scored, carbon forms rapidly and consumption of gas and oil increases rapidly.

In all the finely-fitted parts of your engine, friction and wear are caused by oil which contains large quantities of sediment. This is the hidden toll that is taken when you run on an oil which breaks down under heat.

The famous Sediment Test shows how the sediment problem has been solved. The left-hand bottle shows a sample of ordinary oil taken from the crankcase of an engine after 500 miles of running. A great part of its bulk has become sediment.

The right-hand bottle contains a sample of Veedol, the lubricant that resists heat, taken from an engine after an identical test. The amount of sediment is reduced 86%.

This heat-resisting property that reduces sediment so greatly, as compared with ordinary oils, is due to the use of Pennsylvania crude oil, and to the Faulkner process of refining, used exclusively in the manufacture of Veedol, the scientific lubricant.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

THE CONGRESSIONAL ELECTION.

The congressional campaign which is now closing began in the political doldrums. It ends under full sail. For months there was no interest in the contest. We have been so deeply preoccupied with the war, its responsibilities, and its sacrifices, that the people were, indeed, in a mood to "adjourn politics."

It is the ironic fact that Mr. Wilson quite unwittingly has changed all that. When he suddenly emerged from the luminous haze of our patriotic emotion to make a party appeal as untimely as it was ungenerous and disingenuous, a blast of wholesome revolt blew clear the atmosphere and we began to see that the American people cannot afford to adjourn politics at such a time, if adjourning politics means shirking thought upon critical issues or a supine acceptance of conditions which would not in other circumstances be tolerated. Especially Mr. Wilson's appeal has shocked members of what Mr. Wilson's chief organ, the New York World, calls "the ramshackle Republican party" into a consciousness of the situation their self-denying patriotism was obscuring. Today, thanks to the Wilson party appeal, Republicans remember their own party convictions and are determined that they shall play some part in the formulation of American policy, in the defense of American interest, in the direction of the American future. Republicans were forgetting their duty to make certain that the party of Washington, Hamilton, and Lincoln, representing, as it does, the principles which have been the strength of the republic in every great crisis, should not be wholly ejected, as Mr. Wilson has tried to eject it, from all share or participation in the shaping of our national destiny in this crisis. It is time they were reminded of this duty, and we believe they have been, most effectively.

In the statement put forth in reply to the Wilson appeal by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft, the American people are reminded that the next congress will serve from March 4, 1919, to March 4, 1921, and that in this period—

1. The war must be fought to unconditional surrender, unless this is achieved before.
2. The terms of world peace must be settled.
3. The Democratic administration, after expending billions of treasure and exercising more absolute power than any administration in our history, must give an account of its stewardship.
4. The change from war conditions to peace must be brought about with the least disturbance and the work of reconstruction must be broadly begun.

It is important that Republicans especially should ask themselves under what conditions and under whose control the problems of this period shall be worked out. Mr. Wilson's appeal has disentangled the mere issue of support for the war from the other issues involved in an unmitigated Democratic partisan leadership, and Republicans and independents of the north must now consider whether they will approve a continuance of congressional control in the hands of the solid south, which has ruthlessly exploited its power to sectional advantage, poured war money into the southern states, let the price of cotton, which is not only a war necessity but a peace necessity in the humblest cottage of the land, go skyward while sternly checking by law and by executive decree the prices of commodities produced in the north and west.

Republicans need not fear the charge of sectionalism for voting for a representation in congress which will legitimately protect the interest of their own region and its great industries both in the war period and in the reconstruction period. We have had an orgy of southern sectionalism, and, though we are invited to return Mr. Lewis because he has the confidence of the administration, we are unable to see where that confidence has benefited Illinois.

Believers in the protective tariff have also to consider that the tariff issue is going to be again one of the paramount issues in the international agreements which conclude this war and in the years when devastated Europe is straining every nerve and exploiting every resource to regain its economic prosperity.

The straight party issues which in one form or another have persisted throughout our history are of vital importance at this time. The spirit and convictions, the ideals of vital Americanism, of self-respecting independence, of prosperity through individual initiative and freedom, the doctrine of America first in war, first in peace, and first in our hearts, and the policies of our statesmen, all of which represent historic Republicanism, are now challenged by the powers that rule and would continue to rule at Washington. Republicans, we hope and believe, will realize this and meet the challenge of the hour. If we do not, we are, indeed, degenerate sons of our great political forebears and unworthy legatees of a glorious tradition.

THE TRIBUNE hopes the majority of the American people, which we believe is still Republican in the broad and permanent sense of the term, will set up a Republican congress to watch over the essential interests of the American republic in the tremendous readjustments of the world's affairs about to take place, to restore power to the great creative communities of the nation, among the first of which is our splendid commonwealth of Illinois, and to return the national policies to the channels in which the nation's prosperity and progress have run in the main from the beginning. No Republican will fear, no fair minded Democrat or independent will fear, that under such control congress will be anything but a pillar of strength to the president in every act or policy which will strengthen this country at home or abroad, in every act or policy that will further the war against military autocracy or sustain loyally the just claims of our allies or establish among the oppressed peoples of Europe the high principles which Republicans cherish as sincerely as Mr. Wilson and his party.

We are mindful of the fact that there are men in the Republican ranks who have not followed the high patriotic leadership of the party and its spokesmen. Their case we are disposed to leave to their constituents. It is for the voters to determine whether their records, when balanced against the need of their representation on the important party alignments of the future, call for their defeat.

The larger question with which we are concerned is the restoration of the spirit and principles of Republicanism to the counsels of the nation at perhaps the most critical hour of our history. That calls, in our belief, for the election of a Republican senate and house of representatives.

"YES" FOR ALL.

The vote on all five propositions submitted on the little ballot ought to be "yes," ought to be and must be if the citizens of the state will serve the best interests of the state.

If they defeat any one of the projects represented by these propositions they will do an injury to the state, which is themselves. The vote ought to be "yes" for the calling of the constitutional convention; "yes" for the adoption of the new traction scheme in Chicago; "yes" for the bonds which will give the state good roads; "yes" for the act which will put all banks under regulations; "yes" for the bonds which insure the completion of the boulevard link in Chicago.

Two of the questions relate to Chicago—the traction and boulevard issues; the other three affect the rest of the state as much as Chicago.

Two are of superlative importance—one to the state at large, the other to Chicago—the constitutional convention and the adoption of a new traction system.

Illinois cannot well proceed under its present organic law. It limits the play of government too much. It is antiquated. It is an ox cart law in a gasoline age. It is not related to the needs of the people but to their traditions. It restricts their government and keeps it impoverished in efficiency.

Good government is based upon electoral intelligence. Electoral intelligence is based upon electoral information. If the electorate cannot, under conditions imposed, be informed as to candidates offered for a multiplicity of elective offices, there can be no electoral intelligence; consequently there cannot be an intelligent decision in an election and consequently there cannot be a responsible, effective, intelligent government.

To bring elections within the probability and possibility of electoral information and intelligence the ballot must be shortened. It must be weeded. When it is shortened, when it presents fewer offices to be filled and those few of great responsibility, the foundation of effective government will be laid. Thereupon we can proceed to erect a government which will meet the demands of new times with the methods of government needed by the people.

Illinois cannot attain this simplicity in elections unless it obtains a new constitution. It cannot obtain a new constitution unless the citizens vote Nov. 5 authorizing the calling of a constitutional convention.

If they do so vote then we may hope to obtain the short ballot, more intelligently decided elections, more effective government, and a better state. Under a new constitution we may obtain equitable taxing laws. They now are inequitable, almost inoperative. The war has cost much and it will cost much more. The manner in which this state runs its government and collects, distributes, and expends tax money is an injustice to the people of the state and one which they ought not to be burdened with, especially in these times which are making such heavy demands upon resources and in the times to come which will continue to make heavy demands upon resources.

New taxing methods will come out of a new constitution. In Chicago we have the additional argument that only by a new constitution can the city get rid of the confusion and ineffectiveness of its multiplicity of obstructive municipal governments. We need consolidation. We have almost disastrous amplification.

The proposed traction ordinance will increase Chicago's rapid transit facilities 150 per cent. It will provide for the operation of five rapid transit cars for every two that are operated now. At present 80 per cent of the population has to ride on the surface lines; under the new arrangement 65 per cent of the people will be able to ride on subway and elevated lines.

The ordinance provides for the unification of the present competing systems under the management of a board of public trustees who are charged with the responsibility of furnishing service at cost. These trustees will be subject to the direction of the city council.

For nearly twenty years Chicago has taken no forward step in improving its transportation. In the meantime other cities, notably New York, have taken great strides forward in providing decent, comfortable, and expeditious transportation for its citizens. The new ordinance will give Chicago an opportunity to make up for its backwardness without compromising any important right the city now possesses. On the contrary, the new ordinance will facilitate, if anything, the possibility of complete municipal ownership. To reject the ordinance would be to keep the traction issue in politics without obtaining any relief from the present intolerable conditions.

Epitomized, the great virtues of the $60,000,000 good roads bond issue are these:

The taxpayers will not be called upon to contribute 1 cent directly; the whole transaction will be financed by the automobile license fund and the bonds, principal and interest paid in twenty-four years.

Illinois will have in the five years after peace is declared, 4,800 miles of fine highways, suitable for every form of vehicle traffic. More than 85 per cent of the population will be served.

More than $30,000,000 will be paid out in wages with preferential jobs for returned soldiers and sailors. This at a time when it is considered economic conditions will be at a low ebb.

It is pledged that none of the bonds will be offered for sale nor any construction work be started until after we have won the war. National interests are to come first. But it is imperative that the issue be adopted so that preliminary work may be completed.

In addition, voters should not fail to approve the $3,000,000 boulevard link bond issue, which will insure completion of that great project.

The banking act, which the people are asked to adopt, merely makes a bank a bank. Under our law at present it may be a rat hole. It will subject to state regulation all institutions which call themselves banks and which, as banks, accept the money of the people. The voter who could vote against this act ought to be examined for his peculiar interests in its defeat or for his sanity.

The wise voter's answer on all five propositions is "yes." A "no" can come only out of ignorance, prejudice, or peculiar self-interest.

PETROGRAD TODAY

BY ROBERT VAUCHER.

[Translated by Eleanor Jewett from L'Illustration, Paris.]

PETROGRAD, April-August, 1918.—As one walks leisurely through the large and spacious avenues of Petrograd one has the tragic feeling of being in a great abandoned city, which is dying of hunger and misery. During the first hours in the morning and from 6 o'clock on in the evening the main streets are deserted. One feels alone, horribly alone, in these royal surroundings, created for splendid processions and innumerable throngs.

The most important streets do not wake from their lethargy till toward 10 in the morning. On the quays of the Neva, near the French embassy, with its closed blinds, workmen and sailors embark in the motor boats of all kinds, which leave for the interior, for Lake Ladoga, or for some more vague destination.

The evacuation of Petrograd still continues. The factories, which for the most part have had to stop their activity because of the lack of raw materials or of capital, are revived again, only to close, one after the other. Workmen by the tens of thousands, thrown out on thte street, are dying of hunger. This is the victory of the proletariat promised by the Bolsheviki.

A little further on, below the Nicolas bridge, is the "tomb." It is by this name that the Quai des Anglais is known now. The entire Russian war fleet, cruisers, torpedo boats, destroyers, gun boats, countless little steamers, is moored there. The gray vessels, with their red flag at the stern, their decks thick with coal dust, their canvas sails spotted and torn, are sordid. The crews, idle, play the "balalaika," or dance with wide awake, jolly young persons, dressed, too, in the sailor costume, with its broad blue collar.

A group of sailors of doubtful appearance, with sallow faces framed in long locks of hair, their shirts opened far down the chest, wearing highly polished shoes, socks of sky blue, yellow gloves, and sporting a horse whip for a cane, leave a cruiser. They walk toward the Liteiny, where they will play for high stakes (sometimes as much as 20,000 rubles are on the table), in one of the modern gambling dens which have recently been established for the seamen of fashion and their sweethearts.

SINCE the Czecho-Slavs have been advancing in such a threatening manner the Red troops of Petrograd, who were the police (if that class of men can be called police), have been sent to the front, and the newly drafted men, armed with guns of the proper manipulation, of which most of them are deathly ignorant, guard the city.

I have just met two of them on duty at the Toutchkof bridge end. Seated quietly on a block of wood, their guns between their knees, they were reading the "Red Gazette" with such interest that they did not deign to change their posture even when I photographed them.

The Neva and its system of canals are clogged with countless boats half filled with water, which obstruct all traffic, to the absolute indifference of their owners, who never think of lifting them ashore. A proclamation has just been issued that from the first of August any boat which has not been taken out of the canal will be the property of any one who wishes to claim it, and who will carry it off. So you may see, every night, boys climbing down the banks of the river, sawing and cutting up the beams and hulls half awash in the green water, and making off at top speed with the pillaged wood.

The stealing of wood from the canals is in process of becoming a business in Petrograd, because fire wood is very scarce and fearfully expensive. A cord of wood today costs 180 roubles, instead of 6. This coming winter will be wretchedly hard to live through.

ALL the length of the Nevsky promenade and in the principal streets thousands of little dealers of every kind are lined up along the sidewalk or seated on the doorsteps of the houses. Some of them have a folding table on which to exhibit their wares, but the most of them have only a little box or plate.

What they sell is more or less than wretched—little pieces of bread, chocolate, eggs, omelettes, twenty or thirty tiny squares of sugar at a ruble a piece, a few gray biscuits so thin they are nearly transparent—of such is the stock in trade of these unfortunates who die of hunger before their merchandise. And, moreover, very often they are nothing more than salesmen; the candies, the little rolls of black bread, have been made by poor women, or even by women of position, who divide with the street merchant the small amount of profit he clears on his good days.

Many of the old officers have become peddlers so as not to die of starvation. Every evening at the corner of the Nevsky and the Vladimirsky you may see an elderly officer in a discolored and worn uniform selling newspapers. He is horribly thin, his skin is yellow and dry like parchment, his face is half hidden behind a black bandage that sags and lets wounds not yet healed over be seen. He has lost three fingers on his right hand and was wounded in the head by an exploding shell. The man can scarcely walk, yet he sells his papers without saying a word. Yesterday when I passed him with an actor from the Michel theater my companion recognized in him, this news vender, a former general, one of the habitués of the theater, one of the most brilliant officers in the late czar's suite. The height of irony, a German prisoner, costumed in a magnificent red uniform with white braid, just gave the old gentleman 40 kopeks, the price now of a paper in Petrograd.

Other officers, young still and strong, have betaken themselves to the jobs of porters and furniture movers. Very often they wear on their right sleeve the gold or silver insignia that mean they have been wounded in the present war. One meets them in the street pushing barrows that are hidden under their mountains of trunks or loading their wagons with baskets of rare articles, of crockeryware and of glass, which the various rather well off families wish taken to the pawnshops to raise money on.

On the Fontanka bridge I saw a sad and characteristic sight. On one hand there was a soldier of the Red guard getting his shoes shined in perfect comfort; on the other, blind soldiers, barefooted, held out their hands begging; a cripple, a man who had lost both his legs at the hips, decorated with the gold cross of St. Andre, whined for bread.

At the side of these former officers and reduced soldiers, in order to make their bare living in these days of disaster, one frequently sees students, scholars, wearing the black uniform of the old imperial universities, selling papers.

I was witness to a scene that proves that the trade of peddler is not without its risks. I was at a friend's house when a poor devil came in, his face gaunt, with drawn features, wearing clothes too large, but which still showed the marks of a good tailor. After a bit my friend recognized in this wretch one who before the revolution had been an old comrade of his, a former judge of the court at Petrograd, a man with a splendid career of thirty years back of him, who could speak five languages fluently, a student of the Universities of Paris, Heidelberg, and Oxford. Completely ruined, he had been forced to sell on the Nevsky the thin honey cakes which ladies gave to him. The day before he had been arrested by the Red guard, who took him to the guard house, and after having eaten his cakes told him he could go. To justify himself in the eyes of the women who had given him the pastries to sell he asked for a written statement that they had been taken from him. "If you want a statement," the soldier scoffed, "we'll let you cool your heels in prison." And the poor man had to go under the shouts of the Bolshevik soldiers, who were delighted to have played such a trick on a man of rank.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

CONTROLLING MALARIA.

RECENTLY one of the surgeons at Camp Pike was ordered to Washington. En route he dropped in to renew an old acquaintance. He told me that this year they had had very few flies and mosquitoes in Camp Pike up to the time he left. Camp Pike is located a few miles out of Little Rock, Ark. It is not far from the river, and a few years ago the section was highly malarial and flies and mosquitoes abounded.

I was somewhat prepared for this statement for I have watched the weekly malarial rate in southern camps and I have noted with pleasure that there has been very little malaria among our troops in training in Camp Pike and in the other camps as well.

In the second place I attended the last meeting of the Southern Medical association and heard a discussion of the work for mosquito and malaria control that was being done throughout the south and especially in the country surrounding the camps.

Malaria is proving one of the difficult problems of the war. The troops fighting in Mesopotamia and the Balkans suffer a good deal from it. When these troops are transferred to the western front they carry a good many malaria carriers with them, and they find conditions good for the spread of malaria, especially in the northern end of the line. The marshes of Belgium are becoming malaria infected to a very considerable degree. Napoleon is said to have said that if he could keep the stupid British in the swamps of Holland long enough malaria would fight the battle for him.

Our allies had some reason to fear that we would bring them a lot of malaria. They knew that the mosquitoes in northern France and Belgium were capable of carrying malaria once they became infected, and they knew that many of our troops would come from malarial regions. The government set out to correct this condition. Every malarial soldier is treated for malaria until he is completely cured. There is no "two or three doses of chill tonic" for those boys. Within the camps no mosquito breeding places are allowed. But this policy was not enough. It was supplanted by a policy for the zones around the cantonments. Around each contonment the public health service, state board of health, local board of health, and business men's association have coöperated in a campaign for mosquito suppression and malaria control. In many instances money was donated by the American Red Cross and the International Health board of both.

Mr. Le Prince says that in general five areas were considered as needing attention or control measures:

1. A strip of land one mile wide surrounding the cantonment. From this area mosquitoes could be expected to work their way under the brush to be carried by winds and to fly to the cantonments.
2. The inhabited area between the military reservation and the nearest town.
3. The nearby town in which the soldiers would spend their furlough periods.
4. A strip of land surrounding this town and from which mosquitoes would enter it.
5. Amusement parks and other places to which soldiers would go after sundown.

The problem of controlling malaria in these areas proved difficult. The great demand for labor to erect buildings and build the roads caused men to flock in from all sections of the south. Among these were large numbers of malaria carriers. It was certain that anopheles mosquitoes in such areas would be infected. The great demand for labor made it difficult to get ditchers and oilers. In spite of these handicaps the cantonments are nearly free from malaria and mosquitoes and the people around the camps have been healthier than ever before in their lives.

In the main the work of mosquito control consisted in minor drainage and oiling only. The grass and brush were cut away from stream banks. Ditches were straightened and cleaned, small ditches were dug, and waters were oiled. In many places a wide stream was trained to a narrow channel and thus the water itself kept clean and free from mosquito breeding places.

At Columbia, S. C., there was a large swampy area and there it was necessary to do some major drainage. At Quantico, Va., it was necessary to use tide gates to keep out the tide waters from the Potomac. At Alexandria, Va., it was necessary to control mosquito breeding conditions in two bayous from boats as was done in Panama.

The season for infection with malaria for 1918 has passed. From this time mosquitoes do not bite, or rarely so, and those that do bite are not liable to infect. When the nights become cool malarial parasites do not mature in mosquitoes.

Every one will agree that malaria and mosquitoes have been practically controlled in the training camp and for an established zone surrounding them at least so far as 1918 is concerned. No one will hesitate to predict that conditions in 1919 will be better than those in 1918. Can we persuade some communities to follow the example set by these extra cantonment zones? If it is a good thing for the soldiers why would it not be profitable for the men working to support the soldiers, to raise food and clothes for them and to make munitions for them?

Dr. W. S. Leathers estimates that 150,000 die each year from malaria. Each year about 3,000,000 people have malaria. Mr. Van Dine conducted an investigation of the time lost from malaria on a large plantation in Louisiana. This place was worked by seventy-four families, or a total of 299 individuals. Mr. Van Dine found that had no time been lost from malaria sixty families, embracing 240 individuals, could have worked this place. A plantation that could release fifty-nine of its 299 laborers and still cultivate all of its land would not have much labor trouble.

Malaria lowers the efficiency of those who are infected by it. A man who has chills every two or three weeks will not do a full day's work at any time between his chills. There is no use talking about it, he just cannot do it. In this way there is a loss that is quite equal to that from time lost. Suppose we say that forty-five families, embracing 180 individuals, could have manned this place provided none of them had malaria—a saving of almost half the force now required. And finally Dr. Leathers said that land which is now selling at $20 to $40 an acre would sell for ten times as much if there were no malaria.

Dr. Leathers' appeal was on the economic advantage of being free from malaria. Dr. H. R. Carter of the United States public health service made even a stronger appeal. He said that malaria uncontrolled, obliterated the white race absolutely, that "you will find no place where malaria is really prevalent in which the white race is not replaced by the other races if they have access to it. That is true of no other disease." He contrasts malaria with yellow fever, which, while it taxes the white race heavily, does not kill it out or wear it down to worthlessness. And also with tuberculosis, which is much harder on the colored race than on the white. He says that one dollar spent in controlling malaria will bring in greater returns than five dollars spent for the control of any other disease. "Where malaria prevails the white race cannot thrive."

Dr. Carter's opinion is worth considering, for he is no gosling in the game. In the elimination of yellow fever Carter's work ranks with that of Gorgas, Reed, Keane, and White. In planning for Cuba Gorgas based his procedures upon work done in Cuba by Reed, and work done in New Orleans by Carter. Carter was a main cog in the Panama machine. He was one of the commission headed by Gorgas which the International Health board sent to South America to work out a plan for wiping yellow fever from its last stronghold. For forty years he has been a leader in controlling tropical diseases and his opinions carry weight among epidemiologists all over the world.

The white race has gone to a good deal of expense and trouble to maintain itself in all parts of the United States. Its civilization is older and better than that of others. It claims society would go back in any part of the country in which it might perchance lost out. It has gone to great lengths in upholding this conviction. Yet more money is expended on the maintenance of a single opera season than is expended by governmental agencies in the control of malaria in the entire country during ten years.

In the list of papers presented before the Southern Medical association there were several which told of how malaria had been eliminated or controlled in different sections of the world. Dr. Hoffman told of many parts of Europe, Asia, and Africa, where it had been brought under control. Dr. Campbell told of how that section of Illinois around Clinton had been freed from malaria and what it meant to the value of the land around there. Dr. White told of the increased value of the land in southeastern Missouri as malaria came under control through major drainage, and said, furthermore, that the undrained swamp lands in this country now intensely malarial would feed the world could they be drained, made healthy, and brought under cultivation. Drs. Bass, Leathers, Deuvaux, Garrison, and Messrs. Van Hovenberg, Le Prince, Johnson, and Smith told of places in this country where malaria was being eradicated, or had been eradicated, without expending very much money. No one can say that money should not be spent in controlling malaria because the task is impossible of accomplishment. Too many people know by experience the contrary.

The next six months is the season in which a dollar spent in controlling malaria goes furthest. Nobody will be infected. No mosquitoes will bite. If every person now infected could be completely cured, malaria would be at an end. The cost of completely curing the leftovers, the incompletely cured malaria carriers, would not be great.

WHISKY NOT "FLU" CURE.

Miss E. L. M. writes: "I do welfare work and since the influenza epidemic have been giving my time to aiding in checking the malady. When giving advice with regard to fresh air, wholesome food, and abstinence from alcoholic drinks a man handed me the inclosed clipping, saying that he was going to get whisky for his sick ones. Some months ago I noticed that at the National Medical association, Chicago, the association went on record as opposing alcohol in any form for internal medical treatment. [a] Did the press quote the association accurately? [b] Does the clipping mean that whisky is favored by army physicians for influenza? [c] Dr. Emerson of New York in a bulletin was quoted a season or so ago as condemning use of alcohol for pneumonia treatment. Do you and other leading physicians condemn its use for pneumonia also? [d] Would I be safe in quoting medical science as condemning whisky for treatment in pneumonia cases, the inclosed clipping to the contrary notwithstanding? Kindly answer immediately, as it is urgent that I have some reliable backing in the advice I give."

REPLY.

[a] The so-called statement of the association was made by Dr. A. D. Bevan in his presidential address. He was correctly quoted by the press.

[b] (The clipping is a special wire from Washington, stating that one army camp had used fifty-seven barrels of whisky in the treatment of pneumonia during the epidemic of influenza and that during the last week or ten days there has been a steady flow of whisky to the army hospitals.) I have made some inquiry. I am informed that army and navy surgeons are not recommending whisky as a preventive of or a cure for influenza or pneumonia. I have heard stories about carloads of whisky being shipped to this or that camp. I have not been able to verify any of these stories. I think they are on a par with the story about doctors being shot for spreading influenza and other wild and woolly yarns. I have questioned a good many doctors and others about the medicinal use of whisky in influenza and pneumonia. The other day I found a man who advocated it. He was a janitor in an apartment building.

SWEDISH CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—[To the Friend of the People.]—When I registered Oct. 15 last I was told I was not a citizen. I was born in Chicago; when 5 years old was taken to Sweden by my mother, remaining in that country sixteen years. I came back to the United States when I was about 21 and have been voting as a citizen for the last nine years. I passed an examination for military service while in Sweden. My father did not have his citizenship papers when I was born. Am I a subject of the United States or of Sweden? E. M. S.

There is no question that under the constitution of the United States you were born a citizen, but it is also true that under the Swedish law you were born a citizen of Sweden, and if you remained in Sweden until after you arrived at the age of 21 years without asserting your American citizenship and accepted military duty without protest, it seems clear that you thereby elected to be a Swedish subject and therefore cannot claim the citizenship which you might otherwise have claimed by reason of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States. We suggest that you call at the office of the chief naturalization examiner in the federal building and state your case.

CITIZENSHIP OF SON.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I came to this country a widow with a 5 year old son. When he was 12 years old I married a naturalized American citizen. I had always understood that minor children became naturalized in such manner. My son was to receive a commission as lieutenant, but upon giving the facts of his birth and my marriage to an American citizen he was informed that the marriage did not confer citizenship upon him, and that, therefore, he cannot receive the commission. How can I established his citizenship? MRS. C. O. K.

You should secure a copy of your husband's naturalization record, a copy of the record of your marriage, and then make an affidavit stating the date and place of your son's birth, the date he arrived in the United States, the date of marriage to your second husband, and the date and court of the second husband's naturalization, thus showing that your son is a citizen under the provisions of section 2171 R. S., U. S., by reason of your naturalization through your marriage to your second husband.

LEGAL ACTION NECESSARY.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A man separated from his wife for over six months, paying regular weekly alimony, is seeking a divorce on the grounds of incompatibility. Is a divorce taken for granted after a long period of separation, or must there be legal proceedings? In the event of taking this into court can the husband obtain an absolute divorce on his own statements, or must the wife be present? F. T. L.

The ground you state is not a cause of divorce in this state.

Two years' continuous desertion without fault of the husband is sufficient ground for divorce.

Court proceedings must be had.

If you intend to institute proceedings for divorce you will have to employ an attorney, and he will advise as to details.

PROOF OF DIVORCE.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband sued for a divorce Sept. 23, 1918. I have heard that the divorce was granted, but received no papers, and upon calling up my husband's lawyer he said I was to pay $5.60, which I refused to do. Am I not entitled to papers without charge, and if not, how may I be sure that the divorce was granted? MRS. E. S.

Go to the clerk of the court in which the divorce was granted and order a certified copy of the decree, the fees for which will be $1. If the divorce was granted in this county the clerk is on the fourth floor of the county building.

DOES NOT AFFECT LEASE.

La Grange, Ill., Oct. 30.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—On account of the prevailing epidemic our premises have been closed up and probably will be for a month or over. This entails much loss to us, but should we also (being through no fault of our own prohibited by the authorities from such use of our premises) be forced to pay rental for space we are disbarred from? C. A. P.

If the performance of none of the material conditions of the lease has been rendered illegal, as is probably the case, you are not excused. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

THE GREEK CAUSE.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Permit me to thank you for the editorial entitled "The Greek Cause."

As far as I could make out the cardinal point of inference was that irrespective of the great past the Greek of today lives for the present. He draws only his inspiration from the past.

The wounds of the Greek nation were still open from the Balkan wars when the great struggle broke out. Then the question was put before the nations, "Where do you stand?" The answer was prompt. Turkey and Bulgaria answered in one way; Serbia, Roumania, and Greece in another. If this had been a simple war between merely economic interests, the answer might have been different. But since it was a war in which principles and convictions were involved, Greece could make but one answer.

While yet all of the then neutral nations were mere spectators of the great strife, Venizelos saw that there could be no safety in neutrality while the beast was loose. Therefore he proposed to the allies that Greece should enter the war unconditionally. Of course we all know what followed. Sir Edward Grey, being hopelessly outmaneuvered by the subtle Bulgarians, did not accept the offer. Later the Germanophile king managed to delay the entrance of Greece into the war.

Since then, time and time again, the fortune of war turned against the allies. The power of the Teutons reached its height, nations were crushed, and the hopes of the allies waned. But this did not shake a bit the indomitable confidence of Venizelos. As another Demosthenes, who when he delivered his speeches against Philip, said that an empire could not be founded upon falsehood and crime, Venizelos repeated that it was impossible for the central powers to win.

The Greek race has suffered grievously. In Asia Minor about a million Greeks have perished, and where the bloody hand of the cruel Turk did not reach, the atrocious and treacherous Bulgar finished the work. In Seres, a town in Greek Macedonia, which was occupied by the Bulgarians, out of 30,000 population only 4,000 were left.

German gold and promises bought Bulgaria and Turkey. German propaganda put Russia out of the war. But there was something in the Greek race that could be neither bought nor crushed. It was the Greek's traditional passion for liberty and hatred for autocratic rule, which is expressed better in the words of Demosthenes, who said that every king and despot is a foe of freedom.

Today the Greeks are fighting on the Macedonian and on the western front. The Greek army played an important rôle in the subjugation of Bulgaria. In America one-fourth of all the Greeks are serving under the Stars and Stripes, and by the new treaty between the government of the United States and that of Greece all Greeks of military age residing in the United States may be called to the colors.

In view of these facts, the Greeks ask no more than the fulfillment of their legitimate national aspirations.

SPIROS SOTIRAKOS.

FOR A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In 1912 the state of New York, having a per capita wealth of $2,626 and a population of about 9,000,000, by a system of classified taxation, raised a revenue of $46,848,000,000, or $5.20 per capita.

Pennsylvania, with a population of 7,665,691 and a per capita valuation of $1,939 collected the sum of $35,638,013, or $4.65 per capita.

Illinois, which had a population of 5,638,591, and a property valued at $2,650 per head, derived from taxation only the sum of $14,829,591, or $2.63 per capita.

In New York and Pennsylvania real estate is reserved for local taxation only; while in Illinois it carries the burden of over 70 per cent of all taxes.

In Illinois, the entire expenditure for public schools amounts to 22 cents on the hundred dollars' worth of property. Idaho, the record state, spends 48 cents per $100, while North Carolina, the booby prize state, spends only 17 cents per the same amount of property for public education. In Illinois, we are only 5 cents above the low record, but we are 26 cents below the highest. But until our tax system is revised so that we can raise a larger revenue, obviously we cannot give a more decent support to the schools.

The total state fund for public common schools in Illinois is about $4 per scholar. In California, the state levies an advalorem tax of 3 per cent, and an additional $13 per scholar. In Washington, the state raises $10 for each child of school age, and further requirements are met by local taxation.

In Illinois many teachers are trying to feel, look, and act professional, on less money than factory operatives receive. If any profession requires professional attitudes in those engaged in it, it is that of teaching. But manifestly, such attitudes are unattainable on these low wages. Where public education falls behind, the level of culture in the state is sure to decline. And the only way in which Illinois can avert this fate is to revise the tax system, so that enough money can be devoted to the schools to support them fittingly.

The first step in this direction is to vote for a constitutional convention on Nov. 5.

The Circulation of

The Sunday Tribune

Now Exceeds

700 000

The net paid circulation of The Sunday Tribune, now in excess of 700,000, is the highest in its history. Although selling for 10c in the country and 7c in Chicago, the circulation is now greater than when the price was 5c everywhere. No newspaper in the United States selling at the price of The Sunday Tribune has ever attained a circulation as high as 700,000.

That is why Tribune want-ads produce results to advertisers which seem almost miraculous.

Business men confronted with a shortage of "man-power" use Tribune want-ads to "fill the gap" with woman-power. Thousands and thousands of women and girls are starting to work in offices and factories for the first time in their lives. They want to earn money in the absence of husband and brother serving the colors. They want to do their bit.

If you want preferred women and girl workers, advertise in the newspaper that preferred readers depend upon—The Tribune. Make The Tribune's enormous circulation work for you and your business.

News and Comment of MOTORDOM Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER

Keeping the Cold Outside the Car

BY HIGH SPEED.

UNLESS adequate preparation be made for driving in cold weather it is likely to be, as every one knows, just one north pole experience after another. While there are a number of things which need attention, no other is so important immediately as the installation of devices for keeping the driver and passengers warm even in an open car fitted with side curtains.

Now is the time to get ready, because as the colder weather comes on it will be more difficult to get help in installing the heating device, and further it is probable that the prices of the contraptions will be higher. Don't wait until zero weather arrives, but install the heater now, since it need not be put into use until it gets cold.

Those who can afford it should by all means fit some sort of a winter top to the open car, or, if not that, the inexpensive side curtain holders, so that the curtains will open with the doors. Inclose the car as best you can with the money you have to spend. The ideal is a permanent top with removable side windows; try to approach that ideal.

There are ever so many types of heaters on the market to keep driver and passengers comfortable. There are electric heaters, heaters which use the exhaust gas, and in another class all those using special fuels which burn like wood or coal.

The electric heaters are out of the question when economy is considered, because the average type uses entirely too much current. Also the initial cost of these heaters is greater than that of the others.

The heaters using briquettes are simply the ones which your grandfather used in his carriage. They are certainly efficient enough, but when the first cost and ease of operation and control of the exhaust type is considered, it is hard to see why any one would want any other type.

The exhaust heater, of which there are dozens of designs on the market, is usually cheap in first cost, costs nothing to operate, and may be controlled so that any heat is maintained.

It may seem like a simple matter to install one of these heaters, but very often the driver finds that after the installation has been made the passengers are likely to be asphyxiated because of the presence of exhaust gas in the compartment. In some cases the heaters are of cheap construction and allow some gas to escape, in other cases the heater is all right, but the installation is poor.

The car owner will find many types on the market which may be placed in two general classes—the type in which the heater forms the footrest and that in which the heater is mounted on the floor either flush or above it. The question of which design to take is not so important. Get a reliable make, so you won't be bothered with gas leakage.

While on the subject of heaters, it might be well to give some advice about garage heaters, for no doubt the car and garage will be taken care of at the same time. Whether the car lies idle, is used part or all the time, a garage heater is essential.

For those who do not wish to spend much money, the market now affords kerosene heaters properly designed so there will be no trouble from fires or explosions. Then there is the coal heater which feeds automatically, so the owner does not have to attend to it as he does the furnace in his home. Gas heaters also may be had in a variety of forms.

Before a heater is purchased the owner should find out about the local restrictions on the use of certain types, especially the kerosene burners. He also should arrange to place the heater away from inflammable liquids or places in the garage from which vapors may arise.

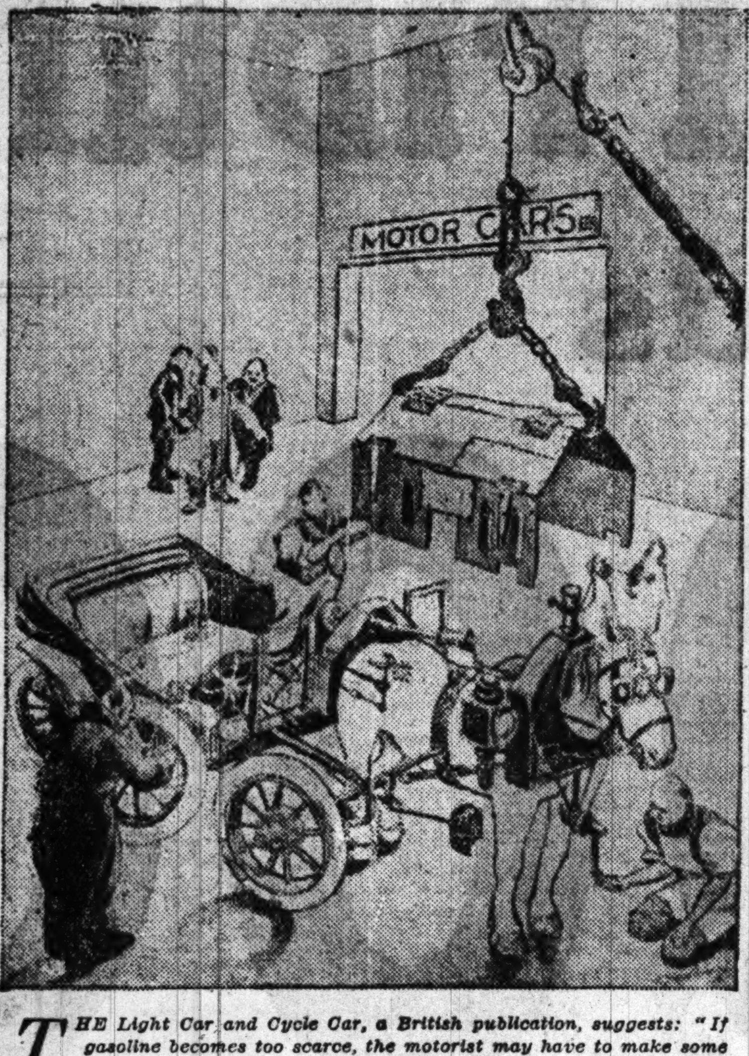
There are some types of heaters on the market which perform a double function—that of keeping the water in the radiator warm by heating and circulating it and also heating the garage. I do not believe the results to be had from these types can compare with a well designed coal or gasoline burner with but the single function—heating the garage to a sufficient temperature to keep the water from freezing.

Bear in mind that a heater is essential for many reasons aside from keeping the water from freezing. If the garage is kept at a uniform temperature there is little chance of the paint cracking because of sudden changes. If it is kept at even, warm temperature it retains a certain amount of elasticity.

WILL IT COME TO THIS?



THE Light Car and Cycle Car, a British publication, suggests: "If gasoline becomes too scarce, the motorist may have to make some of the above very simple changes. By using a little imagination he will never miss his car. Note the working of the starter, accelerator, steering gear, and brake."

IT'S ALL OVER BUT THE VOTING

FEW measures have been so fully explained to the voters who must pass upon them as has the $60,000,000 bond issue for paved roads in Illinois. Few have been so simple or so universally approved.

If every one who is for it takes the trouble to mark his little ballot on Tuesday, there will be no doubt of the result. The only possible danger is thoughtlessness or neglect.

Motorists, above all, should be the first to indorse the measure, for they will reap the most immediate and tangible benefits of the new road system. There is no question as to where the owners of the state's 385,000 automobiles stand, but even if every one of them registers a favorable vote it will not be enough.

The bond issue must have a majority of all the votes cast at the election—not simply a majority of those cast on the good roads issue. Every vote will be needed.

Just DON'T FORGET!

NOTES

After more than thirty years of active service W. C. Anderson has resigned as president of the Anderson Electric Car company, builders of the Detroit electric. He is succeeded by M. S. Towsen of Cleveland, formerly general manager of the company's plant.

And now here's the truck saleswoman. Harry Fowler of the Fowler Motor Truck company has organized a squadron of ten of 'em, who will go forth tomorrow to line up prospects for the Truxton, one of the "truck unit" attachments. They spent a few days last week learning what truck units are, and now, says Fowler, know more about the subject than he does.

THE EXPERTS SAY—

When irregular firing that is accentuated when the engine is running slowly occurs it may be assumed that there is a leak somewhere between the carburetor and the combustion chamber.

Physicians tell us that much of the fatigue incident to long trips in the motor car is induced by side shaking. The best cure for this is a pillow with feathers. Try it on your next long tour.

Owners who have been using five dry cells for ignition in summer will find it a good plan to couple on two more cells for cold weather use. Since the cold subtracts noticeably from the power of these cells.

Need a New Battery?

The Willard trademark branded into the side of the battery tells the whole story. For that mark is the sign of the Still Better Willard with Threaded Rubber Insulation.

It is the outward and visible sign of the most important storage battery improvement in years.

It stands for durable, Threaded Rubber Insulation—for a battery in which the need of re-insulation is indefinitely postponed.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

Facts and a Word of Warning

Cheerful compliance with all Government requests has been and will continue to be our first consideration. As soon as materials on hand are exhausted the Paige will go on a 100 per cent War basis.

Production is therefore extremely limited and the small number of cars available for the market are being carefully apportioned among our dealers.

Very soon the production and distribution of these cars will cease altogether. For that reason we must ask your indulgence and your sympathetic understanding.

Included in our remaining manufacturing schedule are a limited number of Paige Sedans and Coupés. These are cars which we commend to your special consideration as peculiarly war-time investments.

Paige Sedans and Coupés offer wonderful possibilities for service. In addition to the comfort and protection assured under all conditions of weather, they are backed by Paige character. You can bank on their mechanical excellence and economy of operation.

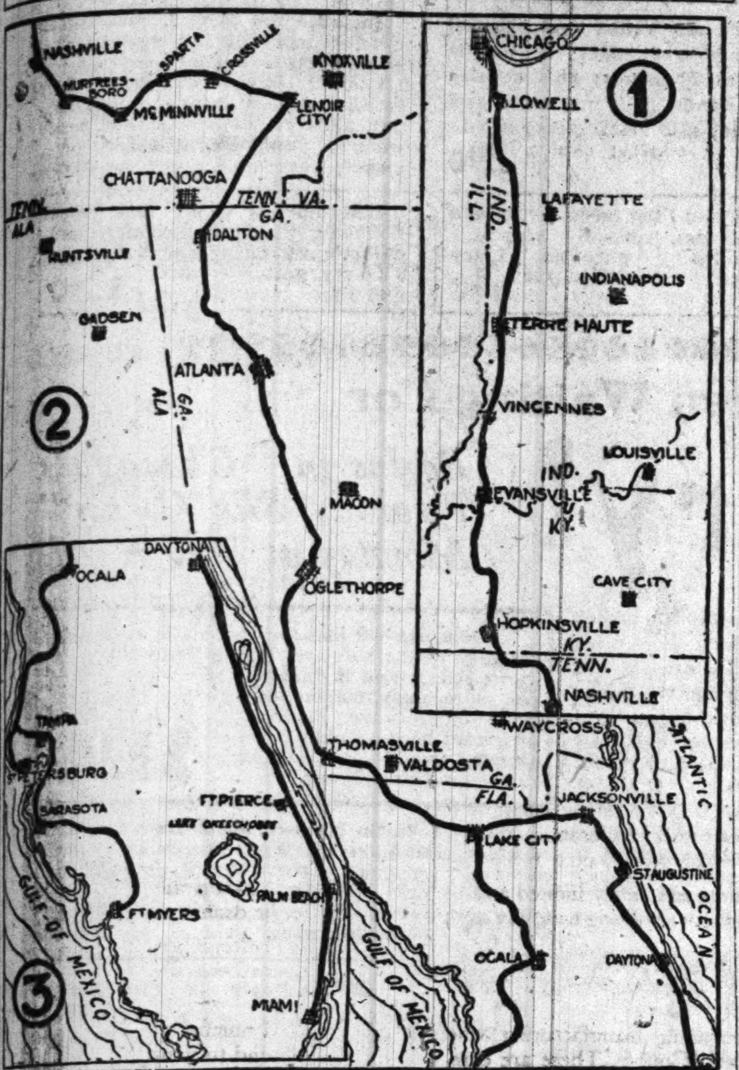
A BETTER WAY TO FLORIDA



CHANGING road conditions in the south—improvement work on some roads during 1918, and deterioration on others—have altered considerably the problem of driving to Florida from Chicago and the middle west generally. Scout cars for the Automobile Blue Book have covered the territory thoroughly in recent weeks, and report that the route indicated in the map is now the best possible combination of roads to the south.

The new itinerary provides a more direct drive to Nashville than the old way through Indianapolis and Louisville. Beyond Nashville it avoids the Huntsville-Gadsden route entirely (the roads are bad this fall south of Huntsville and between Gadsden and Rome) and swings around to the north of Chattanooga over a new and better course.

The tourist does not enter Chattanooga at all—though he may easily do so if he desires. Macon likewise is avoided, the roads into the city being in poor condition, and a western route south of Macon keeps the traveler out of the troublesome sand between Waycross and Jacksonville.

Here is a complete list of the cities and towns through which one passes, grouped to show the progressive stages of the tour, with mileage indicating distances from Chicago:

CHICAGO, South Chicago, Hammond [Ind.], Dyer, Kreitzburg, Brunswick, Lowell, Schneider, Lake Village, Morocco, Ade, Brook, Foresman, Goodland, Fowler, Rainsville, Attica, Rob Roy, Veedersburg, Yeddo, Kingman, Tangier, West Union, Armiesburg, Lyford, Tuna, TERRE HAUTE—201 miles.

Sullivan, Paxton, Carlisle, Oaktown, Busseron, Bruceville, Vincennes, St. Thomas, White River Ferry, Hazleton, Patoka, Princeton, Fort Branch, Haubstadt, Warrenton, Stringtown, EVANSVILLE—321 miles.

Howell, Ohio River Ferry, Henderson [Ky.], Weaverton, Cairo, Poole, Wanamaker, Dixon, Nebo, Manitou, Madisonville, Earlington, Barnsley, Nortonville, Crofton, Kelly, Hopkinsville, Clarksville [Tenn.], Adams, Corbin, Cedar Hill, Springfield, Crunk, Joelton, White's Creek, NASHVILLE—512 miles.

La Vergne, Murfreesboro, Readyville, Braxton, Woodbury, McMinnville, Rock Island, Quebeck, Doyle, Sparta, Derossett, Pleasant Hill, Crossville, Crab Orchard, Rockwood, Kingston, Lenoir City, Tennessee River Ferry, Loudon, Philadelphia, Sweetwater, Niota, Athens, Riceville, Sanford, Charleston, Cleveland, Dalton [Ga.], Resaca, Calhoun, Adairsville, Cassville, Cartersville, Allatoona, Acworth, Kennesaw, Marietta, Smyrna, ATLANTA—867 miles.

Hapeville, Mountain View, Jonesboro, Orrs, Hampton, Pomona, Griffin, Orchard Hill, Milner, Barnesville, Culloden, Mussells, Roberta, Zenith, Fort Valley, Marshallville, Montezuma, Oglethorpe, Andersonville, Americus, Smithville, Adams, Leesburg, Albany, Baconton, Camilla, Pelham, Meigs, Ochlocknee, Thomasville, Dixie, Quitman, Nankin, Cherry Lake [Fla.], Madison, Lee, Ellaville, Falmouth, Live Oak, Houston, Wellborn, LAKE CITY—1,234 miles.

Watertown, Olustee, Saunderson, Macclenny, Baldwin, Whitehouse, JACKSONVILLE—1,295 miles.

St. John's River Ferry, Bayard, Woodland, St. Augustine, Elkton, Spuds, Deep Creek, Hastings, Byrd, Espanola, Bunnell, Newmark Grove, Ormodn, Ortona, Seabreeze, DAYTONA—1,403 miles.

Port Orange, New Smyrna, Oak Hill, Mims, Titusville, Indian River City, Sharpes, City Point, Cocoa, Rockledge, Eau Gallie, Melbourne, Hopkins, Malabar, Valkaria, Grant, Micco, Sebastian, Wabasso, Quay, Toledo, Gifford, Vero, Oslo, St. Lucie, Fort Pierce, White City, Walton, Eden, Jensen, Stuart, Port Sewall, Salerno, Hobe Sound, Likely, Jupiter, Prairie, Riviera, North Palm Beach, PALM BEACH—1,605 miles.

Delray, Yamato, Bocaratone, Deerfield, Pompano, Colahatchee, Fort Lauderdale, Dania, Hallandale, Ojus, Fulford, Arch Creek, Lemon City, Buena Vista, MIAMI—1,673 miles.

For the west coast, follow the above route to Lake City, Fla., then pick up this itinerary:

Mason, High Springs, Alachua, Burnetts Lake, Hague, Gainesville, Wacahoota, Lisman, Flewellens, Kirkwood, Tacoma, Micanopy, Evinston, McIntosh, Reddick, Zuber, Ocala, Dunnellon, Holder, Hernando, Inverness, Floral City, Brooksville, Aripeka, Hudson, New Port Richey, Elfers, Tarpon Springs, Wall Springs, Sutherland, TAMPA—1,466 miles.

Ybor City, Oak Park, Ruskin, Rubonia, Manatee, Sarasota, Fruitville, Miakka, Pinelevel, Arcadia, Buckingham, FORT MYERS—1,620 miles.

Standers, Walkers, "Gets-It" for Corns

World Has Never Known Its Equal.

"What will get rid of my corn?" The answer has been made by millions—there's only one corn-remover that you can bank on, that's absolutely certain, that makes any corn on earth peel right off like a banana skin—and that's magic "Gets-It." Tight shoes and dancing even when you have a corn need not disturb you if you apply a few drops of "Gets-It" on the corn or callus. You want a corn-peeler, not a corn-fooler You don't have to fool with corns—you peel them right off with your fingers by using "Gets-It." Cutting makes corns grow and bleed. Why use irritating salves or make a bundle of your toe with tape or bandages? Why putter and still have the corn? Use "Gets-It"—your corn-pain is over, the corn is a "goner" sure as the sun rises.

"Gets-It," the guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. M'f'd by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

No New Cars, but Still They're Busy

AFTER more than four years, during which there have been practically no new motor cars built for private use, and despite the fact that the use of motor cars, new or old, is strictly limited to work in connection with the prosecution of the war, the English motor car trade still survives. It not only survives but appears to be doing a satisfactory business in second hand machines, according to an investigation made recently by the Car, a British motoring magazine.

In England the use of cars outside army and navy officers and those directly connected with the carrying on of the war is limited to doctors and to workers on munitions, with the Red Cross and other organizations intimately related to the war Notwithstanding this narrow circle of trade the dealers are eager to obtain cars and are accustomed to send a man to inspect a car offered for sale 100 miles or, in exceptional cases, even 500 miles.

Cars built in 1914, the last year in which cars were sold to the general public, are still bringing their list prices of that year and sometimes much more. Cars of years earlier than 1914 bring ordinarily about what they did in 1914, with a tendency to rise. In other words, four years of war have not changed the prices of cars, though the cars have steadily grown older.

Questions and Answers

Kindly give me the best automobile route from Champaign, Ill., to Chillicothe, O. I would like to go through Indianapolis if it is not too far out of the way. H. M. MORRIS, Clinton, Ill.

Go east through Danville, Covington (Ind.), Veedersburg, Waynetown, Crawfordsville, Linnsburg, Jamestown, adn Brownsburg into Indianapolis. Then follow the National road through Greenfield, Dunreith, and Cambridge City to Richmond and continue, leaving the National road, through Eaton (O.), Dayton, Xenia, and Washington Courthouse to Chillicothe.

I have a four cylinder car which uses a lot of gas and cannot pull up a hill without stalling. The spark is good, but the engine will miss for a while, and then it will be all right again. K. B., Chicago.

A clear case of too rich a mixture. Cut down the proportion of gasoline fed by the carburetor, so as to thin the mixture, and your troubles should vanish.

Please print the principal towns through which we would pass from Geneseo, Ill., to Hutchinson, McLeod county, Minn. W. W. WARNER, Geneseo, Ill.

Moline, Davenport [Ia.], De Witt, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo, Charles City, Austin [Minn.], Owatonna, Waseca, Mankato, Le Sueur, Glencoe, Hutchinson.

Can alcohol or kerosene be used with the ordinary carburetor and decent results be obtained? Take a Holley carburetor, for instance. C. M. L., Chicago.

You cannot use alcohol with any degree of success, but kerosene can be handled after the engine has become heated. You must start on gasoline. Try a mixture of two-thirds gasoline and one-third kerosene as an experiment.

Please tell me how tight to adjust a fan belt. Ought it to bind so that it is hard to move? HENRY UPTON, Elgin, Ill.

Certainly not. It should be just tight enough to prevent undue slippage in operation.

Spanish-American War

Benjamin Harrison's Appeal—

"If the word goes forth that the people of the United States are standing solidly behind the president, the task of the peace commissioners will be easy, but if there is a break in the ranks, Spain will take fresh hope, and a renewal of hostilities, more war, may be necessary to secure to us what we have already won."

William McKinley's Appeal—

"This is no time for divided councils. If I would have you remember anything I have said it would be to remember at this critical hour in the nation's history we must not be divided. The triumphs of the war are yet to be written in the articles of peace."

[ADVERTISEMENT]

Spanish-American War

Theodore Roosevelt's Appeal—

"Remember that, whether you will or not, your votes this year will be viewed by the nations of Europe from one standpoint only. They will draw no fine distinctions. A refusal to sustain the president this year will, in their eyes, be read as a refusal to sustain the war and to sustain the efforts of the peace commission to secure the fruits of war. Such a refusal may not inconceivably bring about a rupture of the peace negotiations. It will give heart to our defeated antagonists."

If Then, Why Not Now?

President Wilson Appeals to You—

1898 1918

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—President Wilson appealed to the voters of the United States today to elect Democrats to congress. Following is the president's appeal:

"My fellow countrymen:

"The congressional elections are at hand. They occur in the most critical period our country has ever faced or is likely to face in our time. If you have approved of my leadership and wish me to continue to be your unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad, I earnestly beg that you will express yourselves unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both the senate and house of representatives.

"I am your servant and will accept your judgment without cavil, but my power to administer the great trust assigned me by the constitution would be seriously impaired should your judgment be adverse, and I must frankly tell you so, because so many critical issues depend upon your verdict. No scruple of taste must in grim times like these be allowed to stand in the way of speaking the plain truth.

"I have no thought of suggesting that any political party is paramount in matters of patriotism. I feel too deeply the sacrifices which have been made in this way by all our citizens irrespective of party affiliations to harbor such an idea. I mean only that the difficulties and delicacies of our present task are of a sort that makes it imperatively necessary that the nation should give its undivided support to the government under a unified leadership and that a Republican congress would divide the leadership.

"The leaders of the minority in the present congress have unquestionably been pro-war, but they have been anti-administration. At almost every turn which we entered the war they have sought to take the choice of policy and the conduct of the war out of my hands and put it under the control of instrumentalities of their own choosing.

"This is no time either for divided council or for divided leadership. Unity of command is as necessary now in civil action as it is upon the field of battle. If the control of the house and the senate should be taken away from the party now in power an opposing majority could assume control of legislation and oblige all action to be taken amidst contest and obstruction.

"The return of a Republican majority to either house of the congress would moreover be interpretative on the other side of the water as a repudiation of my leadership. Spokesmen of the Republican party are urging you to elect a Republican congress in order to back up and support the president, but even if they should in this impose upon some credulous voters on this side of the water they would impose on no one on the other side. It is well understood there as well as here that the Republican leaders desire not so much to support the president as to control him.

"The peoples of the allied countries with whom we are associated against Germany are quite familiar with the significance of elections. They would find it very difficult to believe that the voters of the United States had chosen to support their president by electing to the congress a majority controlled by those who are not in fact in sympathy with the attitude and action of the administration.

"I need not tell you, my fellow countrymen, that I am asking your support not for my own sake or for the sake of a political party, but for the sake of the nation itself in order that its inward unity of purpose may be evident to all the world. In ordinary times I would not feel at liberty to make such an appeal to you. In ordinary times divided counsels can be endured without permanent hurt to the country. But these are not ordinary times.

"If in these critical days it is your wish to sustain me with undivided minds I beg that you will say so in a way which it will not be possible to misunderstand either here at home or among our associates on the other side of the sea. I submit my difficulties and my hopes to you.

"WOODROW WILSON."

Spanish-American War

Senator Lodge's Appeal—

"The policy of the United States, like the policy of all great nations, has been an advancing and an extending policy, and the question that confronts us today is not whether we shall enter upon a new policy, but how far we shall go under the circumstances and conditions created by the war. There is one man who has got to deal with that question who cannot meet it with empty negatives, and that is the president of the United States. As the constitution has charged him with this great duty, I, as one American citizen, am prepared to stand back and allow the constitutional representative to deal with it in the face of Europe and the world, and to settle it; and it is my desire, as I think it should be the duty of every patriot, to stand behind him and to hold up his hands and not to cross him."

Civil War

Abraham Lincoln's Appeal

"Do not swap horses while crossing a stream."

Spanish-American War

Senator Penrose's Appeal—

"In a few hours President McKinley will be our guest. In his recent speeches the president has appealed not to a partisan but to a national spirit. He asks the aid of the nation. He seeks the support of every man who believes in the result of his administration. I appeal not to the martial spirit of the nation, great as have been our victories on sea and land. I appeal to the quiet, sober thought of the American people who do not go to war unless for honor and humanity. I make this appeal to you that you give loyal support to President McKinley and the Republican party in the spirit he has asked for it."

"You look as if something is worrying you."

"My wife isn't well."

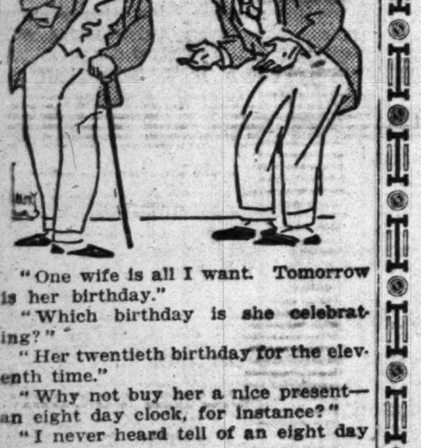
"Can I do anything for you?"

"Perhaps you can give me a job."

"I can give you a job next week."

"Too late. My wife will be able to work herself by that time."

"You should be good to her. Remember, one wife is all you have."



"One wife is all I want. Tomorrow is her birthday."

"Which birthday is she celebrating?"

"Her twentieth birthday for the eleventh time."

"Why not buy her a nice present—an eight day clock, for instance?"

"I never heard tell of an eight day clock."

"An eight day clock is one that goes eight days without winding."

"How long will it go if you do wind it?"

"Don't talk foolish. How long have the two of you been married?"

"Ten years."

"Ten years?"

"Yes; five apiece. The other night we had a terrible scare. My wife thought she heard a burglar, so I looked in the dining room and he wasn't there; then she looked in the parlor and he wasn't there; then she looked in the kitchen and he wasn't there."

"Did she look under the bed?"

"That wasn't necessary. I was under the bed."

"I think I saw your wife today as I passed your house. She was sitting on the front porch, resting her chin on her knees."

"That wasn't my wife."

"What makes you so positive?"

"My wife has never rested her chin yet."

"What's your wife's first name?"

"Carlotta, but I call her Car'load because there's so much of her."

"Does she tip the scale at 200?"

"No, but she busts it at 300."

La Pearl and Blondell:

"Are you troubled much in your neighborhood with borrowing?"

"Yes, a great deal. My neighbors don't seem to have anything I want."

"I'm sure there are many girls who could make you far happier than I could."

"That's the trouble. They could, but they won't."

"Suppose we were looking at a lot of wild animals at the zoo and one of them escaped, whom would you save first, me or the children?"

"Me."

"Have you heard the last war joke?"

"I hope so."

"Ah, Mary, you're just as beautiful as you ever were, and I have never forgotten you."

"And you, Sandy, are just as big a liar as ever, and I believe you just the same."

"The doctor says he'll remove my appendix for $500."

"I'd much rather have a sealskin coat."

"It's impossible to make a woman happy."

"Nonsense. Just give her all the money she can spend."

"Didn't I just say it was impossible?"

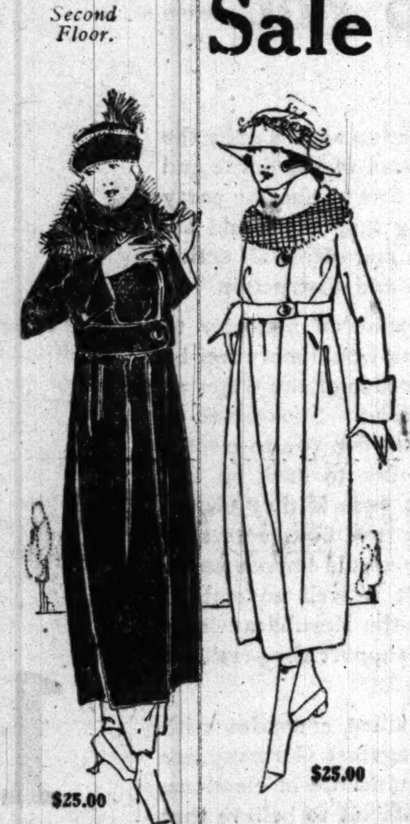
Sale of Coats and Dresses

Second Floor.

Here are two unusual offers of women's and misses' outer apparel bringing splendid savings on garments that possess the newest style touches.



Women's and misses' coats, values up to $35.00, at $25.00.

These coats are not only stylish, but are made in a way to give you utmost wear and satisfaction.

Here are coats of all wool velours, burellas, seal plushes, kerseys, broadcloths and silvertones. Many are lined throughout, others are half lined. The trimmings of fur or plush add much to the beauty of this splendid variety of coats. Specially priced at $25

Women's and misses' sample dresses, values up to $25.00, at $15.

There are only about 250 dresses in this lot, and we wish there were more, because we know that every woman who sees these dresses will buy at least one of them.

They are made in the newest styles of splendid quality materials, such as wool serge, wool jersey, satin, crepe de chine and taffeta.

Many are elaborately trimmed, while others are splendidly tailored. Being samples, there are only one and two of a model, which suggests early shopping. Come Monday to participate in this splendid offering. Special at $15

SALESMAN—HOSPITAL SUPPLIES.
Wanted, by prominent New York house, a first class salesman [Christian] for Chicago, Wisconsin, and parts of Illinois and Iowa; headquarters in Chicago; surrounding territory to be covered in short trips not extending over three weeks; would prefer a man who has had experience calling on hospitals or the drug trade, with a line of rubber goods, surgical instruments, sanitary products, or druggists' sundries; weekly drawing account, plus traveling and hotel expenses and monthly commissions on excess sales; good opportunity for right man; bond required; reply, stating age, whether married or single, and give list of positions held during last five years, to Sales Manager, P. O. Box 496, City Hall Station, New York.

SALESMAN—WHO IS QUALIFIED TO SELL a yearly SERVICE to manufacturers and wholesalers. Sales averaging about $150 to $200. This is not a merchandising proposition and therefore pays an excellent commission. Our best men are making from $7,000 to $10,000 per year and there is little traveling required because the field is unlimited in any industrial center. The proposition is new, very attractive, and clean. It is backed by the most overwhelming indorsements and enthusiastic approval of leading concerns throughout the country, and we have a very large percentage of renewals, paying commission to our men on renewals as well as original sales; a rather complete record of your past experience will be appreciated by us and a personal interview will be arranged with those who seem to meet the requirements. Address L L 516, Tribune.

SALESMEN—5; REAL SPECIALTY; FOR Chicago; men preferred having averaged $100 a week on computing scales and cash registers; men desired who undestand that a good and profitable specialty is always hard; double wheeled grinding machine for sharpening butcher knives and meat cleavers, which will automatically hollow grind both sides of the edge in one operation without the skill of a mechanic and in one-tenth the time; do the trick; no cinch to sell, but absolutely good; pays for itself in less than year; positively a forced sale article, but worth it; no good for experimenters or floaters; make application by letter, stating full success in specialty lines; consideration given only to those whom we think will qualify. Address L N 99, Tribune.

SALESMEN—AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY is offered men who are accustomed to work under pressure; our line is sold to the drug trade in the small and larger towns, and we will entertain applications from men who can devote their entire time on the territory assigned. Those whom we select will be given permanent territory and the benefit of mail orders received therefrom. Our line is well introduced, extensively advertised, and a big seller. This connection offers a big opportunity for experienced men to become permanently associated with an aggressive organization, where your earnings are only limited by the effort put forth.
Address L L 388, Tribune.

SALESMAN—ADVERTISING. THE MERchants' Publishing Company, Kalamazoo, Mich., originators and manufacturers of the well known Kalamazoo duotone line of calendars and other specialties, have open territory in Ill., Ind., Wis., and Mich. for 1919; our line is so varied that a successful salesman is enabled to travel throughout the year. We also manufacture leather goods, signs, cardboard fans, and blotters; commissions liberal and paid weekly. If you are seeking a good connection write us today for further particulars regarding our proposition.

SALESMEN—SEND US A DOLLAR FOR sample outfit of the "KANT-BREAK" spark plug and we will show you how to make from $5 to $25 per day or refund your dollar; it's the world's greatest spark plug and has many exclusive patented features; best built and finest looking spark plug made; compared to others, it's like the Mazda lamp to the tallow candle; sold on a money back guarantee; don't delay; send today. Mazda Electric Co., 203 N. 10th-st., St. Louis, Mo.

SALESMAN—MAN, 30 TO 50, OF GOOD education, pleasing manner and strong personality, for a special diplomatic soliciting position out of the city and paying $60 weekly upward. $5,000 SALESMAN WANTED

Largest national corporation of its kind in the United States, now organizing new territory, has opening for district salesman and manager. The proposition is selling a practical freight service membership needed by individuals, who are serving shippers, Chambers of Commerce, industrials, and railroads. Millions of dollars are wasted through inefficiency. Federal and state regulation of freight and express shipping, involving an expenditure of 4,000 millions of dollars, makes this practical traffic service a necessity. One concern saved through this service $9,751, another $3,000 on one shipment; $614,000 was saved a Detroit shipper in ten months. Applicant for position must be expert, energetic, educated, successful salesman or business man capable of becoming 100% red blooded producer. Specialty selling, books, insurance, or I. C. S. experience valuable. Only honest men with proven records, good appearance, financial responsibility and brimful of hard work, seeking permanent position as partner in profitable, growing business, need apply. Earnings from $100 to $300 weekly are possible. Commission basis only, bonus on subagents, direct inquiries, and protected permanent territory. Successful plan of sale furnished. Several different services to sell. Unusual opportunity. Make detailed application. Phone Wabash 8900 for appointment, or address J. M. PAKENHAM, Fourth Floor, 206 S. Wabash-av., Chicago, Ill.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY.

Electrical Manufacturing.

There is a remarkably good opening in the organization of a large, well established Chicago industry for a man who is willing to take hold of duties that may be assigned him at the start and "sail in."

After demonstrating his capabilities there is a well defined job waiting to be developed and largely created by the man himself. We do not expect nor desire the man we may decide upon to immediately undertake any fundamental reorganization of any department. It will take a little time for you to see the way clearly, but the possibilities of the work, when performed properly and effectively, will give ample scope and suitable compensation. Man should have better than average education and intelligence; some, if not all, of the cardinal virtues. Knowledge of factory methods and cost accounting desirable.

Employment Agencies.

20TH CENTURY JOBS FOR 20TH CENTURY MEN.

If ever in your life you ought to get set this is the time. Thousands of employers are beseeching us every day for brains and brawn. If you possess either one of these commodities you are cheating yourself unless you get in touch with us and let us fit you into that niche that you have been trying to find so long.

Never a week passes but what we are in receipt of letters of commendation for the service rendered to some fortunate applicant who has found his mark—found himself as it were. The same thought and appreciation is expressed by employers to us every day.

Every department in our institution is filled with men who make a thorough study of employment problems and conditions. They specialize in their particular line. Remember we spend $100,000 a year for this service to you and you cannot pay us one cent for a position unless you accept one through our efforts.

Here are a few openings from the different departments picked at random. If the one that you want is not listed, it will be in our order box. Don't let this stop you from having an interview.

Fortune Can Be Made Raising Live Stock in Florida.

Blooded stock is Florida's greatest need. Those who now take advantage of this situation should reap wonderful profits.

Many experts agree that Florida is destined to become one of our greatest meat producing states. Corn, sugar cane, and stock foods can be grown in abundance.

We have a number of excellent tracts in Hillsborough Co., near Tampa, the metropolis of Florida, especially adapted to live stock and farming; splendid climate; best location in state. Good transportation; excellent markets. Tracts from 50 to 2,500 acres at low wholesale prices to those who can pay one-third to one-half cash. Will give 3 to 6 years' time on balance if desired.

Write for map and full particulars.

FOR SALE—I HAVE CAREFULLY SELECTed and platted under expert advice from the fine cutover lands along our lines in La. and Miss. a number of farms, large and small live stock ranches, ranches specially selected with reference to breeding, herding, and feeding grounds, farm lands and pasturage, water and shipping facilities.

The lumber companies are loyally co-operating by concessions in low prices and long terms, payments distributed over long period, and reasonable rental on the lands and yet title is given on completion of payments.

The U. S. Railroad Administration instructs us to give out dependable informatoin to voluntary inquirers, and if you desire the results on shipments of thousands of sheep and cattle from the West and Southwest into this green grass country and the report of the National Wood Growers' Assn. on these lands, will furnish same on request. PLEASE
ANSWER

Will wages always be as high as they are now?

Will munition factories and other industries close after the war?

What will millions of soldiers and factory workers do when war ceases?

When peace is declared will food be plentiful and prices drop?

Can you continue to pay high food prices if work becomes scarce and wages low?

In other words, how are you going to support your family during the period of reconstruction?

These are vital questions that confront every thinking man. From whatever angle you view the problem an excellent solution is OWN A FARM HOME.

WE HAVE LATELY opened a new tract of 40,000 acres of hardwood land in Antrim and Kalkaska Counties, Michigan. You will find here a fine climate, plenty of rainfall, no swamps or stone, many pretty lakes and streams, hard roads, railroads, schools, churches, market towns, R. F. D., and telephone.

THESE LANDS WILL produce good crops of clover, wheat, oats, potatoes, alfalfa, corn, beans, fruit, rye, vetch, and many others.

THE PRESENT PRICES are only $15 to $30 per acre, and terms are arranged to suit your income. Liberty Bonds accepted. Sold in tracts of 10, 20, 40, 80, 160, or more acres. Write for big free booklet that describes in detail this land and several liberal features not offered by any other land company. We have been 20 years in business.

REMEMBER, NOW is the time to solve this important problem, so don't delay, but write immediately for full information. Week end excursions to the lands. Offices open every weekday, Monday evenings, and Saturday afternoons.

A RE-NEWED

CADILLAC "8"

GIVES YOU THE UTMOST STYLE, SERVICE, VALUE.

Many of the handsomest, quietest running Cadillacs you see on the street are renewed Cadillacs. Note the perfect fitting pantasote tops (factory standard), the beautiful gray, tan, blue, and maroon color bodies, specially painted by us. You can't tell such cars from new. Every renewed Cadillac has been taken apart, minutely inspected, worn parts replaced by new where necessary, reassembled, adjusted, tested, and proved as good as new. And we give service on a renewed Cadillac. When you get such a car at several hundred dollars less than the original price you are getting a real bargain, with which no "used" car can be compared.

All models in stock—touring cars, 4 pass. phaetons, roadsters, coupes, Victorias, sedans, broughams, limousines, and town cars.

A complete descriptive bulletin mailed on request.
